Charge Officers Took Xmas Trees Of Evicted Pair

CHICAGO (AP)—Four Cook County sheriffs policemen have been suspended temporarily following charges they took four Christmas trees belonging to a Mount Prospect couple recently evicted from their truck farm.

The four, Sgt. Martin Majewski and Deputies Bernard Sullivan, Daniel Kowalski and William Hamilton, received the temporary suspension Thursday from Sheriff Frank G. Sain because "they violated departmental rules and regulations."

The trees belong to Gerald Schroeder, 50, who with his wife, Clair, were evicted from their 17-acre farm Wednesday in the most recent round of a two-year legal battle with the Mount Prospect school board. The school board wants to build a school on the property.

The Schroeders were awarded $280,619 for the land but Schroeder said he doesn't want the money and will take the fight to the Illinois Supreme Court.

JERSEY JAIL HAS ONE PRISONER AND HE IS CALHOUN'S

JERSEYVILLE — Jersey county jail has only one prisoner at the present time, and he is a Calhoun county prisoner as that county has been using the Jersey county facility for holding its prisoners, the Calhoun jail being out of commission.

Deputy Sheriff Adam DeShler, who serves as the jailer for the Jersey county facility, reported that no one had been in jail until the night of December 10th for more than a week. DeShler stated that this constitutes a record for this time of the year the past three years.

One of the subjects arrested Saturday night was a woman resident of Godfrey, and she was released Monday morning upon payment of a fine assessed for peace disturbance.

Sackett, who was appointed by former Gov. William G. Stratton, has three more years to go on his present term. The commission members are Howard Cartwright, Chicago, Republican, and Leo Nelson, Chicago, a Democrat.

The governor's comment was prompted by charges of State's Atty. Dick Mudge Jr. of Madison county, who said the commission was "over friendly to the liquor interests" and it was almost impossible to obtain a tavern license revocation.

Kerner said Sackett has taken upon himself the authority of the commission as a whole in the hearing and setting of cases.

But the governor said he does not plan to ask Sackett to resign. He said he has no objection to a Republican serving as chairman "if we can work together."

"I have no basis for talking to him," Kerner declared. "But I'm not happy with the situation."

On other subjects, Kerner said he hopes to make up his mind by the first of the year on the executive clemency petition of former State Auditor Orville Hodge.

Hodge, serving a 12 to 15 year sentence in Menard prison, is seeking either a full pardon or a reduction of his term to make him eligible for parole immediately.

Kerner said he still favors replacing the Illinois Public Aid Commission by a new department under his jurisdiction.

The legislature this year turned down such a proposal.

ASKS 'SECOND
PROCLAMATION'

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. has appealed to President Kennedy for a "second emancipation proclamation" to end segregation.

The Negro integration leader made his plea Thursday night after New Orleans officials canceled a Municipal Auditorium mass meeting he was to have addressed.

"You may cancel a meeting," King said, "but you can't cancel the date New Orleans and the South has with destiny. You can't cancel our determination the Negro has to be free in this day and age."

King, who said he would go today to the scene of mass Negro arrests in Albany, Ga., labeled charges he was an agitator as "trumped-up."

Thursday night's meeting was switched to a church, where about 1,000 persons gave King a standing ovation.

"The hour has come for the President of the United States to issue an executive order declaring segregation unconstitutional on the basis of the 14th Amendment," said King.

Negroes have been freed only of "physical" slavery, he said. King urged President Kennedy to complete the job with a second emancipation proclamation.

U.N. Forces Take 3 Katanga Bases

Tshombe Moves His Capital, Vows He'll Fight To The End

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—U.N. forces overwhelmed three Katangan strongholds in Elisabethville Saturday, the United Nations announced. With his capital toppling, President Moise Tshombe quit the city, vowing to fight to the end.

Last stronghold to fall was Camp Massart, the chief Katangan base on the eastern side of the city.

Katangan soldiers still held out in the heart of the capital near the Leopold II Hotel, crowded with refugees from two days of furious ground fighting.

Hospitals jammed with wounded were without water, as was most of the city. Food was scarce. Shops were smashed by the mortar fire. And still the fighting went on in a violent rainstorm.

A spokesman for Tshombe's secessionist government announced Tshombe had arrived at Kipushi, 30 miles south of the capital on the border of Northern Rhodesia. Tshombe took refuge there for a time during the fighting between his troops and U.N. forces in September.

Ceremonies Mark Anniversary Of Wrights' Flight

KILL DEVIL HILLS, N.C. (AP)—Powered flight celebrated its 58th anniversary and the 50th anniversary of naval aviation here Saturday.

Sixteen Air Force and Navy airplanes zipped low over the memorial to Orville and Wilbur Wright in tribute to the new field of transportation they created. The jets, capable of exceeding the speed of sound, darted over the towering monument at 10:37 a.m. EST, the time when the Wrights made their first flight of 12 seconds and 120 feet in their rickety flyer Dec. 17, 1903. The weather was overcast and mild, unlike the bitter cold the Wrights flew in.

More than 450 persons saw the ceremonies on the bleak sand dunes of Kitty Hawk and paid tribute to Lindsay C. Warren, former U.S. comptroller general who, as a congressman, stimulated foundation of the Wright memorial here.

Later, at a luncheon in nearby Nags Head, Vice Adm. Robert B. Pirie, deputy chief of naval operations for air, said that but for the Wright brothers, man might not have achieved powered flight for many years.

Pirie said that the brothers "had to pull technology up to meet their demands. For lack of aerodynamics knowledge, they built a wind tunnel, and finding existing engines insufficiently powerful, they developed and built their own power plant."

"They dragged aviation on the stage years before it otherwise would have appeared," he said.

Thant Wants No Cease-Fire Until Objectives Realized

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Acting Secretary-General U Thant told his Congo advisory committee Saturday that the United Nations would suffer a serious setback if a cease-fire were proclaimed in Katanga before U.N. objectives are realized.

The 15-nation committee, informed that U. N. forces would be in virtually complete control of Elisabethville within 24 hours, expressed full support for Thant's stand.

Thant said the United Nations would do everything possible to arrange a meeting between Katanga President Moise Tshombe and Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula, provided it was at a place acceptable to Adoula.

Thant suggested Katanga as a possible site, and said the United Nations would provide Tshombe with assurances of personal security and safe conduct during any negotiations between the two Congo leaders there. Katanga is an old Belgian base near the Congolese seaport of Banana in Leopoldville Province.

Brig. I.J. Rikhye, Thant's top military adviser at U.N. headquarters, predicted that embattled Elisabethville would be in virtual complete control of U.N. forces within 24 hours.

He said Tshombe's presidential palace and Radio Katanga were the only two remaining objectives of any size. Only pockets of resistance were left.

Rusk Reports Things Going Well For West

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk returned Saturday night from a week of meetings with U.S. allies in Europe with word that "things are looking up" for the Western powers.

Rusk had this cheery report for newsmen upon his arrival at 7:25 p.m. at Andrews Air Force Base. Earlier in the day, he had conferred with Spain's Francisco Franco, who had attended a North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministerial meeting in Paris.

The U.S. foreign affairs leader acknowledged that "we had a little trouble" in Paris Friday in getting out a final communiqué which the NATO ministers could agree on. France is more reluctant than the other allies about getting into negotiations with the Soviet Union on the Germany-Berlin issue.

But "the more important things are going well," Rusk said. He cited in this connection what he said was the growing military strength of NATO and "agreement on what to do about the German thing."

As for his chat with Franco, Rusk described it as "a very good talk."

Rusk was met at the airport by Undersecretary of State George W. Ball, the dean of the diplomatic corps, Nicaraguan Ambassador Severo Sacasa, ranking diplomats from the Spanish and Venezuelan embassies and a number of top State Department aides.

Earlier, in Madrid, Rusk had emerged smiling from the meeting in El Pardo Palace with Franco. A Spanish official called it "highly satisfactory conference."

Donald Calvin, head of the securities division in the secretary of state's office, said Gibbs was refused a license because he sold stock of another insurance firm in Illinois at one time without legal permission.

Hold Funeral Services For 3 Victims Of Train-Bus Crash

GREELEY, Colo. (AP)—An overflow crowd attended a joint funeral service Saturday for three young victims of a bus-train crash which killed 20 children.

The victims were Ellen Craven, 8, Calvin Craven, 10, and Gerald Baxter, 10, a cousin of the Cravens.

The Rev. Bertram Moore, pastor of the Wesleyan Community church located near the accident scene, said in the service at Macy's Memorial Chapel here: "God allowed His own Son to die to leave home so that you and I might have a place for eternity."

"Christ himself said, let the little children come unto Me. He has received these children. They are not gone forever. They have simply left one home to live in another home."

Three state highway patrolmen stood at attention as the light rose-colored coffins were carried from the chapel.

The officers were among the first on the scene when a Union Pacific passenger train smashed into a bus of the Greeley school system Thursday.

The schoolbus driver, Duane R. Harms, 33, will be arraigned Monday on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. He is free on a $10,000 bond. Train crewmen claim the bus moved onto a crossing directly in the path of the fast-moving train.

Separate funeral services also were held Saturday for three other crash victims—April Mickey Freeman, 8; Robert Lee Smock, 10, and Sheri Mitchell, 6.

U.S. Decides To Put $133 Million In Ghana's Volta Dam Project

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States announced Saturday it will go ahead with its proposed $133 million in loans to help build the Volta Dam and aluminum smelter project in Ghana.

The State Department said President Kennedy's decision was being conveyed by his fact-finder on the project, former steel executive Clarence B. Randall, to Kwame Nkrumah in Accra.

Nkrumah's recent flirtations with Moscow and his tough suppression of opposition at home had touched off an extensive Kennedy administration review this fall after 3 1/2 years of previous negotiations had all but committed Washington to the deal.

Official said the go-ahead was based on a judgment that American foreign policy has more to gain from U.S. participation than withdrawal, that the project is economically sound and worthwhile, and that enough safeguards have been taken against political and economic hazards.

Rep. Barratt O'Hara, D-Ill., chairman of the House subcommittee, described the loan as a "sound investment toward African development and free world objectives."

O'Hara said in a statement he is convinced the future of that area of Africa depends on the Volta River project.

"Our assistance to this project will work against radical trends in Ghana and Africa," said O'Hara. "It will strengthen our efforts to encourage moderate democratic elements there."

The United States, Ghana, Britain, the World Bank and private U.S. interests are all joining in the undertaking, which is expected to cost a total of at least $324 million and take more than five years to build.

The $196-million dam project will be the largest of its kind in sub-Saharan Africa. By providing electricity, it is calculated to bring new economic life into much of the West African country, which was a British colony until last year. Proceeds from the $128-million aluminum plant are slated to be enough to pay for electricity.

Arrest 230 Negroes Staging Demonstration In Albany, Ga.

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—More than 230 marching, singing Negroes were arrested Saturday as they staged their fifth antisegregation demonstration in the last five days.

Among those arrested was Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. of Atlanta, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

The march, which began at Shiloh Baptist church in the Negro residential section of the city, followed a breakdown in biracial negotiations in this southern Georgia city.

As the marchers reached the edge of the Negro housing area, they were met by a loudspeaker truck. Police Chief Laurie Pritchett took the microphone and asked the marchers: "Do you have a permit for this parade?"

King, who was in the front rank of the marchers responded: "We are only going to City Hall to pray."

Pritchett responded: "You are all under arrest."

The Negroes continued toward City Hall, flanked on both sides by dozens of city and state policemen. They were herded into an alley behind City Hall, where police began booking them.

Mayor Asa Kelley said the Negroes would be charged with holding a parade without a permit.

Dr. W.G. Anderson, president of the Albany Movement, had called for renewal of the protest marches after he said Negro leaders had been rebuffed in their attempt to renew negotiations with city officials.

Negotiations between representatives of the city government and the Negro leaders broke down when the City Commission charged the Negroes with failing to observe the terms of a two-day truce.

ESTIMATE TRAFFIC DEATH TOLL OF 500 DURING CHRISTMAS

CHICAGO (AP)—Five hundred persons may die in traffic accidents during the coming Christmas holiday period.

This was the estimate Saturday by the National Safety Council. The council estimated that 23,000 persons may suffer injury in accidents during the 78-hour period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight, Monday, Dec. 25.

During a similar period last year, 488 persons died in traffic accidents, 77 in fires and 82 deaths were recorded in miscellaneous categories.

The council also estimated that nearly all of the nation's 76 million motor vehicles will be on the roads at some time during the holiday. It estimated 6.2 billion miles would be traveled by these vehicles.

There were these words of caution: Pay attention to speed limits, traffic and weather conditions; don't drive after drinking; drive courteously and use common sense.

Calls For Support Of His Alliance For Progress Program

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Threats of leftist violence vanished amid "Viva Kennedy" cheers in Caracas Saturday as the U.S. President summoned the people of Venezuela to support the Alliance for Progress program of Latin American development.

The warmth of his reception brought a happy smile to President Kennedy and seemed an omen of success in his mission, which spotlights U.S. determination to help this continent and stem the appeal of Communism.

Banners of welcome and U.S. and Venezuelan flags flew above the most massive security precautions ever taken in Venezuela for a visiting chief executive.

With no sign of the incidents that had been feared, Kennedy drove 10 miles into the city, flew by helicopter to a project associated with the aims of the Alliance for Progress, and bespoke a new 1961 Good Neighbor policy for all the Americas.

In his main address of the day he solemnly warned Latin Americans against alien philosophies and repressive dictatorships that take away liberty with promises of economic progress.

The promises are soon forgotten, he said, adding: "We have seen this in the grim, drab poverty of eastern Europe, in the famines of China and here in our own hemisphere."

That was an apparent reference to Cuba. President Romulo Betancourt, in response, declared Venezuela is ranged in the Western camp by her own decision and will do her part to "impede the expansion of the Sino-Soviet bloc in Latin America."

The 10-year, $20 billion Alliance for Progress links U.S. aid with Latin American self-help and reform.

The President visited two housing and agrarian reform centers, which are examples of the program in Venezuela.

At La Morita, where four farm families in a symbolic ceremony received titles to plots of land, the President spoke to thousands of cheering shirt-sleeved farmers.

Jacqueline Kennedy captivated the audience by speaking in Spanish. Flashing a smile that could be understood in any language, Mrs. Kennedy said in perfect Spanish that there can be no happy fathers or mothers "until they have the possibility of jobs and also education for their children."

This must be for all, not just the fortunate, she said. Her little speech drew the biggest cheers of the day.

The crowds that lined the streets and balconies of downtown Caracas on this warm, muggy day were not remarkable for size—possibly because of the threatening weather and the thousands of troops and police who were (Continued On Page Nine)

Trujillo Family Bank Accounts Ordered Frozen

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—The government Saturday ordered frozen all bank accounts of the Trujillo family in the Dominican Republic. The accounts are valued at 22 million pesos—at the official rate of exchange $22 million.

It was the second big financial blow to the family that once dominated the economic life of the nation as rigidly as it did the government.

Friday, the government announced recovery of foreign bank documents valued at more than $28 million from Trujillo family effects aboard the luxury yacht Angella.

The Trujillo family cannot touch these deposits abroad without the seized documents, officials said. The government is taking steps to freeze the foreign accounts as well.

Details of the documents seized aboard the luxury yacht were given by Fidel Mendez, administrator of the recently created Bureau of Recovery Administration, set up to control properties and funds of the Trujillo family and associates.

Rafael L. Trujillo Jr., son of the dictator assassinated last May, left aboard the yacht shortly before the Nov. 19 air force coup that prevented a return of the Trujillos to power. He left the yacht on the French island of Guadeloupe and the government ordered the yacht to return several weeks ago.

Scores of boxes and suitcases removed from the yacht yielded $24,270,328 in time certificates of deposit and $9,990,300 in checks, Mendez said. The government is announcing the seizure Friday; had put the total amount at about $30 million.

Checks and certificates drawn against Canadian banks were made out to young Trujillo and three corporations alleged to be a cover-up for his mother. They came from several Dominican private firms and banks.

Mendez said the government is studying preliminary legal steps to recover the funds.

FREEZING RAIN IN STATE MAKES DRIVING HAZARDOUS

RAIN fell over much of Illinois Saturday night and freezing temperatures turned highways icy in Northern areas and made driving hazardous.

A five-week-old infant boy was killed in a two-car collision on slippery U.S. 30 east of Frankfort, Ill. The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Hand, believed to be from Twin Falls, Idaho, were hurt seriously, police said.

The Illinois Division of Highways said temperatures in the northern half of the state were critical and that the falling rain could turn to ice when it hit the pavement.

Four traffic accidents involving 71 vehicles were reported in a single hour on Chicago's icy streets. Police said one South Side accident involved 27 vehicles.

There were no serious injuries in the Chicago mishaps, but considerable property damage, police said.

O'Hare International Airport said incoming flights were being diverted to other airports because of icy runways. Midway Airport said runways were icy in spots, but planes were landing.

BOY DROWNED BY RAINDROPS TAUNTON, England (AP)—Graham England, 16, was drowned by raindrops.

An inquest was told Friday he crashed on his bicycle while riding through pouring rain and was knocked unconscious. The rain fell in his mouth and he drowned.

It was announced that the cook books, "Cookery Around Cass County," are completed and on sale at the Home Bureau office in Virginia for $1.75.

Following a gift exchange, refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Teacher's Do-It-Yourself Method Is Producing Fantastic Results

EDITOR'S NOTE—Johnny not only can't read, he can't write. He thought his teacher was Nellie Thomas whose solution is as easy as A, B, C.

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer
ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP)—English teacher Nellie Thomas is getting results so fantastic you have to see them to believe them. Her formula: A modified do-it-yourself technique, with the students doing most of the work.

In just a few short weeks or months, students who can't spell learn to spell. Students whose handwriting is illegible learn to write neatly. Students who can't read learn to read.

Most remarkable of all, students who have never been able to write a single coherent sentence learn to write well-organized themes of several hundred words. The formula has been tested and proven in regular classes from the second grade through the 10th, and with backward students whose years in school have been a succession of failures.

You can't call it a miracle. A miracle is beyond the comprehension of mortal man, and Mrs. Thomas' technique is simply self.

She has thrown away the textbook, the workbook, and the penmanship drill book. In their place, she gives each student a dictionary. Then she stands in front of the class and teaches, and makes the students responsible for learning.

The phenomenal improvement her students show in such a short time takes on added significance when you remember that:

150,000 high school graduates failed college-entrance tests in English in 1958.

One-third of all college freshmen are poorly prepared in English.

70 per cent of the nation's colleges and universities are forced to offer remedial English courses.

Mrs. Thomas, a remedial English teacher in Rockford's Auburn High School, started working out her technique in West View Elementary School here 10 years ago.

Now it has spread to 20 of the city's 49 schools. It is being used in a growing number of Midwestern cities as the word gets around.

Translating her theories into practice was a lengthy and laborious process of trial and error, starting with the assumption that traditional methods of teaching English are proven failures.

After tearing down the old methods, Mrs. Thomas started building her new technique.

One the first day of school, each student is told to write an autobiography. "I don't caution them about spelling, grammar, punctuation, neatness or organization. I want a true picture of the youngster's ability, and these papers are not corrected. They are posted on the wall, and they stay there to give the students something to build on."

On the second and third days, the students get just about all the group instruction they are going to get in penmanship, although Mrs. Thomas will always work individually with students having trouble.

"I start teaching the students to draw each letter as carefully as if it were a picture."

"For the first two weeks, the students have to write so slowly it is almost a drawing lesson. At the end of that time they will begin to speed up, but their letter forms will remain the same."

"And whenever they get careless or sloppy, I simply refuse to accept their work. They soon get the idea."

On the fourth day of school the written work starts, and it doesn't end until the school year is over. She writes eight or ten sentences on the board. The sentences are taken from work handouts in by the students and are chosen to illustrate different types of mistakes.

"I ask the students to find the mistakes. I tell them why certain verb forms are wrong, why you use an apostrophe in one case but not another. But I never write these corrections on the board. The sentences stay there in their original form."

"When we have covered all the mistakes, I ask the students to write the sentences correctly. This way they have to work their way through the mistakes again, and correct them."

"If I corrected the mistakes on the board, the students would copy my work, and they wouldn't learn a thing."

Every day the students are asked to turn in written work, starting with a few simple sentences and working up to paragraphs and one- and two-page themes.

"I scan the paper quickly, and if I see any mistakes I hand it back."

"It's up to the student to find his mistakes and fix them. I don't expect him to find every single mistake. I'm interested in improvement, not perfection. Every mistake he finds and corrects gives him just that much better a foundation in English."

"Besides, if he misses a mistake today he'll catch it next time. Over a year's time I might have 100 sentences on the board illustrating the use of to, too, and two. And that's 99 more times than you'll find it in a textbook."

"The things now being taught in the sixth grade can be taught in the third grade. I know, because I have done it."

Revise Law For Admitting Vets To Quincy Home

Edward B. Akin, administrator of the Illinois Veterans' Commission said Saturday the 72nd General Assembly took corrective action affecting admission to both the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home and the Soldiers' Widows' Home.

The disabled veteran who is no longer capable of earning a living may be admitted to the Illinois Soldiers' and Sailors' Home, a minimum of at least 90 days active service in the United States Armed Forces is required, unless sooner released by reason of a disability. However, admission of residents will not be conditioned on the financial status or even their ability to pay maintenance charges.

These provisions apply alike to both the Illinois Soldiers' and Sailors' Home at Quincy and the Soldiers' Widows' Home at Wilmington.

Set Nights For Assisting Vets At Winchester

Frank A. Robinson, Illinois War Relocation Authority Service officer, advises all veterans and widows that he has arranged through the Winchester American Legion Post to use the American Legion Home in Winchester the nights of Wednesday, Jan. 10th and Wednesday, January 17 for the purpose of assisting all veterans, widows and those receiving pension benefits from the Veterans Administration in making out their veterans administration income questionnaires.

Those forms will be received by all widows and veterans receiving pension benefits with their regular monthly checks which should be received about January 2, 1962. Veterans and widows who receive regular pension checks and do not receive a questionnaire card with their next check should report to the service officer so a duplicate card can be ordered. Pensions to veterans and widows will be stopped as of February 1, 1962 if they fail to send in this questionnaire income card.

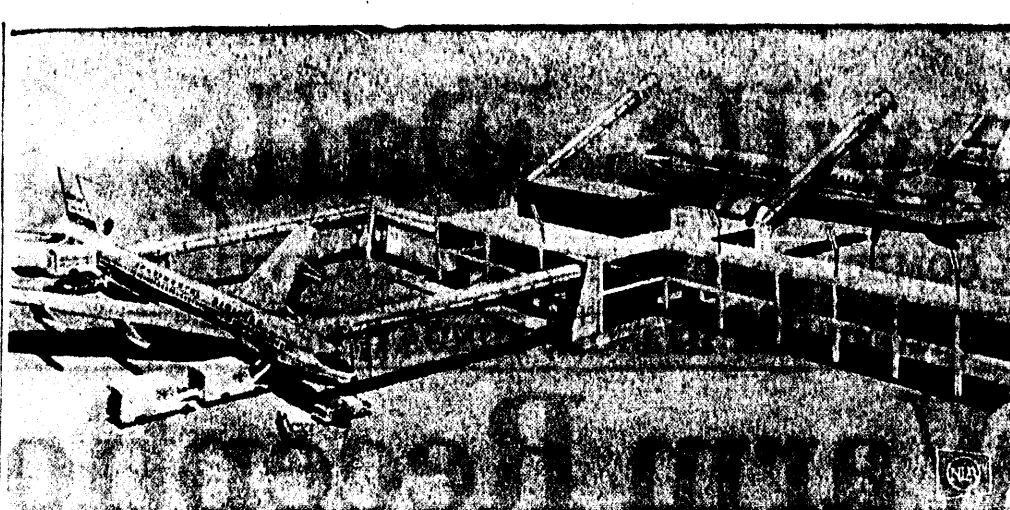

It is requested that no figures or marks be put on these cards before bringing them to the service officer. He will fill in the figures necessary from information furnished by the veteran or widow. Anyone wishing assistance in completing their income questionnaire cards may call at the office of the Illinois Veterans Commission, room 6-7 Morrison building, across the street south from the Morgan County Court house on West State street, Jacksonville, any week day, Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. This office is closed during the noon hour, 12:00 to 1:00 on Tuesday and Thursday.

Show Making Of Beeswax Candles To Cass Unit

By PATRICIA BISCHOFF
Arenzville Correspondent

ARENZVILLE—The Monroe unit of Home Bureau met Thursday afternoon, December 14, at the home of Mrs. Henry Fiedler. The meeting was opened with the singing of "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing." Fifteen members and one guest answered the roll call by telling "Gifts I Would Make for Christmas."

An announcement was made of a series of three clothing lessons, "Advanced Dress Construction," which will be given in the Country during January and February by a clothing specialist from the University. Mrs. Don Meyer will be the representative from Monroe Unit to take the lessons. Mrs. George Bischoff, County Clothing Chairman, will also be present.

It was announced that the cook books, "Cookery Around Cass County," are completed and on sale at the Home Bureau office in Virginia for $1.75.

Miss Eileen Fiedler gave a demonstration on making beeswax candles. She displayed a variety of candles for seasonal and general use that she had made, and provided materials from which the members made candles for themselves and for gifts.

Following a gift exchange, refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Development Underway In Rural Calhoun

HARDIN—A new organization is being formed in Calhoun county for the purpose of promoting the development of the county in job opportunities, recreational facilities, health improvement, commercial projects, road improvement, youth programs and many other related subjects. The first county-wide meeting of community leaders was sponsored by the Home Economics and Agriculture Extension services, the Farm and Home Bureau and the Calhoun Apple Exchange.

This program, which is known as the Calhoun County Rural Areas Resource Development, while it is new to this county, has been going on in the state and nation for a number of years, with encouraging results. Facts concerning the program were explained to the local group by Elmer Sauer of the University of Illinois, who has been with the university in conservation work since his graduation in 1932.

Also assisting in the explanation of the new program were Mrs. Peter W. Simon, home adviser; Robert Labne, farm adviser; William Pohl, soil conservation technician; Mrs. Rhea Johnson, soil conservation secretary; Raymond Kress, president of Agriculture Extension here, and Carl Langenbach, Winchester, R.E.A. representative.

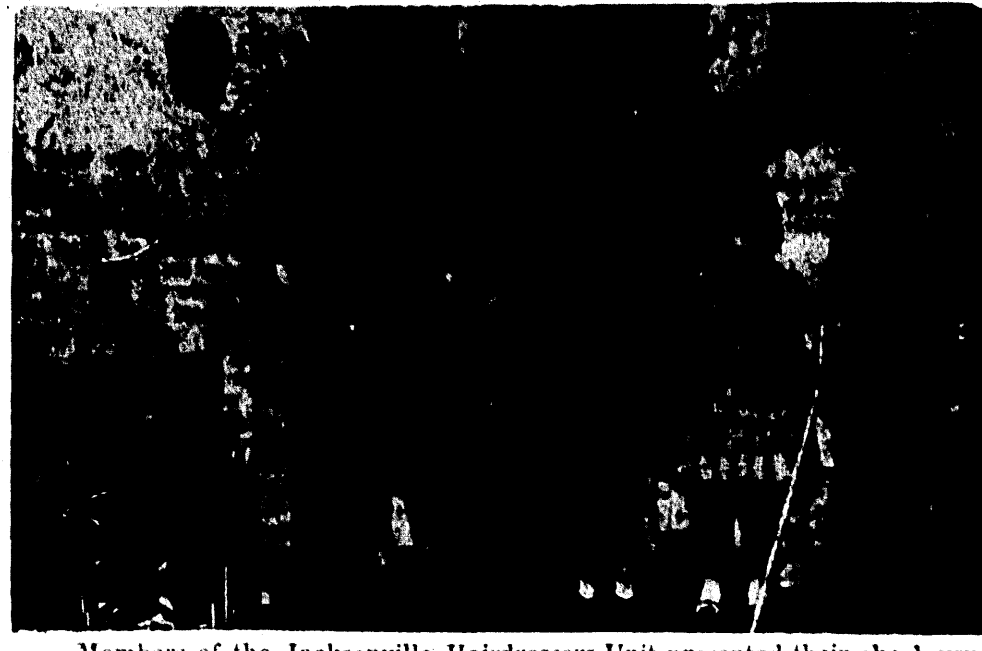

The group of 55 persons divided into smaller panels to discuss the needs of the county, and then reported to the whole assembly for discussion. The information thus gathered will be assimilated by extension personnel, and a "hub" committee will be appointed to begin work on one or a series of projects. Much enthusiasm was shown at the first meeting, and it is felt that the program will be instrumental in achieving progress in the county. The first meeting of the hub committee will be Thursday evening, Dec. 28.

Computer Expert Is Fed Back

Scientists Letting Machines Take Command Of Our Ideas

By WARD CANNEL

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. BOSTON — (NEA) — Norbert Wiener's impatience with the growing pains of the computer age fills his room at Massachusetts General Hospital and booms out into the quiet corridor.

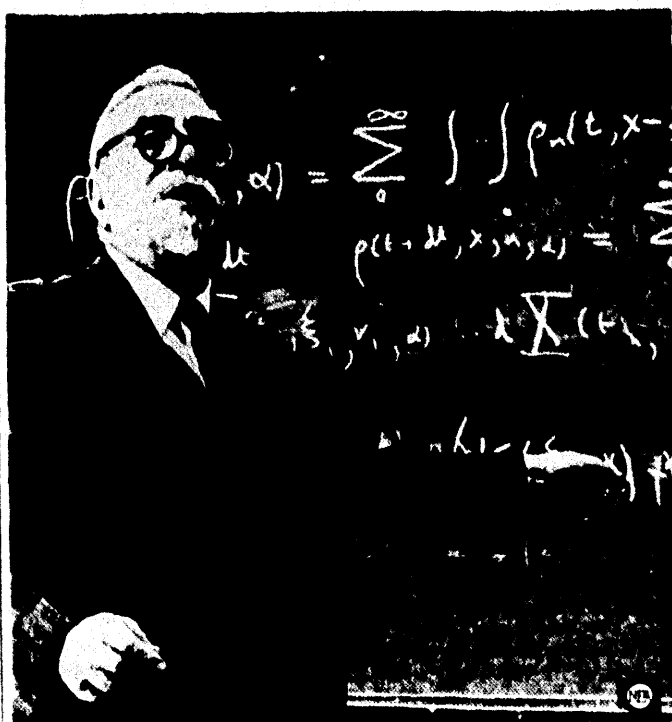

Wiener could claim the title of philosopher of the computer age, because he is the founder of the awful science of cybernetics—the study of how much of Man is machine-like and thus how machines can be made like men and, by and by, like supermen.

Once a child prodigy and now institute professor emeritus at M.I.T., the 67-year-old Wiener is waiting for two broken parts to mend, following his random access down a flight of stairs. Eager to get back to work, he spews forth ideas at a rate that gives man hope that he may retain his upper hand over the machine.

On Magic: Our new learning machines are literal-minded, like Aladdin's lamp and the other agencies of magic in the old fables. If we ask a boon from computers, we must ask for what we really want and not for what we think we want. If we program a machine for winning a war, we had better know exactly what we mean by "winning." Otherwise, we may find the ghost (we have really asked for) knocking at our door.

On Evil: But we are going head-on with computers today. We are putting them to unsuitable jobs and wasting more money in the process than you can imagine. Moreover, we are using computers to escape responsibility—or at least divide it. We are asking computers to make our moral decisions for us.

On Programming: Unless we begin to ask ourselves each time if the machine is appropriate to do what we want done, we will find our new scientists educated as merely good stooges for the machines. Unless we stop using machines in place of ideas, the present downward trend in our science will continue. Unless we stop and go back to hand, desk and blackboard.

On the U. S. vs. Russia: We are ahead—but only slightly ahead—in hardware like computers. But we also are far more rigidly programmed than Russia. Look at our joy over teaching machines. It gives me the willies. We think of slides as being visual aids, but we forget that books are visual aids, too. On Russia vs. the U. S.: Russia has stayed close to the European gymnasium method of teaching. She is, therefore, far ahead of us in systems—in dealing with ideas in concepts rather than hard-ware. She may be under-designed in parts, but we are under-designed in the whole.

Maybe we should make bigger and better computers and give them to Russia. Maybe they will corrupt her science, too.

'Midwestern Hospitality' Is Not Just A Cliche When... Kansas City Is 'At Home' To Visitors From Abroad

By MARY KAY FLYNN

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. KANSAS CITY, Mo. — (NEA) — There are those Americans who go to foreign countries to extend a hand of goodwill.

Then there are those at home to do the same.

Here in the "Heart of America," a crop of 500 families opens its homes to foreign students and visitors in the Greater Kansas City area.

In hosting for the guests from abroad, pretense and extraordinary entertaining are discouraged. The foreign visitor, who is made to feel at home, is given the chance to observe the individual volunteer family's usual way of life.

Though language and professional compatibility between host and guest may be considered in placement, the prospective host makes one thing clear. Whether the host family is large or small and lives in a plush or modest home, it willingly accepts the guests as "people" without reservations as to race, creed or nationality.

The Greater Kansas City Committee for International Students has been created here to coordinate the hospitality efforts of 23 local groups. The committee, in addition to lending a helping hand to foreign students, also assists in hosting for foreign guests of U.S. government agencies.

In the past 18 months, the committee arranged dinner engagements in local homes for more than 150 overseas visitors who came to the Kansas City area under the auspices of the city's Human Relations Commission.

Each year, the committee joins Fellowship House and the Naturalization Council in sponsoring a community reception for international students, doctors, nurses and teachers from abroad who work or study in the Kansas City area. There are 270 names on the current invitation list for that event and holidays.

Foreign students who come here under Fulbright scholarships spend a weekend in local homes. That, too, is arranged by the committee. This year, the nearly 60 Fulbright scholars were entertained in that fashion.

Development Underway In Rural Calhoun

HARDIN—A new organization is being formed in Calhoun county for the purpose of promoting the development of the county in job opportunities, recreational facilities, health improvement, commercial projects, road improvement, youth programs and many other related subjects. The first county-wide meeting of community leaders was sponsored by the Home Economics and Agriculture Extension services, the Farm and Home Bureau and the Calhoun Apple Exchange.

This program, which is known as the Calhoun County Rural Areas Resource Development, while it is new to this county, has been going on in the state and nation for a number of years, with encouraging results. Facts concerning the program were explained to the local group by Elmer Sauer of the University of Illinois, who has been with the university in conservation work since his graduation in 1932.

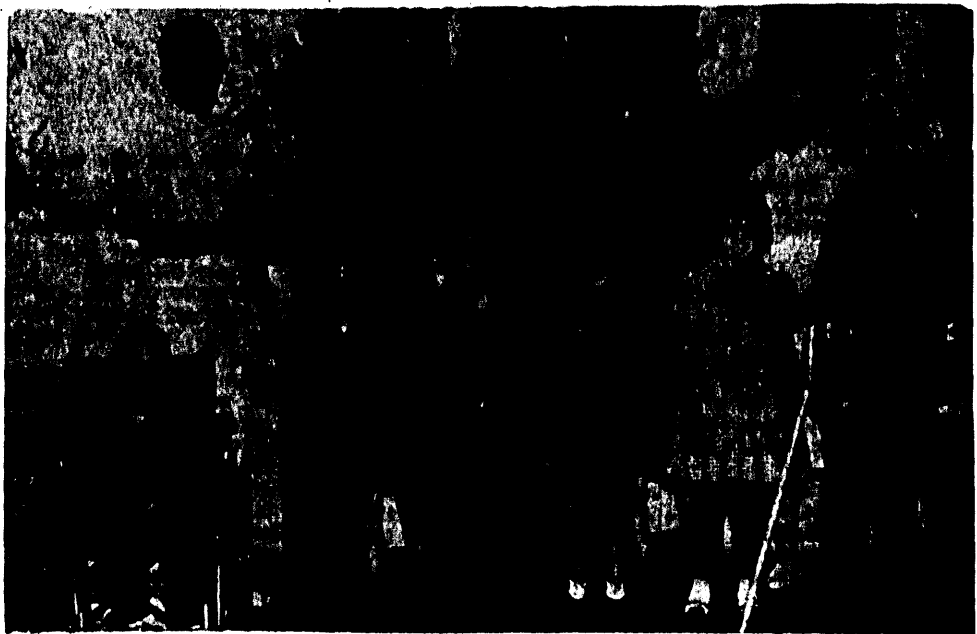

Also assisting in the explanation of the new program were Mrs. Peter W. Simon, home adviser; Robert Lohme, farm adviser; William Pohl, soil conservation technician; Mrs. Rhea Johnson, soil conservation secretary; Raymond Kress, president of Agriculture Extension here, and Carl Langenbach, Winchester, R.E.A. representative.

The group of 55 persons divided into smaller panels to discuss the needs of the county, and then reported to the whole assembly for discussion. The information thus gathered will be assimilated by extension personnel, and a "hub" committee will be appointed to begin work on one or a series of projects. Much enthusiasm was shown at the first meeting, and it is felt that the program will be instrumental in achieving progress in the county. The first meeting of the hub committee will be Thursday evening, Dec. 28.

Tree Lighting Opens Season At State Hospital

On Monday afternoon, Dec. 18, Jacksonville State Hospital will officially open its 1961 Christmas Season with its annual tree-lighting ceremony. The program will be held in front of the administration building at 4 p.m.

A special feature of this year's event, will be a dedication of the newly purchased nativity scene, located on the fish pool. This scene contains 15 figures: the Holy Family, the Christ Child, Mary and Joseph; the three wise men; three shepherds, a guardian angel, a cow, three sheep, and a donkey. All of the figures are arranged before a rustic stable resting in yellow straw.

The Christmas program will begin with an invocation by the hospital chaplain, Rev. Darwin Clupper, after which, Dr. Sophie N. Leschin, superintendent, will officially welcome the group.

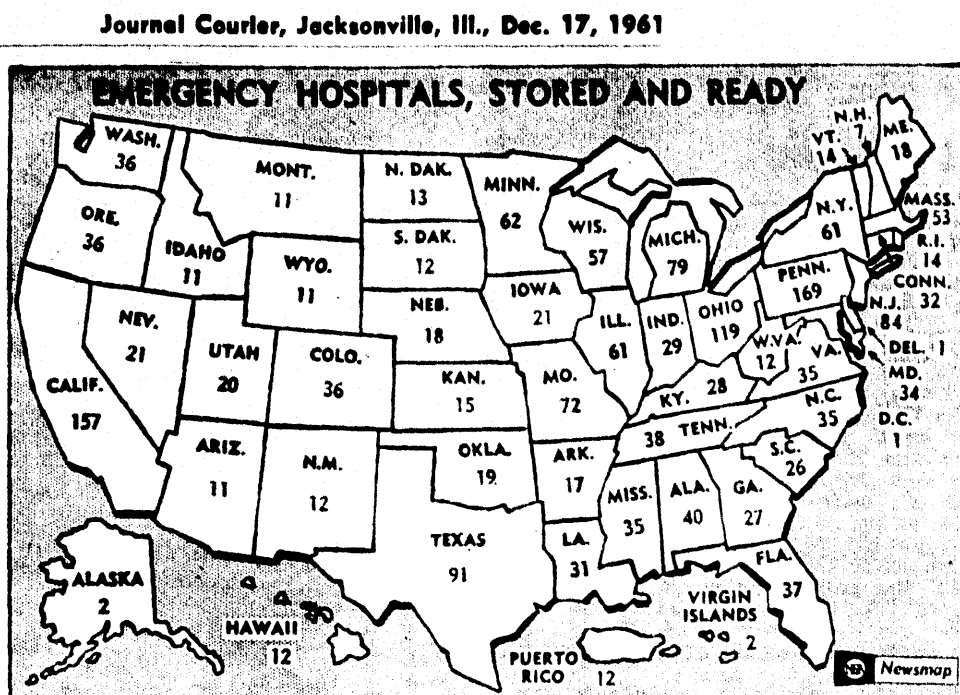

This year, the two majestic blue spruces, planted in 1934, when Hayden Walker was business manager at the institution, were decorated with colored lights for the first time. As a special consideration, Walker will be on hand to flip the switch, lighting the two trees.

Mrs. Michael O. Driscoll, of Our Saviour's Church, will present a short devotional service.

Mrs. Alta Elsch, music therapist, and her little group of musicians, will lead the congregation in singing many of the old Christmas carols.

At the close of the ceremony, Rev. Clupper will offer the benediction.

Those patients, who desire to attend the ceremony, will be allowed to do so. Anyone in the community, who would like to be present for the program, is cordially invited.

Computer Expert Is Fed Back

By WARD CANNEL

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. BOSTON — (NEA) — Norbert Wiener's impatience with the growing pains of the computer age fills his room at Massachusetts General Hospital and booms out into the quiet corridor.

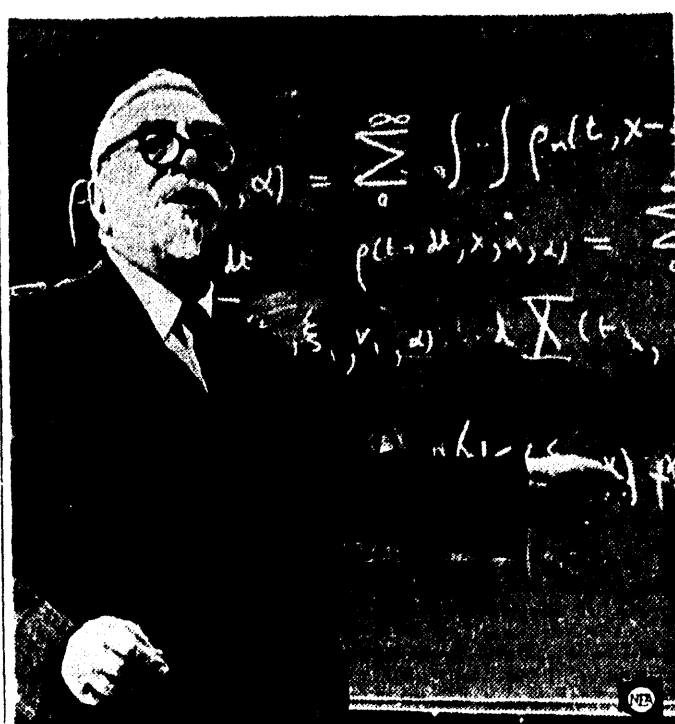

Wiener could claim the title of philosopher of the computer age, because he is the founder of the study of cybernetics—the study of how much of man is machine-like and thus how machines can be made like men and, by and by, like supermen.

Once a child prodigy and now institute professor emeritus at M.I.T., the 67-year-old Wiener is walking for two broken parts to mend, following his random access down a flight of stairs. Eager to get back to work, he spews forth ideas at a rate that gives men hope that he may retain his upper hand over the Machine.

On Magic: Our new learning machines are literal-minded, like Aladdin's lamp and the other agencies of magic in the old fables. If we ask a boon from computers, we must ask for what we really want and not for what we think we want. If we program a machine for winning a war, we had better know exactly what we mean by "winning." Otherwise, we may find the ghost (we have really asked for) knocking at our door.

On Evil: But we are going hog-wild with computers today. We are putting them to unsuitable jobs and wasting more money in the process than you can imagine. Moreover, we are using computers to escape responsibility—or at least divide it. We are asking computers to make our moral decisions for us.

On Programming: Unless we begin to ask ourselves each time if the machine is appropriate to do what we want done, we will find our new devices educated as merely good stooges for the machines. Unless we stop using machines in place of ideas, the present downward trend in our science will continue. Unless we stop and go back to hand, deck and black-swing.

On the U. S. vs. Russia: We are ahead—but only slightly ahead—in hardware like computers. But we also are far more rigidly programmed than Russia. Look at our joy over teaching machines. It gives me the willies. We think of slides as being visual aids, but we forget that books are visual aids, too. On Russia vs. the U. S.: Russia has stayed close to the European gymnasium method of teaching. She is, therefore, far ahead of us in systems—in dealing with ideas and concepts rather than hardware. She may be under-designed in parts, but we are under-designed in the whole.

Maybe we should make bigger mistakes. I have always refused to take an active part in our space program. It is a moon dog. The scandals in science that will come out of this program will make your head corrupt her science, too.

'Midwestern Hospitality' Is Not Just A Cliche When...

Kansas City Is 'At Home' To Visitors From Abroad

By MARY KAY FLYNN

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. KANSAS CITY, Mo. — (NEA) — There are those Americans who go to foreign countries to extend a hand of goodwill.

Then there are those at home to do the same.

Here in the "Heart of America," a crop of 500 families opens its homes to foreign students and visitors in the Greater Kansas City area.

In hosting the guests from abroad, pretense and extraordinary entertaining are discouraged. The foreign visitor, who is made to feel at home, is given the chance to observe the individual volunteer family's usual way to life.

Though language and professional compatibility between host and guest may be considered in placement, the prospective host makes one thing clear. Whether the host family is large or small and lives in a plush or modest home, it willingly accepts the guests as "people" without reservations as to race, creed or nationality.

The Greater Kansas City Committee for International Students has been created here to coordinate the hospitality efforts of 23 local groups. The committee, in addition to lending a helping hand to foreign students, also assists in hosting for foreign guests of U.S. government agencies.

In the past 18 months, the committee has arranged dinner engagements in local homes for more than 150 overseas visitors who came to the Kansas City area under the auspices of the city's Human Relations Commission.

Each year, the committee joins Fellowship House and the Naturalization Council in sponsoring a community reception for international students, doctors, nurses and teachers from abroad who work or study in the Kansas City area. There are 270 names on the current invitation list for that event and holidays.

Foreign students who come here under Fulbright scholarships spend a weekend in local homes. That, too, is arranged by the committee. This year, the nearly 60 Fulbright scholars were entertained in that fashion.

Fight Fire At Concord Home Over 2 Hours

Fire destroyed the contents of the Russel Surratt home in Concord and ruined the interior of the two story frame home.

Members of the Chapin and Aranzville fire departments responded to the alarm at 9:30 a.m. The blaze was fought for over 2 1/2 hours before being brought under control.

Estimate of damages was made at over $3,000. The Surratts are parents of a number of school age children.

Scheherazade talked for 1001 nights to keep her husband from killing her.

Other foreign students touring the country under the sponsorship of the Committee on Friendly Relations Among Foreign Students, headquartered in New York, also are welcomed into the Kansas City fold.

So it is not surprising that there is always room for one more at the home of Mrs. John P. Monaghan in a Kansas City suburb. (Sometimes, to make room for that one more, in mild weather, her young sons just move out to the lawn, bed rolls in hand.)

Mrs. Monaghan is the committee's general chairman and one of its founders. Her reasons for participating so strongly are simple. "We benefit as much as our guests do from the host program," she said.

She believes the committee must serve the visitors "not misuse

No One Expected Earthquake In River Valley 150 Years Ago

CAIRO, Ill. (AP) — Glacier-plained valley of the Mississippi River seems an unlikely place for an earthquake. At least it seemed unlikely 150 years ago on Dec. 15.

William Boone, cousin of Daniel Boone, presumably was more concerned with river currents and submerged snags as he guided his flatboat down the Mississippi past what later would be Missouri and Southern Illinois.

The handful of pioneers scattered along the shores were anticipating the usual uneventful winter. But within 24 hours, one of history's most severe series of earthquakes began shaking the Mississippi Valley from St. Louis to Memphis.

Early Dec. 16, 1811, residents of the frontier town of New Madrid—now in southeastern Missouri—were driven into cold night air by a violent earth tremor that upset furniture, split walls of log cabins, shattered roofs and crumbled chimneys.

To the horrified pioneers, the tremors and shocks that followed through 1812 were blended into one—the New Madrid earthquake.

Observers in Louisville, Ky., using clock pendulums as measuring devices, recorded 1,874 separate shocks from Dec. 16 to March 16. The three most severe quakes occurred Dec. 16, Jan. 23, and Feb. 7.

The activity was concentrated in a broad strip of 30,000-50,000 square miles along the Mississippi from Cairo to Memphis.

The earthquake was felt in Boston, Baltimore, Canada, New Orleans, the Rocky Mountains and Washington, D.C., an area of about a million square miles. Geologists note the famous San Francisco earthquake of 1906 was felt only 300 miles to the east.

Southern Illinois had a sparse population in 1811-12. But the succession of tremors centering in the New Madrid area left their mark in frontier settlements more than 100 miles to the north.

Chimneys collapsed in the former town of Kaskaskia. An ancient powder magazine built in Cahokia by a merchant still displays wall cracks received from the shocks.

Fort Massac on the Ohio River near the future site of Metropolis was badly shaken Feb. 7. The commanding officer of the fort requested—and received—$200 from Washington for repair of damage to the fort's buildings.

Chimneys toppled in Cincinnati, Ohio, and in Cape Girardeau, Mo. Most log cabins on the frontier were unwittingly suited to survive an earthquake. Historical accounts, therefore, usually refer to damage to brick and stone structures.

Records of deaths and injuries from the earthquake are conflicting. A New Madrid man died when a cabin collapsed. Several persons were drowned when boats on the wave-tossed Mississippi overturned.

William Boone, one of the first men to operate a flatboat commercially on the river, had left the mouth of Kincaid Creek in Jackson County, Ill., bound for New Orleans.

He and the Negro slave who accompanied him later related the violence of the water. The flatboat weathered the quake, but smaller craft—particularly canoes—were found overturned and their occupants missing.

Other persons died when river banks collapsed and swept them into the river. Islands were submerged and twisting of earth about the river destroyed an estimated 150,000 acres of forest.

Wide areas settled 3-9 feet under the shaking. A deeper depression was created in western Tennessee into which the Mississippi overflowed. The result was 20-mile-long Reelfoot Lake, now an anachronism for sportsmen. Minor earth tremors in the region had been noted from 1790-1810. Indians told of a major earthquake prior to the coming of the white man, and geologic evidence confirms the Indians' reports.

But geologists say the New Madrid earthquake would have been one of history's major disasters had it occurred in a heavily populated area rather than the Mississippi Valley of 1811.

EVENING UNIT OF HOME BUREAU HAS HELPFUL PROGRAM

The Jacksonville evening unit of Home Bureau met with Mrs. Alfred Lamkular. The home was beautifully decorated with Christmas ideas made by various members of the unit, in keeping with the lesson for the month.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Mrs. Edward Scott. The pledge to the flag was given by the members. Mrs. Scott read the highlights and a vote was taken to donate money toward the banquet for the 4-H leaders. It was decided to bring gifts for the forgotten patients at the Jacksonville State Hospital. There will also be a gift exchange for the members, something that each has made and cost 50 cents. There will also be a potluck and each member is to bring a covered dish and table service.

The roll call was answered by showing something that members have made.

The minor lesson was given by Mrs. Mildred Vasey on "Accidental Poisoning." The major lesson was given by Mrs. Mae Hunt, Mrs. Inez Scott and Mrs. Mary Quintal. This was "Christmas by the Yard." The ladies each had taken a portion of the lesson and showed how to make many things for Christmas.

Mrs. Lamkular with Mrs. Dennis Pierson as assistant hostess served delicious refreshments of sandwiches, cookies, nuts and coffee.

Tree Lighting Opens Season At State Hospital

On Monday afternoon, Dec. 18, Jacksonville State Hospital will officially open its 1961 Christmas Season with its annual tree-lighting ceremony. The program will be held in front of the administration building at 4 p.m.

A special feature of this year's event, will be a dedication of the newly purchased nativity scene, located on the fish pool. This scene contains 15 figures: the Holy Family, the Christ Child, Mary and Joseph; the three wise men; three shepherds, a guardian angel, a cow, three sheep, and a donkey. All of the figures are arranged before a rustic stable resting in yellow straw.

The Christmas program will begin with an invocation by the hospital chaplain, Rev. Darwin Clupper, after which, Dr. Sophie N. Leschin, superintendent, will officially welcome the group.

This year, the two majestic blue spruces, planted in 1934, when Hayden Walker was business manager at the institution, were decorated with colored lights for the first time. As a special consideration, Walker will be on hand to flip the switch, lighting the two trees.

Mrs. Michael O. Driscoll, of Our Saviour's Church, will present a short devotional service.

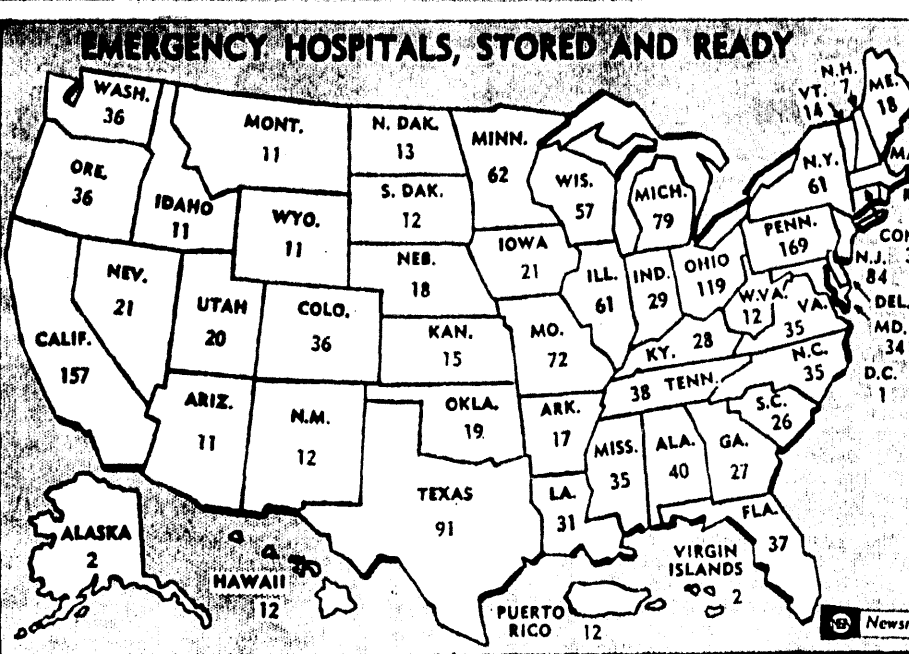

Mrs. Alta Eisch, music therapist, and her little group of musicians, will lead the congregation in singing many of the old Christmas carols.

At the close of the ceremony, Rev. Clupper will offer the benediction.

Those patients, who desire to attend the ceremony, will be allowed to do so. Anyone in the community, who would like to be present for the program, is cordially invited.

To a lot of folks who live in the South and Southwest winter doesn't mean much more than shorter days and slightly cooler or damper weather. Still, winter begins officially on December 22nd... which also happens to be one day after the date the Pilgrims landed in 1620. Only it was cold when and where they landed... wonder how we'd make out in a strange, rough country on the edge of winter, knowing it was up to us and our small group to find food and shelter in the unknown wilderness? It took a lot of courage and faith... and those were prime factors in the development of the great nation we now call the United States. Sometimes these days we are apt to forget the importance of faith and courage... to our country, and to ourselves. Now, at this time of year, is a good time to renew that faith.

The Booming Sounds In Southeast Asia Mean...

Elephants Find Domesticity

HEADIN' FOR the last round-up—Thailand style.

By Newspaper Enterprise Assn. BANGKOK, Thailand (NEA)—What are those booming sounds coming from the jungles of Thailand?

The world will be cheered to know that it doesn't mean that another Southeast Asian nation is coming under Communist rule. The noise is the pounding of elephant feet as another herd of these animals is stampeded into domesticity.

The elephant roundup in this ancient country is taking place again, as it has throughout the years late in the fall.

This time, the spectacle is being watched by foreign visitors. In time to come, the international set, bored with the Riviera and the Taj Mahal, may decide that the Thailand elephant roundup is the "thing to see" before hitting the opera season in Paris. Until recent years, the jungle of Thailand—formerly Siam—was swarmed with wild elephants, but they are now thinned out. The pachyderm is still vital as a beast of burden to the economy of the country; hence the yearly roundup.

Despite much snorting and stampeding during their capture, they soon adopt the "If you can't lick 'em, join 'em" attitude, and they quickly become docile. With the spotting of the wild herds the spectacle is under way.

Then beaters move through the brush, beating out a wide line with bamboo sticks and tin cans. Jolted from their reveries about the good life, the elephants move quickly away from the noise, naturally, right into a "kraal," a corral.

Their training then begins. And the animals are taught to work as the "heavy machinery" of the jungle.

In this noisy and rugged manner, business goes on as usual in the venerable country of Thailand.

Britain's Stately Homes Are Called Sitting Ducks For The Art Robbers

By TOM A. CULLEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn. LONDON (NEA)—Britain's noble lords are quaking in their noble boots for their stately homes could be next on the list compiled by the master thieves responsible for the recent international epidemic of picture stealing.

Millions of dollars of art masterpieces have been stolen from museums and private collections in France, the U.S. and England.

Thus far, the only theft in England has been that of Goya's "Duke of Wellington," the $302,000 portrait snatched from under the noses of the guards at the National Gallery here. But according to a British private detective, with whom I discussed the art thefts, England would be a natural spot for the criminals to concentrate operations. He says: "I wouldn't give you tuppence for the security arrangements in most of the stately homes. Most of these dual estates are sitting ducks for the first robber that comes along."

The detective doubts whether the theft of Goya's work of the gang that was working in France. He thinks the Goya looks more like the work of a crank.

Why does he think the stately homes of England are such pushovers for international crooks? "First of all, they've got the loot—acres and acres of Titians, Rembrandts and Van Dycks."

"Secondly, most of the stately homes from Blenheim Palace to the Duke of Bedford's Woburn Abbey are open to the public at half a crown (about 35 cents) per head."

"Thirdly, their art treasures are badly guarded. Most of the aristocrats are too tight to hire adequate staff, and they depend upon the loyalty of their own families to keep an eye on the silverware."

"Your would-be Raffles pays his hall crown at the door and can case the stately joint at his ease, taking his time to pick out the paintings or the gold plate that is most easily transportable. All he has to do then is to come back for the loot."

AT THE DUKE of Bedford's Woburn Abbey, the silver and gold plate is stacked up like everyday china.

When the Duke of Buccleuch visited the Louvre in Paris, the curator apologized because the museum could offer nothing to match the duke's own collection case the stately joint at his ease, taking his time to pick out the paintings or the gold plate that is most easily transportable. All he has to do then is to come back for the loot.

"The wonder is," the detective concluded, "that the peerage hasn't already been robbed blind."

The stately homes are not only repositories for some of Britain's finest paintings, but of jewelry and antique furniture as well.

The 100 finest diamonds in the world, 60, reportedly, are in English hands.

Another English duke owns a collection of illuminated manuscripts second only to those once held by the kings of Spain. Most of these privately-owned collections are heavily insured, which makes them even more vulnerable to theft, in one sense. In a recent case where stolen paintings were recovered, the insurance company involved is known to have paid the ransom demanded with no questions asked.

ADVERTISE—IT PAYS

NEW CIVIL DEFENSE WRINKLE—Leslie Palmer, civil defense director of Waukesha County, Wis., scurries out of the way after setting off a small aerial bomb as a civil defense signal. Palmer suggests using fireworks bombs to warn parents their children are being sent home from school because of an emergency. Bombs can be heard three miles, their smoke seen farther. Palmer considers his plan instant mass communication.

No One Expected Earthquake In River Valley 150 Years Ago

CAIRO, Ill. (AP) — Glacier-planned valley of the Mississippi River seems an unlikely place for an earthquake. At least it seemed unlikely 150 years ago on Dec. 15.

William Boone, cousin of Daniel Boone, presumably was more concerned with river currents and submerged snags as he guided his flatboat down the Mississippi past what later would be Missouri and Southern Illinois.

The handful of pioneers scattered along the shores were anticipating the usual uneventful winter. But within 24 hours, one of history's most severe series of earthquakes began shaking the Mississippi Valley from St. Louis to Memphis.

Early Dec. 16, 1811, residents of the frontier town of New Madrid—now in southeastern Missouri—were driven into cold night air by a violent earth tremor that upset furniture, split walls of log cabins, shattered roofs and crumbled chimneys.

To the horrified pioneers, the tremors and shocks that followed through 1812 were blended into one—the New Madrid earthquake.

Observers in Louisville, Ky., using clock pendulums as measuring devices, recorded 1,874 separate shocks from Dec. 16 to March 16. The three most severe quakes occurred Dec. 16, Jan. 23, and Feb. 7.

The activity was concentrated in a broad strip of 30,000-50,000 square miles along the Mississippi from Cairo to Memphis.

The earthquake was felt in Boston, Baltimore, Canada, New Orleans, the Rocky Mountains and Washington, D.C., an area of about a million square miles. Geologists note the famous San Francisco earthquake of 1906 was felt only 300 miles to the east.

Southern Illinois had a sparse population in 1811-12. But the succession of tremors centering in the New Madrid area left their mark in frontier settlements more than 100 miles to the north.

Chimneys collapsed in the former town of Kaskaskia. An ancient powder magazine built in Cahokia by a merchant still displays wall cracks received from the shocks.

Fort Massac on the Ohio River near the future site of Metropolis was badly shaken Feb. 7. The commanding officer of the fort requested—and received—$200 from Washington for repair of damage to the fort's buildings.

Chimneys toppled in Cincinnati, Ohio, and in Cape Girardeau, Mo. Most log cabins on the frontier were unwittingly suited to survive an earthquake. Historical accounts, therefore, usually refer to damage to brick and stone structures.

Records of deaths and injuries from the earthquake are conflicting. A New Madrid man died when a cabin collapsed. Several persons were drowned when boats on the wave-tossed Mississippi overturned.

William Boone, one of the first men to operate a flatboat commercially on the river, had left the mouth of Kincaid Creek in Jackson County, Ill., bound for New Orleans.

He and the Negro slave who accompanied him later related the violence of the water. The flatboat weathered the quake, but smaller craft—particularly canoes—were found overturned and their occupants missing.

Other persons died when river banks collapsed and swept them into the river. Islands were submerged and twisting of earth along the river destroyed an estimated 150,000 acres of forest.

Wide areas settled 3-9 feet under the shaking. A deeper depression was created in western Tennessee into which the Mississippi overflowed. The result was 20-mile-long Reelfoot Lake, now an attraction for sportsmen.

Minor earth tremors in the region had been noted from 1790-1810. Indians told of a major earthquake prior to the coming of the white man, and geologic evidence confirms the Indians' reports.

But geologists say the New Madrid earthquake would have been one of history's major disasters had it occurred in a heavily populated area rather than the Mississippi Valley of 1811.

EVENING UNIT OF HOME BUREAU HAS HELPFUL PROGRAM

The Jacksonville evening unit of Home Bureau met with Mrs. Alfred Lamkular. The home was beautifully decorated with Christmas ideas made by various members of the unit, in keeping with the lesson for the month.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Mrs. Edward Scott. The pledge to the flag was given by the members. Mrs. Scott read the highlights and a vote was taken to donate money toward the banquet for the 4-H leaders. It was decided to bring gifts for the forgotten patients at the Jacksonville State Hospital. There will also be a gift exchange for the members, something that each has made and cost 50 cents. There will also be a potluck and each member is to bring a covered dish and table service.

The roll call was answered by showing something that members have made.

The minor lesson was given by Mrs. Mildred Vasey on "Accidental Poisoning." The major lesson was given by Mrs. Mae Hunt, Mrs. Inez Scott and Mrs. Mary Quinlan. This was "Christmas by the Yard." The ladies each had taken a portion of the lesson and showed how to make many things for Christmas.

Mrs. Lamkular with Mrs. Dennis Pierson as assistant hostess served delicious refreshments of sandwiches, cookies, nuts and coffee.

The Booming Sounds In Southeast Asia Mean...

Elephants Find Domesticity

HEADIN' FOR the last roundup—Thailand style.

By Newspaper Enterprise Assn. BANGKOK, Thailand — (NEA)—What are those booming sounds coming from the jungles of Thailand?

The world will be cheered to know that it doesn't mean that another Southeast Asian nation is coming under Communist gunfire. The noise is the pounding of elephant feet as another herd of these animals is stampeded into domesticity.

The elephant roundup in this ancient country is taking place again, as it has throughout the years late in the fall.

This time, the spectacle is being watched by foreign visitors. In time to come, the international set, bored with the Riviera and the Taj Mahal, may decide that the Thailand elephant roundup is the "thing to see" before hitting the opera season in Paris. Until recent years, the jungle of Thailand — formerly Siam — swarmed with wild elephants, but they are now thinned out. The pachyderm is still vital as a beast of burden to the economy of the country; hence the yearly roundup.

Despite much snorting and stampeding during their capture, they soon adopt the "If you can't lick 'em, join 'em" attitude, and they quickly become docile. With the spotting of the wild herds the spectacle is under way.

Then beaters move through the brush, beating out a wild tangle with bamboo sticks and tin cans. Jolted from their reveries about the good life, the elephants move quickly away from the noise, naturally, right into a "kral" corral.

Their training then begins. And the animals are taught to work as the "heavy machinery" of the jungle.

In this noisy and rugged manner, business goes on as usual in the venerable country of Thailand.

Britain's Stately Homes Are Called Sitting Ducks For The Art Robbers

By TOM A. CULLEN

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. LONDON — (NEA) — Britain's noble lords are quaking in their noble boots for their stately homes could be next on the list compiled by the master thieves responsible for the recent international epidemic of picture stealing.

Millions of dollars of art masterpieces have been stolen from museums and private collections in France, the U.S. and England.

Thus far, the only theft in England has been that of Goya's "Duke of Wellington," the $392,000 portrait snatched from under the noses of the guards at the National Gallery here. But according to a British private detective, with whom I discussed the art thefts, England would be a natural spot for the criminals to concentrate operations. He says:

"I wouldn't give you tuppence for the security arrangements in most of the stately homes. Most of these ducal estates are sitting ducks for the first robber that comes along."

The detective doubts whether the theft of the Goya is the work of the gang that was working in France. He thinks the Goya looks more like the work of a crank.

Why does he think the stately homes of England are such pushovers for international crooks? "First of all, they've got the loot—acres and acres of Titians, Rembrandts and Van Dycks."

"Secondly, most of the stately homes from Blenheim Palace to the Duke of Bedford's Woburn Abbey are open to the public at half a crown (about 35 cents) per head.

"Thirdly, their art treasures are badly guarded. Most of the aristocrats are too tight to hire adequate staff, and they depend upon members of their own families to keep an eye on the silverware.

"Your would-be Raffles pays his half crown at the door and can case the stately joint at his ease, taking his time to pick out the paintings or the gold plate that is most easily transportable. All he has to do then is to come back for the loot."

"The wonder is," the detective concluded, "that the peerage hasn't already been robbed blind."

The stately homes are not only repositories for some of Britain's finest paintings, but of jewelry and antique furniture as well, of the 100 finest diamonds in the world, 60, reportedly, are in English hands.

When the Duke of Buccleuch visited the Louvre in Paris, the curator apologized because the museum could offer nothing to match the duke's own collection of French furniture.

Another English duke owns a collection of illuminated manuscripts second only to those once held by the kings of Spain.

Most of these privately-owned collections are heavily insured, which makes them even more vulnerable to theft, in one sense. In a recent case where stolen paintings were recovered, the insurance company involved is known to have paid the ransom demanded with no questions asked.

N. Mexico S. Wins Scoring And Rushing Title For 3rd Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Sophomore James (Preacher) Pilot, who led the nation's major colleges in scoring and rushing this season, retained those titles for New Mexico State for an unprecedented third straight year, NCAA statistics showed Saturday.

Pilot follows former Aggies Bob Galters, now with the New York Giants, who was the rushing-scoring champion a year ago, and Pervis Atkins, now of the Los Angeles Rams, who led the nation in both departments in 1959. No other team has supplied a titlist in both departments more than once.

Pilot, a 5-foot-10, 195-pound tailback from Kingsville, Tex., was the rushing leader from midseason on, but didn't gain the scoring lead until his final game against Hardin Simmons. The performance pushed the rushing total to 1,278 yards and scoring to 138 points. Pistol Pete Pedro of West Texas State was second in each category with 976 yards and 132 points. Pedro scored the most touchdowns, 22.

In other departments, Navy's near-sighted end Greg Mathers set a modern record for scoring by kicking alone. He had 11 field goals and 22 extra points for 55 kicking points. Pilot's teammate, end Pete Smolanovich, kicked a record 38 consecutive conversions before missing one.

Dave (Hoppy) Hoppman of Iowa State was the busiest ball-carrier, totting 229 times for 920 yards. Jim Saxton of Texas made the most of his carries, averaging 7.9 yards a try.

Neal Switch Closes Inter-League Deals For Baseball Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A flurry of last-minute activity with Charley Neal going from the Los Angeles Dodgers to the New York Mets in one of the principal deals — closed out baseball's inter-league trading season.

In all, there were five transactions, a pair of them engineered by Kansas City just minutes before the interleague trading deadline at midnight Friday night.

Kansas City swapped three players for four men in the minors in its two deals. Pitcher Bob Shaw and reserve infielder Lou Klimchuck went to Milwaukee for three rookies at Vancouver — outfielder Manny Jimenez who hit .325 last season; infielder Ed Charles, .305 and catcher Jose Azucar, .297.

In the other, catcher Joe Pizarano went to San Francisco for outfielder Jose Tartabull, who hit .306 for Victor in the Texas League last season.

The Mets, aiming for a representative ball club for their National League debut, acquired Neal in exchange for infielder-outfielder Lee Walls, $100,000 in cash and an unnamed rookie to be delivered by the spring.

In the other deal, Cincinnati sent catcher Bob Schmidt and pitcher Dave Stenhouse to Washington for outfielder Marty Krogh and another player to be named later. Philadelphia bought third baseman Andy Carey from the Chicago White Sox for an undisclosed sum. The Phils will send two minor leaguers to the White Sox and receive one to complete the deal.

The trade that brought Neal to the Mets was one of the more important of the trading season.

Neal, 30, has played second base during most of his six years in the National League.

Neal was the Dodgers' batting star in the 1959 World Series against Chicago.

Among the other major deals was the swap of Houston pitcher Sam Jones to Detroit for pitchers Bob Bruce and Pete Montejó. Jones, one of San Francisco's top pitchers who suffered from arm trouble last year, was picked up by Houston in the player draft.

SIU Victors Over Northern 80-56

DE KALB, Ill. (AP) — Southern Illinois University scored an easy 80-56 basketball victory over Northern Illinois University at DeKalb Saturday night.

Forward Dave Hensen led Southern to its 2nd Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference victory in as many starts with 30 points. Forward Terry Kulp scored 22 points for the losers.

Southern has a 4 and 2 season record. Northern has a 3 and 1 season mark.

NO SALE

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — When Albert Grestreth offered Frank Bartlett 300 pounds—$840—for Mrs. Bartlett, Frank hauled off and hit him with a wrench.

Nottingham magistrates were told Friday that 51-year-old Frank, father of three children, had been happily married for 19 years. Then his wife, Veronica, 37, left him to live with Grestreth.

2 Chances Open To AFL Eastern Title For Oilers

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

Associated Press Sports Writer

Houston goes to Oakland Sunday with two chances of winning the Eastern Division championship of the American Football League.

If Houston beats Oakland, and failure to do so would be the Oilers will be champions and can look toward the league playoff Dec. 24 with San Diego, king of the Western Division.

But Houston could lose to Oakland and still win the title if Boston were defeated by San Diego, whom the Patriots play at San Diego Sunday. Chances of Boston losing to San Diego are pretty good, too.

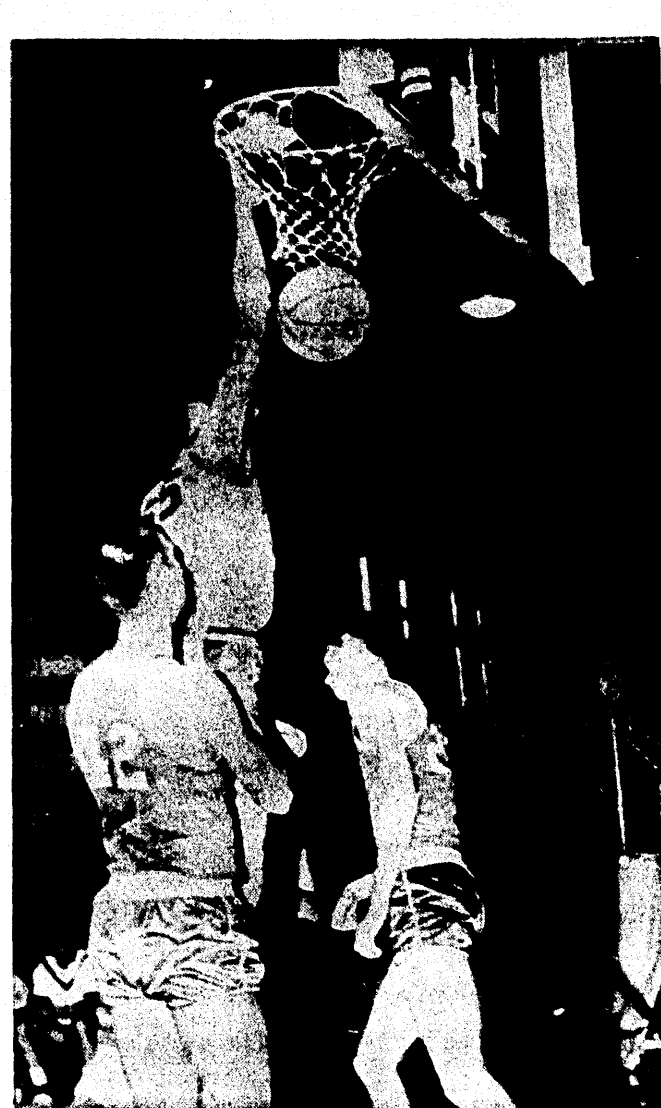

Thus, it would appear, Houston should feel pretty complacent about it all, which is something Coach Wally Lemm would not want.

Oakland was walloped 55-0 by Houston when the teams met the first week of the season. Since then the Raiders have managed only two victories and are in last place in the Western Division and in the entire league.

While the hour of decision is going on out in the West, New York and Dallas will be putting a drab finish to the campaign with their final game in Dallas. New York has seven victories but six losses. Dallas has won five and lost eight.

Denver and Buffalo have finished the season.

In 1973 New York made Memorial Day a legal holiday. Soon nearly all states followed suit.

IC's senior center Bill Schildman is shown dunking a two pointer in last night's game against Millikin University which the Blueboys won, 66-64.

Foldberg Named To A&M Post

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Henry C. (Hank) Foldberg, coach of Wichita, was named head coach and athletic director of Texas A&M Saturday, thus returning to the school where he got his start in college football.

The 38-year-old Dallas native was picked to succeed Jim Myers, who spent four frustrating years as headman of the Aggies and who was fired the day after he finished his last season.

Three weeks later Foldberg, who played freshman football at A&M in 1941 and then varsity football at West Point, was selected as the best prospect for pulling the Aggies out of the doldrums.

Foldberg got a five-year contract at $17,000 a year and will come here to take over after the Sun Bowl game at El Paso Dec. 30 where his Wichita team plays Villanova.

It was known for days that Foldberg would be the new coach but college officials would make no announcement.

A&M was clamping on a strict censorship of the news because of unhappy experiences of four years ago when it filled the job vacated by Bear Bryant, Bryant, who built A&M back to a national power, left to coach Alabama. Duffy Daugherty, Red Sanders, Eddie Erdelatz and Frank Leahy were announced as coach only to have each appointment fizzle out.

Myers first turned down the job then took it upon receiving a long petition from the student body.

Dr. Chris Groneman, chairman of the A&M athletic council, announced the appointment of Foldberg, explaining that he had unanimous approval of the recommendation from the college system board of directors.

Foldberg will be returning not only to the scene of his first college football but his earliest coaching as well—he was assistant here in 1951 when Ray George was head coach.

He was assistant coach at Florida from 1952 to 1960 and previously had served as assistant at Miami, Baylor, Purdue and Texas A&M.

St. Bonaventure Cager Sets Mark With 36 In Win

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Miles Aiken set a scoring record Saturday night as he led St. Bonaventure to a 73-72 victory over Louisville for the championship of the Bluegrass Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Texas defeated Western Kentucky 76-68 in the consolation game.

Aiken scored 36 points and had a two-game total of 58 points—a record high for the tournament.

A ball-hawking Louisville team rattled the visitors during the first half and the Cardinals went out in front as much as seven points.

St. Bonaventure rallied and moved to a 42-34 halftime lead.

Louisville came back strong and with 11:18 left in the game tied the score at 49-49.

Then Aiken drove under the basket and collected a three-pointer. The Bonnies were never headed after that.

Bud Olsen led the Cardinals with 23 points.

Aiken was named most valuable player of the tournament.

Bearcats Annex 27th Straight

CINCINNATI (AP) — The University of Cincinnati basketball Bearcats chalked up their 27th straight win and fifth of the season, trouncing Marshall University 77-49 Saturday night.

Senior forward Fred Dierking sparked the Bearcats with a total of 19 points.

Four Bearcats hit the double-figure column in scoring.

Wildcats Topple Creighton 59-56

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Northwestern, led by Bill Cacciatore and Rick Loposa, defeated Creighton, 59-56, in a non-conference basketball encounter Saturday night.

The Wildcats, leading all the way through the first half, were ahead, 25-23, at intermission.

They lost their advantage at 31-29 early in the second half but Cacciatore tied it with a field goal and Northwestern went ahead to stay on a basket by Loposa with the score 35-33.

Cacciatore led the Wildcats with 15 points and Loposa had 14. Herb Millard of Creighton had 19 points and teammate Paul Silas added 17.

The victory gave Northwestern a 2-3 record. Creighton is now 3-2.

Fan Breezes

By JACK FAIRFIELD

Jacksonville High School athletes have found Northeast Missouri State Teacher's College to be still another stepping stone in their already notable athletic careers.

Milt McPike and Ned Jackson were the first to journey to Kirksville, Mo., and they have been followed by Bob Watts and Ken Norton. Although Jackson is no longer with that institution, McPike has already carved a name for himself in the Bulldogs' history books and Norton may well be on his way.

Milt was an outstanding football, basketball, and track performer for the Crimsons and he has excelled in these three at Kirksville, but the sport where he really sparkled is football.

The 65", 235 pound senior had lettered in football, basketball, and track for three years running and he clinaxed a great college career by being named All Conference and has been picked as the twelfth draft choice of the San Francisco 49ers professional football team.

A representative of the NFL entry has been expected in Kirksville to sign Milt on the strength of his pass catching and kicking abilities.

The 22-year-old McPike is majoring in physical education and industrial arts and played end on offense and safety on defense which is a key to his tremendous speed and power with his size is the ideal combination for a pass defender.

The Bulldogs won 9 and lost 1 and picked up their second consecutive Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association Conference Championship and both McPike and Watts were very instrumental in the victories.

This was Milt's fourth varsity letter in football and Watts' second and although Norton is just a freshman he played a good deal of ball.

A key to "Big Milt's" value to the Bulldogs was related in the game against Springfield, Mo. With 29 seconds remaining and Springfield leading 7-6 Kirksville took over and fired three passes.

McPike's catch was the final play of the game and the Bulldogs had covered 83 yards in three plays to win the game, the conference title, and a trip to the Mineral Water Bowl at Excelsior Springs, Mo.

Coaches Bob Kraushaar and Al Rosenberger have done another excellent job of preparing their squad members for what may be ahead. In Milt's case it was a tremendous athletic career at a fine Missouri college and in the words of a clipping received from Rosenberger, he is, "One of the most celebrated athletes ever to attend Kirksville."

Congratulations to Milt McPike, Bob Watts, and Ken Norton and to coaches Kraushaar and Rosenberger for a job well done and one in which every one associated with the parties involved must be proud of.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP) — Lighter marketings contributed to firmness in butcher fat prices last week and they moved up 25 to 50 cents a pound, with the top going to $1.45 on one day, the highest in 15 months.

Lamb prices for most pack cuts in the whole trade also were stronger, with fat cuts up to $1.45 a pound, and some $1.40 a pound. But fat was steady to $1.10 lower.

Shippers were good buyers throughout the week. Their preference was for the lighter weights, generally under 250 lbs. Slaughter prices were irregular, moving to 25 cents lower with the decline in fat prices, and below. Buyers noted that the lambs in the lot were better than early in the week had been, but well before the close.

The Monday supply was the largest in about three months and the total for the week was up 10 per cent from a week ago. It was the heaviest run of the year.

With dressed lamb carcasses selling at their lowest level since May, the market for slaughter lambs turned downward with losses running to 50 cents a hundredweight. Offerings were 17 per cent above last week.

CHICAGO (AP) — USDA — Following is a summary of the hog, cattle and sheep markets for the week:

U.N. Forces Take 3 Katanga Bases

(Continued From Page One) capital said it seemed impossible that the 2,000-man Katangan army with its white officers could hold out much longer against the onslaught of 6,000 Swedish, Irish and Indian Gurkha troops.

Morale was low among the Katangans. White officers in Jeeps rode the streets trying to rally them. The officers even called on male refugees in the Leopold II Hotel to join the fighting.

All direct communications were cut between Elisabethville and the outside world. Newsman carrying dispatches out to Rhodesia reported white mercenaries feverishly fortifying positions south of the capital, apparently for another stand.

Camp Massart, recently renamed Camp Tshombe, was captured by three Swedish companies who broke the resistance of 350 Katangan defenders, the U.N. announced.

No Swedish troops were killed but five were wounded in capturing the camp, the U.N. said. It was considered the last stronghold of the Katanga secessionists, a semi-military police unit, in Elisabethville.

Earlier in the day, two other strongholds fell, U.N. reports said. Swedish and Irish troops captured the railroad tunnel commanding the main road into the city from the eastern suburbs after a night of heavy fighting.

On the western outskirts, U.N. forces captured the Lido Hotel and golf course commanding another important road. The U.N. said four Ethiopian soldiers were killed and five wounded. Five Katangan soldiers were found dead at the hotel, killed by mortar fire.

U.N. Gurkhas were fighting to dislodge Katangan forces from a small woods 200 yards from Tshombe's residence. It itself a stronghold in the early fighting. U.S. and British consulates are near this sector.

Thus, beside holding the northern part of the Katangan capital, U.N. forces also commanded approaches to the city from the east and west.

Although military action appeared to give the United Nations the upper hand in dealing with the Katanga resistance, it was too soon to say that this resistance has ended.

Some now expect the United Nations to press its advantage within Elisabethville, clearing out last pockets of resistance. But they believe fighting will still have to continue in other Katanga power centers, notably Jadotville and Kolwezi to the west and northwest, where many Europeans and other supporters of Katanga's separatist regime are gathered. Jadotville and Kolwezi are two principal centers for the vast mining operations of the powerful Union Miniere du Haut Katanga.

The guiding influence in soybean stemmed primarily from the markets for soybean oil and soybean meal. However, there was no prolonged trend anywhere.

A midweek rumor that the government may shut off or at least curtail its sales of surplus corn imparted a steady influence in the market but traders were in doubt about when or for how long the action would be effective.

Wheat closed the week 1 1/2 cents a bushel lower to 1 1/4 higher than a week ago. December $2.04 1/2-2; corn 1 1/2 higher to 1 1/4 lower. December $1.07 1/2-3/4; oats 1/4 higher to 1/2 lower. December 70-69 1/2; soybeans 1/4 higher to 1/2 lower. January $2.43 1/2-3/4.

It came Thursday when the market as a whole took a sharp drop and the averages showed a steep loss. But chips and "cats-and-dogs" alike retreated.

It was a one-day affair, however. Friday, although the list was a bit lower statistically, such heavyweights as American Telephone, Standard Oil (New Jersey) and U. S. Steel recovered slightly. General Motors was off only 1/4.

The market seemed to be squared away for the final week of 1961 trading, usually a week of turbulence but of generally higher prices.

The investment community was shocked during the week by the resignation of Edward T. McCormick as president of the American Stock Exchange. Irregularities on this exchange have been one of the conspicuous reasons for the current investigation of the entire security market by the Securities & Exchange Commission.

An odd footnote to McCormick's resignation was the plight of one of the stock traders, Charles H. Change, Gulf-American Land. Because of its huge previous price rise, the action of the stock is being investigated by the exchange and the SEC. During the week fell 20% points to 32 1/2.

The big feature of the New York Stock Exchange week was the admission to trading of the two Unilever issues, representing the big international combination. The total volume of these stocks was 1,845,000 shares.

Total volume for the big board was 21,010,850 shares compared with 21,010,850 the week before. The Dow Jones Industrial average this week rose 1.17 to 729.40. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 50 to 264.00. Bond prices retreated during the week for the third straight week. U.S. government bonds retreated the same as the two previous weeks, showing a firming trend in the final two sessions.

Corporates traded on the New York Stock Exchange suffered another substantial setback — equal to the previous week's as measured by the Associated Press average of 60 issues. The only steeper loss of the year by this yardstick was during the week of June 5-9. Volume totaled $35,490,000 par value compared with $35,690,000 the previous week.

THAT WANTS NO CEASE-FIRE UNTIL OBJECTIVES REACHED

Rikhye gave the Congo advisory committee latest reports on the fighting in Katanga.

With Tshombe in flight from Elisabethville and a U.N. victory in sight, there was no disposition to let up now.

"If we agree to a cease-fire now Tshombe will only grow more that he has successfully defied the United Nations," said one member of the committee.

The committee, made up of nations that have troops in the U.N. Congo force or have contributed in the past, met for 3 1/2 hours with Thiant.

Participants told reporters 13 members spoke and all expressed support for Thiant, Canada, Ireland and Sweden are the only members not Asian or African.

The entire Asian-African group at the U.N. came out solidly in support of Thiant on Thursday.

Some committee members said that Tshombe had displayed no inclination to ask the U.N. for a cease-fire, and they declared the first move should come from him.

E. GERMANY TELLS U.S. STOP MOVING MEN ON AUTOBAHN

The battle group exchange involved moving 3,000 men in about 500 vehicles along the Autobahn. The movement was completed Friday without Communist interference. It was undertaken for relief of a battle group that had been on duty in Berlin since shortly after the Communists erected their wall Aug. 13.

East Germany emphasized that it was not obliged to permit the movement of NATO troops along the highway. It added that American troop movements endangered the peace especially because the troops traveled in combat dress.

In addition the East Germans claimed civilian road traffic was threatened by the American troop movements "along this highly frequented highway." And besides, the note went on, the military traffic may be harming the highway and East Germany reserves the right to claim damages from the United States.

ARREST 230 NEGRO MARCHERS IN ALBANY

Immediately after the commission's decision was announced, Police Chief Laurie Pritchett said demonstrators they will be arrested. He said he had no definite information that a demonstration was expected, but added: "we have to anticipate them."

More than 500 persons, mostly Negroes, have been arrested in a series of anti-segregation demonstrations that began Tuesday. Less than 200 remain in jail.

The demonstrations were set off by the arrest last Sunday of seven Negroes and four white persons in an attempt to desegregate facilities at the Albany railroad station. The marching, singing protests came in support of Negroes' demands for the release of the jailed demonstrators and for the removal of segregation barriers in the city.

The commissioners charged in a statement addressed to officials of the Albany Movement that integration leader Martin Luther King Jr. of Albany, who spoke here Friday night, was encouraging violations of city and state laws.

They also said the Negroes had requested continued demonstrations and parades, barred under the terms of a truce agreed to by Negro and white leaders Thursday night.

The Negroes are asking for total and immediate desegregation of bus and train terminal facilities, establishment of a continuing biracial study committee and total and unconditional release of everyone arrested in the mass demonstrations.

Therefore, Powell said, he asked the insurance department head, Joseph P. Gerber, to inquire of the Illinois attorney general whether Gerber's department was interpreting the insurance code correctly.

The speaker said if the attorney general rules in favor of the department, Gibbs will not sell stock in the company.

The request for the opinion was made in October, Powell said. Meanwhile, he said, Gibbs' application to sell securities has been withdrawn. He said he was not acquainted with Gibbs.

Powell denied he had contracted for any fees to do public relations work for the firm.

He asserted he invested $6,000 in the investment company with the understanding this amount eventually would help underwrite the insurance company. Because of requirements that 85 per cent of investments be put in escrow, he said he was risking only $600.

Powell said he also was a district director of a 10-county area for the investment company. He said he was entitled to a share amounting to one-fourth of 1 per cent of returns from stock sales in the district, excepting the 85 per cent which had to be put in escrow.

However, he said, no one could estimate his return on this because of uncertainty about how much stock might be sold in any locality.

The insurance company has filed plans with the Insurance Department for a proposed sale of two million shares of stock.

Foul Weather Causes Crash Of Two Jets

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Two Air National Guard jet aircraft crashed Saturday when, officials said, the pilots were unable to land in foul weather. There were no casualties.

One plane crashed into a house in a west side residential area. The other came down in a farm field outside of the city.

Col. Junior F. Miller, Iowa adjutant general, said it was "purely coincidental" that both planes crashed at the same time. Earlier an Air National Guard spokesman said the planes had collided in flight.

An F86 fighter-interceptor piloted by Capt. Richard D. Ervin, 27, of Ames, crashed on top of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Sandahl at 5729 Grand Ave.

Mrs. Sandahl, who was home alone, escaped injury.

The other jet, flown by 1st Lt. Harlan J. Quamme, 24, also Ames, came down in open country 2 1/2 miles west of the Des Moines Municipal Airport.

The pilots, both students at Iowa State University, Ames, ejected from their planes and apparently landed safely by parachute.

"The accidents were the result of an overcast and freezing drizzle which quickly moved into the Municipal Airport, said Col. Roger Gilbert, commander of the 132nd Air Defense Wing.

The planes flown by Ervin and Quamme were participating in a regular Air Defense Command training mission conducted by the 132nd Fighter-Interceptor Squadron here, Gilbert said.

Officials said it would take a detailed investigation to determine the cause of the collision.

The Sandahl house was badly damaged when the jet, armed with 24 live rockets, plowed into the attached garage, kitchen and living room and set the house afire.

Mrs. Sandahl, who was in the kitchen and the ceiling, said to come in on her and then there was fire in the dining room.

Two neighbors men helped the stunned woman from the house. Police forced hundreds of sightseers from the area because of the danger of possible exploding ammunition aboard the plane.

ILLINOIS CROPS AT RECORD HIGH SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — One of the best crop years in the history of Illinois was recorded this year.

The state federal agriculture departments reported Friday that farmers produced a record corn yield of 77 bushels an acre and an all-time high of 142 million bushels of soybeans.

Corn acreage was 17 per cent below last year, 83 million acres. The departments said participation in the feed grain program was the principal reason for the reduction.

Soybean production exceeded the previous record of 142 million bushels in 1958. The 1961 crop totalled 90 million bushels, down 5.3 million from 1960.

Wheat production totalled 61 million bushels, an increase of 156 million bushels over last season. Oat yield of 56 bushels an acre tied the 1958 record. The 1961 crop totalled 90 million bushels, down 5.3 million from 1960.

Lawless' Three Second Free Throws Win Thriller For IC

Today— Brown's Trio Block Eastern Conference Title For New York

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Giants, a team that wasn't figured to set the world on fire, can win the National Football League's Eastern Conference championship Sunday by overcoming certain obstacles—the Cleveland Browns in general and Jimmy Brown, Milt Plum, Lou Groza and Bobby Mitchell in particular.

The teams square off in New York's Yankee Stadium on this final Sunday of the NFL's regular season. Even a tie would do the trick for the Giants and put them in the Dec. 31 tie show-down in Green Bay against the Packers, Western Conference kings.

The Browns are anxious to make amends for the 37-21 defeat the Giants handed them Nov. 26.

Brown and Plum are the league's top performers in two individual statistical departments—rushing and passing. Brown is shooting for his fifth straight rushing title. Plum leads the passers just as he did in 1960.

Groza, the great placekicker, established an all-time NFL scoring record with 826 points over an 11-year span last Sunday when the Browns lost 17-14 to the Chicago Bears and bowed out of championship contention.

Mitchell, the Browns' "Sunday flash" (he's in the Army the rest of the week), isn't first in anything, but the Giants are well aware that he is always a touchdown threat.

If the Giants lose, the Philadelphia Eagles could pull into a tie by whipping the Lions at Detroit. In that event, New York and Philadelphia would clash in Yankee Stadium Dec. 24 for the Eastern crown and the right to face the Packers.

Of course, if the Eagles tie or lose, the Giants would be "in" regardless.

New York is 10-3, Philadelphia 9-4, Cleveland 8-5 and Detroit, a Western team, 8-4-1.

In other Sunday games, it's Green Bay (10-3) at Los Angeles (4-9), Pittsburgh (6-7) at St. Louis (6-7), Minnesota (3-10) at Chicago (6-7) and Dallas (4-8-1) at Washington (0-12-1).

The Baltimore Colts and the 49ers played in San Francisco Saturday.

Syracuse Final Half Wins Bowl

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—

Syracuse, frustrated for two periods and trailing by two touchdowns, slammed back in the final half on the vicious running of All-America Ernie Davis and the pinpoint passing of Dave Sarette Saturday for a 15-14 victory over Miami (Fla.) in the Liberty Bowl football game.

Davis, held to 38 yards in the opening half, carried the Syracuse team on his back on a 42-yard drive in the third period, smashing over for the touchdown from the 1.

The second touchdown came on a 7-yard pass from Sarette to his favorite target, halfback Dick Easterly. In the fourth period, culminating a 51-yard march, Sarette, who out-dazzled Miami's celebrated quarterback George Mira with his passing, also hit Easterly for a two-point conversion after the first score and Ken Erickson booted the final, clinching extra point from placement, after the second.

Miami had surprised the meager crowd of 15,712 by stopping the great Davis and rushing to an early lead on a 12-yard run in the first period by Jim Vollenweider and a 60-yard punt return in the fading seconds of the opening half by sophomore Nick Spinelli.

Unitas Passes For Three TD's In Colts Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Baltimore quarterback Johnny Unitas threw three touchdown passes Saturday for a 27-24 National Football League victory over San Francisco. A 49er go-for-broke effort failed with nine seconds left.

Trailing by three points with the ball on the Baltimore 30, the home club decided against a field goal attempt and for a pass. As a crowd of 45,517 and a national television audience watched, the Colts battled down John Brodie's pass attempt to R. C. Owens in the end zone.

The Brodie-Owens combination had clicked for touchdowns twice previously in the final NFL game of the season at Kezar Stadium. The loss dropped the 49ers into fourth place in the Western Division with Baltimore moving up to third.

The veteran Unitas hit scoring strikes of 19 yards to rookie Mark Smolinski from Wyoming, 25 to veteran Jim Mutscheller and 20 to Jimmy Orr. In addition to the Unitas touchdown throws, Steve Myhra contributed field goals of 20 and 28 yards, plus three conversions.

Hayden Fry Fills SMU Grid Spot

DALLAS, Texas (AP)—Hayden Fry, assistant coach at Arkansas, was named head football coach of Southern Methodist University Saturday.

Matty Bell, athletic director of SMU, announced at a news conference that Fry had been given a four-year contract. Salary was not disclosed.

Meek has been offered a job in the SMU system to fill out a five-year option in his contract.

Golf Story On Jerry Barber Wins 1st Prize

CHICAGO (AP)—Charles Bartlett, veteran Chicago Tribune golf writer and longtime secretary of the Golf Writer's Association of America, won the top news division award in the fifth annual writing competition, it was announced Saturday.

The contest is sponsored by the GWA and a sports firm (Brunswick-MacGregor).

Bartlett's first prize was $250 in the news division on a story of Jerry Barber's (Jacksonville, Fla.) rallying victory in the 1961 PGA championship at Chicago's Olympia Fields.

The triumph was the 33rd straight in non-league action for the Illinois star.

Each team hit 33 field goals, Illinois setting that many in 79 attempts for a 418 average and the Cyclones bagging theirs in 81 shots for 407. Iowa State, losing its fourth game in five starts, made only seven free tosses in 13 tries.

Illinois trailed most of the first half before hitting 11 straight points for a 43-38 edge at intermission. The closest the visitors came to closing the gap was 46-44 early in the second half.

But with 5:26 to play, the Illinois led only 67-64. Then Doug Mills, Jerry Colaninno and Bill Burwell each made quick baskets to shoot the Cyclones back into the lead.

Nudge Millikin 66-64 As Schildman Nets 19

By MORRIS GOTSCHALL JR.

Freshman guard Jack Lawless sank two free throws in the final three seconds breaking a 64-64 deadlock to give Illinois College a hard fought victory over the "Big Blue" of Millikin University Saturday evening in Memorial Gymnasium.

Lawless, former Routt cager, came into the game with one minute and 30 seconds of play remaining. His only two points were the margin of victory for Coach Bill Morris' Blueboys who now have a 3-4 record for the season.

With four minutes left in the game IC held an 11-point lead, 62-51, following a tip-in by Sophomore Willie Kording. Forward Steve Hengst and guard Don Walker sparked a 13-point Millikin rally as IC's offense stalled with only two points.

After forward Gary Gilleland connected on a 30 foot jumper to bring the "Big Blue" within one point of IC, 64-63, Walker fouled Lawless intentionally. A technical foul was called on Walker, but Lawless missed his two free shots and Schildman missed the technical foul shot.

Thirty seconds remained in the game as IC took the ball out of bounds. DeWitt stole the ball for Millikin and was about to score when Bill Schildman stopped him. Schildman left the game on the play, being charged with his fifth personal foul. DeWitt made the first charity toss to tie the score 64-64. He missed the second shot and the rebound went to the Blueboys.

Lawless Wins It
Lawless was fouled as he attempted to drive past the key hole area for a lay-up shot. He sank the first charity toss forcing Millikin to call time out and mobilize its strategy. When play resumed Lawless sank the second shot. Don Walker received the ball and tried a desperation shot that missed its mark as the final horn sounded.

Early Lead
Bill Schildman hit six baskets and two free throws to pace the IC first half scoring. Ed Pack given a starting assignment after his fine play against Harris Teachers added three baskets and several key passes to help build up the 35-26 halftime lead. With the strong rebounding performance of Mike Bandy and Richard Sweeney the Blueboys were able to control both boards for most of the game.

Freshman Sam Campbell led the second half scoring with five baskets.

AL Batting Crown Captured By Cash; Maris Cops RBI's

BOSTON (AP)—Norm Cash of Detroit, who increased his average 75 points, won the American League batting championship in 1961 with a .361 mark, while Roger Maris of New York captured the home run and runs batted in titles.

This was confirmed Saturday with the release of the official statistics by the American League Service Bureau.

Cash, a .286 batter in 1960, was a runaway victor last season. Al Kaline, another Tigers' star, finished second with a .324 average and Jim Piersall, traded last month from Cleveland to Washington, was third at .322.

Only four other players among those eligible for the title with a minimum of 502 total appearances over the 162-game schedule wound up with averages of .300 or higher. They were Mickey Vernon, New York, .317; Jim Gentile of Baltimore and Earl Battey, Minnesota, .302 each, and Tito Francona, Cleveland, .301.

Maris, voted the circuit's most valuable player for the second straight year, had 61 home runs, a record for one season, and collected 142 runs batted in. The Yankees' right fielder also had the most total bases, 386 and shared the runs scored lead with Shanie at 132.

Cash, a first baseman, had the most hits, 193, and Kaline, an outfielder, collected the most doubles, 41. Jake Wood, Detroit's rookie second baseman, was the pace-setter in triples with 14.

Luis Aparicio, fleet shortstop of the Chicago White Sox, had 53 stolen bases to lead in this department for the sixth straight season. Aparicio also was caught stealing the most times, 13.

Detroit had the highest team batting average, .2663 to Cleveland's .2661.

N. Mexico S. Wins Scoring And Rushing Title For 3rd Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Sophomore James (Preacher) Pilot, who led the nation's major colleges in scoring and rushing this season, retained those titles for New Mexico State for an unprecedented third straight year, NCAA statistics showed Saturday.

Pilot follows former Aggie Bob Gaffers, now with the New York Giants, who was the rushing-scoring champion a year ago, and Pervis Atkins, now of the Los Angeles Rams, who led the nation in both departments in 1959. No other team has supplied a titlist in both departments more than once.

Pilot, a 5-foot-10, 195-pound tailback from Kingsville, Tex., was the rushing leader from midseason on, but didn't gain the scoring lead until his final game against Hardin Simmons. The performance pushed the rushing total to 1,278 yards and scoring to 138 points. Pilot Pete Pedro of West Texas State was second in each category with 976 yards and 132 points. Pedro scored the most touchdowns, 22.

In other departments, Navy's near-sighted end Greg Mathers set a modern record for scoring by kicking alone. He had 11 field goals and 22 extra points for 55 kicking points. Pilot's teammate, end Pete Smolanovich, kicked a record 38 consecutive conversions before missing one.

Dave (Hoppy) Hopman of Iowa State was the busiest ball-carrier, totalling 229 times for 920 yards. Jim Saxton of Texas made the most of his carries, averaging 7.9 yards a try.

Neal Switch Closes Inter-League Deals For Baseball Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A flurry of last-minute activity—with Charley Neal going from the Los Angeles Dodgers to the New York Mets in one of the principal deals—closed out baseball's inter-league trading season.

In all, there were five transactions, a pair of them engineered by Kansas City just minutes before the interleague trading deadline at midnight Friday night.

Kansas City swapped three players for four men in the minors in its two deals. Pitcher Bob Shaw and reserve infielder Lou Klimchick went to Milwaukee for three rookies at Vancouver—outfielder Manny Jimenez who hit .225 last season; infielder Ed Charles, .305 and catcher Jose Azu, .297.

In the other deal, Cincinnati sent catcher Bob Schmidt and pitcher Dave Stenhouse to Washington for outfielder Marty Keough and another player to be named later. Philadelphia bought third baseman Andy Carey from the Chicago White Sox for an undisclosed sum. The Phils will send two minor leaguers to the White Sox and receive one to complete the deal.

The trade that brought Neal to the Mets was one of the more important of the trading season. Neal, 30, has played second base during most of his six years in the National League.

Neal was the Dodgers' batting star in the 1959 World Series against Chicago.

Among the other major deals was the swap of Houston pitcher Sam Jones to Detroit for pitchers Bob Bruce and Pete Montejó.

Jones, one of San Francisco's top pitchers who suffered from arm trouble last year, was picked up by Houston in the player draft.

SIU Victors Over Northern 80-56
DE KALB, Ill. (AP) — Southern Illinois University scored an easy 80-56 basketball victory over Northern Illinois University at De Kalb Saturday night.

Forward Dave Hansen led Southern to its 2nd Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference victory in as many starts with 30 points. Forward Terry Kulp scored 22 points for the losers.

Southern has a 4 and 2 season record. Northern has a 3 and 1 season mark.

2 Chances Open To AFL Eastern Title For Oilers
By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer
Houston goes to Oakland Sunday with two chances of winning the Eastern Division championship of the American Football League.

If Houston beats Oakland, and failure to do so would be the big upset of the season, then the Oilers will be champions and can look toward the league playoff Dec. 24 with San Diego, king of the Western Division.

But Houston could lose to Oakland and still win the title if Boston were defeated by San Diego, whom the Patriots play at San Diego Sunday. Chances of Boston losing to San Diego are pretty good, too.

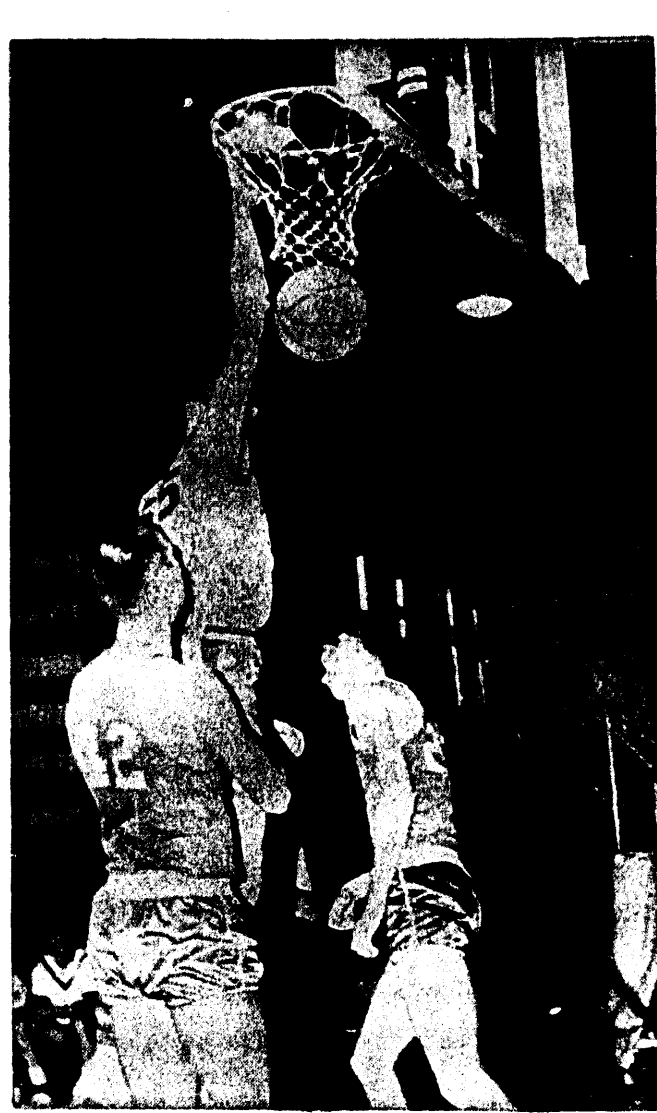

Thus, it would appear, Houston should feel pretty complacent about it all, which is something Coach Wally Lemm would not want.

Oakland was wallowed 55-0 by Houston when the teams met the first week of the season. Since then the Raiders have managed only two victories and are in last place in the Western Division and in the entire league.

While the hour of decision is going on out in the West, New York and Dallas will be putting a drab finish to the campaign with their final game in Dallas. New York has seven victories but six losses. Dallas has won five and lost eight.

Denver and Buffalo have finished the season.

In 1873 New York made Memorial Day a legal holiday. Soon nearly all states followed suit.

Foldberg Named To A&M Post

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Henry C. (Hank) Foldberg, coach of Wichita, was named head coach and athletic director of Texas A&M Saturday, thus returning to the school where he got his start in college football.

The 38-year-old Dallas native was picked to succeed Jim Myers, who spent four frustrating years as headman of the Aggies and who was fired the day after he finished his last season.

Three weeks later Foldberg, who played freshman football at A&M in 1941 and then varsity football at West Point, was selected as the best prospect for pulling the Aggies out of the doldrums.

Foldberg got a five-year contract at $17,000 a year and will come here to take over after the Sun Bowl game at El Paso Dec. 30 where his Wichita team plays Villanova.

It was known for days that Foldberg would be the new coach but college officials would make no announcement.

A&M was clamping on a strict censorship of the news because of unhappy experiences of four years ago when it filled the job vacated by Herby Bryant, Bryant, who built A&M back to a national power, left to coach Alabama. Duffy Daugherty, Red Sanders, Eddie Erdelatz and Frank Leahy were announced as coach only to have each appointment fizzle out.

Myers first turned down the job then took it upon receiving a long petition from the student body.

Dr. Chris Groneman, chairman of the A&M athletic council, announced the appointment of Foldberg, explaining that he had unanimous approval of the recommendation from the college system board of directors.

Foldberg will be returning not only to the scene of his first college football but his earliest coaching as well—he was assistant here in 1951 when Ray George was head coach.

He was assistant coach at Florida from 1952 to 1959 and previously had served as assistant at Miami, Baylor, Purdue and Texas A&M.

St. Bonaventure Cager Sets Mark With 36 In Win

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Miles Aiken set a scoring record Saturday night as he led St. Bonaventure to a 73-72 victory over Louisville for the championship of the Bluegrass Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Texas defeated Western Kentucky 78-68 in the consolation game.

Aiken scored 36 points and had a two-game total of 58 points—a record high for the tournament.

A ball-hawking Louisville team rattled the visitors during the first half and the Cardinals went out in front as much as seven points. St. Bonaventure rallied and moved to a 42-34 halftime lead.

Louisville came back strong and with 11:18 left in the game tied the score at 49-49.

Then Aiken drove under the basket and collected a three-point shot. The Bonnies were never headed after that.

Bud Olsen led the Cardinals with 23 points.

Aiken was named most valuable player of the tournament.

Bearcats Annex 27th Straight

CINCINNATI (AP) — The University of Cincinnati basketball Bearcats chalked up their 27th straight win and fifth of the season, trouncing Marshall University 77-49 Saturday night.

Senior forward Fred Dierking sparked the Bearcats with a total of 19 points.

Four Bearcats hit the double-figure column in scoring. Marshall trailed almost all the way, being in front only in the first 90 seconds of play.

The Wildcats, leading all the way through the first half, were ahead, 25-20, at intermission. They lost their advantage at 31-29 early in the second half but Cacciatore tied it with a field goal and Northwestern went ahead to stay on a basket by Lopossa with the score 35-33.

Cacciatore led the Wildcats with 15 points and Lopossa had 14. Herb Millard of Creighton had 19 points and teammate Paul Silas added 17.

The victory gave Northwestern a 2-3 record. Creighton is now 3-2.

Fan Breezes

By JACK FAIRFIELD
Jacksonville High School athletes have found Northeast Missouri State Teacher's College to be still another stepping stone in their already notable athletic careers.

McPike and Ned Jackson were the first to journey to Kirksville, Mo., and they have been followed by Bob Watts and Ken Norton. Although Jackson is no longer with that institution, McPike has already carved a name for himself in the "big" history books and Norton may well be on his way.

Milt was an outstanding football, basketball, and track performer for the Crimsons and he has excelled in these three at Kirksville, but the sport where he really sparked is football.

The 6'5", 225 pound senior had lettered in football, basketball and track for three years running and he climaxed a great college career by being named All Conference and has been picked as the twelfth draft choice of the San Francisco 49ers professional football team.

A representative of the NFL entry has been expected in Kirksville to sign Milt on the strength of his pass catching and kicking abilities.

The 22-year-old McPike is majoring in physical education and industrial arts and played end on offense and safety on defense which is a key to his tremendous speed and power with his size is the ideal combination for a pass defender.

The Bulldogs won 9 and lost 1 and picked up their second consecutive Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association Conference Championship and both McPike and Watts were very instrumental in the victories.

This was Milt's fourth varsity letter in football and Watts' second and although Norton is just a freshman he played a good deal of ball.

A key to "Big Milt's" value to Kirksville was related in the game against Springfield, Mo. With 20 seconds remaining and Springfield leading 7-6 Kirksville took over and fired three passes complete, the final being caught by McPike for the winning touchdown.

Milt's catch was the final play of the game and the Bulldogs had covered 83 yards in three plays to win the game, the conference title, and a trip to the Mineral Water Bowl at Excelsior Springs, Mo.

Coaches Bob Kraushaar and Al Rosenberger have done another excellent job of preparing their squad members for what may lie ahead. In Milt's case it was a tremendous athletic career at a fine Missouri college and in the words of a clipping received from Rosenberger he is, "One of the most celebrated athletes ever to attend Kirksville."

Congratulations to Milt McPike, Bob Watts, and Ken Norton and to coaches Kraushaar and Rosenberger for a job well done and one in which every one associated with the parties involved must be proud of.

Sims Leads Crimsons In Foul Tangled Tilt

BEARDSTOWN—In a tilt tangled with fifty-one fouls, Jacksonville's Crimsons edged Beardstown 46-41 Saturday evening on the losers court, as Coach John Chapman's cagers were led by the 12-point effort of guard Bill Sims.

Beardstown jumped to a one-point lead at the end of the first frame, 11-10, but the Jacks bounced back in the second period with 12 points and were never headed in the contest.

Lawless' Three Second Free Throws Win Thriller For IC

Today—

Brown's Trio Block Eastern Conference Title For New York

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Giants, a team that wasn't figured to set the world on fire, can win the National Football League's Eastern Conference championship Sunday by overcoming certain obstacles—the Cleveland Browns in general and Jimmy Brown, Milt Plum, Lou Groza and Bobby Mitchell in particular.

The teams square off in New York's Yankee Stadium on this final Sunday of the NFL's regular season. Even a tie would do the trick for the Giants and put them in the Dec. 31 tie show-down in Green Bay against the Packers, Western Conference Kings.

The Browns are anxious to make amends for the 37-21 defeat the Giants handed them Nov. 26. Brown and Plum are the league's top performers in two individual statistical departments—rushing and passing. Brown is shooting for his fifth straight rushing title. Plum leads the passers just as he did in 1960.

Groza, the great placekicker, established an all-time NFL scoring record with 826 points over an 11-year span last Sunday when the Browns lost 17-14 to the Chicago Bears and bowed out of championship contention.

Mitchell, the Browns' "Sunday flash" (he's in the Army the rest of the week), isn't first in anything, but the Giants are well aware that he is always a touchdown threat.

If the Giants lose, the Philadelphia Eagles could pull into a tie by whipping the Lions at Detroit. In that event, New York and Philadelphia would clash in Yankee Stadium Dec. 24 for the Eastern crown and the right to face the Packers.

Of course, if the Eagles tie or lose, the Giants would be "in" regardless.

New York is 10-3, Philadelphia 9-4, Cleveland 8-5 and Detroit, a Western team, 8-4-1.

In other Sunday games, it's Green Bay (10-3) at Los Angeles (4-9), Pittsburgh (6-7) at St. Louis (6-7), Minnesota (3-10) at Chicago (7-8) and Dallas (4-8-1) at Washington (10-12-1).

The Baltimore Colts and the 49ers played in San Francisco Saturday.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)

Syracuse, frustrated for two periods and trailing by two touchdowns, slammed back in the final half on the vicious running of All-American Ernie Davis and the pinpoint passing of Dave Sarette Saturday for a 15-14 victory over Miami (Fla.) in the Liberty Bowl football game.

Davis, held to 38 yards in the opening half, carried the Syracuse team on his back on a 42-yard drive in the third period, smashing over for the touchdown from the 1.

The second touchdown came on a 7-yard pass from Sarette to his favorite target, halfback Dick Easterly, in the fourth period, culminating a 51-yard march.

Sarette, who out-dazzled Miami's celebrated quarterback, George Mira with his passing, also hit Easterly for a two-point conversion after the first score and Ken Ericson booted the final, clinching extra point from placement, after the second.

Miami had surprised the meager crowd of 15,712 by stopping the great Davis and rushing to an early lead on a 12-yard run in the first period by Jim Vollenweider and a 60-yard punt return in the fading seconds of the opening half by sophomore Nick Spinelli.

Nudge Millikin 66-64 As Schildman Nets 19

By MORRIS GOTSCHALL JR.

Freshman guard Jack Lawless sank two free throws in the final three seconds breaking a 64-64 deadlock to give Illinois College a hard fought victory over the "Big Blue" of Millikin University Saturday evening in Memorial Gymnasium.

Lawless' former Routt, eager, came into the game with one minute and 30 seconds of play remaining. His only two points were the margin of victory for Coach Bill Merris' Blueboys who now have a 3-4 record for the season.

Frankie Finish With four minutes left in the game IC held an 11-point lead, 62-51, following a tip-in by Sophomore Willie Kording. Forward Steve Henest and guard Don Walker sparked a 13-point Millikin rally as IC's offense stalled with only two points.

After forward Gary Gilleland connected on a 30 foot jumper to bring the "Big Blue" within one point of IC, 64-63, Walker fouled Lawless intentionally. A technical foul was called on Walker, but Lawless missed his two free shots and Schildman missed the technical foul shot.

Thirty seconds remained in the game as IC took the ball out of bounds. DeWerrf stole the ball for Millikin and was about to score when Bill Schildman stopped him. Schildman left the game on the play, being charged with his fifth personal foul. DeWerrf made the first charity toss to tie the score, 64-64. He missed the second shot and the rebound went to the Blueboys.

Lawless Wins It Lawless was fouled as he attempted to drive past the key hole area for a lay-up shot. He sank the first charity toss forcing Millikin to call time out and mobilize its strategy. When play resumed Lawless sank the second shot. Don Walker received the ball and tried a desperation shot that missed its mark as the final horn sounded.

Early Lead Bill Schildman hit six baskets and two free throws to pace the IC first half scoring. Ed Puck, given a starting assignment after his fine play against Harris Teachers added three baskets and several key passes to help build up the 35-26 halftime lead. With the strong rebounding performance of Mike Bandy and Richard Sweeney the Blueboys were able to control both boards for most of the game.

Freshman Sam Campbell led the second half scoring with five baskets.

CHICAGO (AP)—All-America quarterback Sandy Stephens of Rose Bowl-bound Minnesota is No. 2 on the Big Ten's all-time total offense list, record books showed Saturday.

Stephens this season gained 394 yards rushing and 757 passing for a 1,151 total and a 5.7 average a play.

Taking third place on the all-time list for the modern era was Wisconsin's Ron Miller, who has signed with the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League. Miller had a minus 45 yards rushing but picked up 1,123 total and a 6.3 average.

Topping the list is Tom O'Connor, who in 1952 with Illinois totaled 1,308 yards.

Best all-time average is 7.9 yards a play by Michigan's Bob Chappuis.

Others on the list are Paul Giel, Minnesota, No. 4, 1,079 yards in 1951; Dick Thomas, Northwestern, No. 5, 1,057, 1952; Chappuis, No. 6, 1,039, 1946.

Jockey Manny Ycaza, the fiery-riding Panamanian, suffered six suspensions totaling 68 days during 1961. All were for riding infractions.

At Pekin, the Pekin Chinks won their third straight victory and handed Peoria Woodruff his first setback, crushing the Warriors 80-36. Peoria Central clipped Peoria Manual 58-52 and East Peoria defeated Spalding 65-56.

Decatur MacArthur pushed Peoria all the way before falling by a 54-51 margin. Decatur Eisenhower defeated hapless Danville Schlamm 57-45. The loss was Schlamm's fourth in five starts. Mattoon nipped Danville 57-58.

AL Batting Crown Captured By Cash; Maris Cops RBI's

BOSTON (AP)—Norm Cash of Detroit, who increased his average 75 points, won the American League batting championship in 1961 with a .361 mark, while Roger Maris of New York captured the home run and runs batted in titles.

This was confirmed Saturday with the release of the official statistics by the American League Service Bureau.

Cash, a .286 batter in 1960, was a runaway victor last season. Al Kaline, another Tigers' star, finished second with a .324 average and Jim Piersall, traded last month from Cleveland to Washington, was third at .322.

Only four other players among those eligible for the title with a minimum of 502 total appearances over the 162-game schedule wound up with averages of .300 or higher. They were Mickey Mantle, New York, .317; Jim Gentile of Baltimore and Earl Battey, Minnesota, .302 each, and Tito Francona, Cleveland, .301.

Maris, voted the circuit's most valuable player for the second straight year, had 61 home runs, a record for one season, and collected 142 runs batted in. The Yankees' right fielder also had the most total bases, 386, and shared the runs scored lead with Mantle at 132.

Cash, a first baseman, had the most hits, 193, and Kaline, an outfielder, collected the most doubles, 41. Jake Wood, Detroit's rookie second baseman, was the league's top triple play man, with 14.

Luis Aparicio, fleet shortstop of the Chicago White Sox, had 53 stolen bases to lead in this department. Aparicio also was caught stealing the most times, 13.

Detroit had the highest team batting average, .2663 to Cleveland's .2661.

Kansas Crushes Favored Owls In Bluebonnet

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON (AP)—Kansas Rice University ragged with double reverses and the power of Ken Coleman Saturday as the Jayhawks crushed the favored Owls 33-7 in the third annual Bluebonnet Bowl football game.

Coleman, a 201-pound sophomore, scored twice while grinding out 107 yards in 18 carries. Roger McFarland got two more on neatly executed double reverses.

John Hadl, who Friday denied charges he had signed a pro contract, directed all five Kansas scoring drives and set up one of Coleman's touchdowns with a 41-yard scamper on a faked fourth down punt.

Immediately after the game, a scout for the San Diego Chargers of the American Football League met Hadl under the south goalpost and signed the Kansas star to a 1962 contract.

Rice took a brief 7-6 lead with a 6-yard drive late in the first period but Hadl's beautiful run led the Kansas comeback and the Owls made only one other serious threat.

A light rain that fell practically throughout the nationally televised game cut attendance at the 70,000-seat Rice Stadium to 52,000. Bluebonnet officials, however, said 61,000 tickets had been sold.

Mail Carriers Boost Good Will Tree

The goal this year is 500 gifts of new clothing for boys and girls of school age. A good number of gifts have been received but many more are needed to meet the quota. Bank officials would like the gifts wrapped with a tag or writing on the outside listing type of article, if for boy or girl, and the correct size.

Names of the children to receive the gifts are compiled through cooperation of three local welfare agencies: Salvation Army; Morgan County Health Department and Illinois Public Aid Commission. Since delivery will take several days and start by Dec. 20th organizations and individuals planning to donate gifts are asked to get them to the bank as quickly as possible. Some donors have preferred to make cash donations. These cash gifts are used by Elliott personnel to purchase articles of clothing from local merchants, who are cooperating splendidly with the project.

The Good Will Tree is located just inside the lobby at Elliott State Bank. Donors need only to step in the door and deposit their packages under the tree. Although not necessary, many individuals and groups add their name to the identifying tags on the gifts.

South considered bidding seven no trump after his partner showed him an ace and a king, but settled for seven spades on the theory that he just might want to trump the deuce of hearts in dummy.

The hand is from the Nait-Hathorn book and illustrates a play that has appeared in every book on play since the year 1.

Strangely enough, it is usually overlooked and the actual declarer did. He won the heart lead with the ace and ran off all his trumps hoping for a heart break or an actual or pseudo-squeeze. None of these developed and he wound up losing his deuce of hearts at the finish.

South could and should have made his contract. The correct play would be to draw two rounds of trumps and then go after the hearts.

If both opponents followed to three leads of hearts, he would spread his hand. If the player with the last trump ruffed the third heart South would have been set, but in that case he would have been set in any event.

However, in this case West held both the long trump and the long hearts. He would have had to follow to four heart leads and South would have been able to trump his deuce of hearts and make the grand slam.

Q—The bidding has been:

Pass 4 ♠ Pass 5 ♠

You, South hold:
♠ A Q J 6 5 ♥ K 10 8 3 ♦ A 7 5 ♣ 4

A—Bid six hearts. At worst the slam will depend on a finesse.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The goal this year is 500 gifts of new clothing for boys and girls of school age. A good number of gifts have been received but many more are needed to meet the quota. Bank officials would like the gifts wrapped with a tag or writing on the outside listing type of article, if for boy or girl, and the correct size.

Names of the children to receive the gifts are compiled through cooperation of three local welfare agencies: Salvation Army; Morgan County Health Department and Illinois Public Aid Commission. Since delivery will take several days and start by Dec. 20th organizations and individuals planning to donate gifts are asked to get them to the bank as quickly as possible. Some donors have preferred to make cash donations. These cash gifts are used by Elliott personnel to purchase articles of clothing from local merchants, who are cooperating splendidly with the project.

The Good Will Tree is located just inside the lobby at Elliott State Bank. Donors need only to step in the door and deposit their packages under the tree. Although not necessary, many individuals and groups add their name to the identifying tags on the gifts.

Veteran Actor Embarks On New Career

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "I would like to concentrate on becoming a good new sort of actor," said the white-haired man with the enthusiasm of a teen-ager. "And to do good, warm TV shows not too often—perhaps twice a year."

The man planning a new career for himself was Maurice Chevalier, 73, already well launched on a new tangent of a theatrical career that started 62 years ago. "In 'Fanny' for the first time I did a character far away from Maurice Chevalier," said the performer, referring to the motion picture hit in which he neither sang nor wore a straw hat. "I think it was a good character and I found it enjoyable to create a man with a personality not my own. I have always played myself, and I think to add another character to that Chevalier foundation would make an interesting personality—no?"

Chevalier was in New York on one of the flying trips he makes several times a year to star in a television show. This one is NBC's "The Broadway of Lerner and Loewe," taped now for broadcast on Feb. 11. Chevalier was a smash in "Gaiety," the motion picture written by the composing team of Allen Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe, who also wrote "My Fair Lady," "Brigadoon," and "Camelot."

During his stay Chevalier lived in a suite atop a mid-town hotel. I saw him on an unseasonably warm winter's day and energetic, vigorous Chevalier was pacing up and down on a penthouse terrace singing the lyrics of Lerner-Loewe songs and admiring the view.

"It is nice," he said, breathing deep. "I like this place because it is like being at the prow of ship coming into New York—high up and the city spread below."

When the show was finished, Chevalier flew back to London, where for four months he has been performing in "The Cenci," a Walt Disney movie adaptation of a Jules Verne story. "And then," said Chevalier, "back home to Paris for a rest, thank God."

For any one, even one much younger than 73 years, it has been a busy year. This new career as a non-singing character actor has kept him constantly working. First, there was "Fanny," followed by another film, "Jessica" (in which he plays a priest) and the Disney movie—plus a number of TV commitments.

Business Mirror

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Shoppers' dollars are falling like snowflakes into cash registers as the Christmas buying season swirls toward what may be an all-time record.

Merchants across the country generally report that crowds started jamming the stores on the day after Thanksgiving day and have kept coming.

A trend toward buying fallout shelter equipment as household gifts was noted by some merchants.

"It's wonderful!" chorled Joe Palk, owner of a big Kansas City toy store. "People are looser with their money than last year. They are buying the good stuff and don't care what they have to spend."

In some areas, however, buying was about on a par with last year or a little lower. Apprehension over the international situation and anxiety over further call-up of reserves made some people cautious about heavy buying.

The United States Chamber of Commerce predicted Americans would spend $23 billion this Christmas, up 4 per cent from record 1960. The National Retail Merchants Association forecast a 2 per cent gain.

An Associated Press survey of merchants in major cities indicated that in most areas people are buying more and better merchandise, have lost much of the caution that marked their shopping last year and are splurging somewhat on luxuries.

Merchants feel that general business improvement is reflected in the attitude of their customers.

SEWING CLUB OF WHITE HALL MEETS AT DAVIS HOME

WHITE HALL — Mrs. Kenneth Davis entertained members of the Harmony Sewing Club at her home the past week, with a one o'clock luncheon.

The house was beautifully decorated in the Christmas motif. Each member was asked to take a box of her favorite Christmas cookies accompanied with the recipe. They were displayed on a beautiful Christmas table and each took a box of the cookies home.

Attending were two guests, Mrs. Joseph Conrad and Mrs. James Robinson of Carrollton; members attending, Mrs. F. M. Search, Mrs. M. D. Kesinger, Mrs. Rollin Day, Mrs. William White, Mrs. Olin Neighbors, Mrs. Harold Culbertson, Mrs. Floyd Collins, Mrs. Richard C. Bell, of this city and Mrs. Joseph Graham of Jacksonville.

South considered bidding seven no trump after his partner showed him an ace and a king, but settled for seven spades on the theory that he just might want to trump the deuce of hearts in dummy.

The hand is from the Nall-Hathorn book and illustrates a play that has appeared in every book on play since the year 1.

Strangely enough, it is usually overlooked and the actual declarer did. He won the heart lead with the ace and ran off all his trumps hoping for a heart break or an actual or pseudo-squeeze. None of these developed and he wound up losing his deuce of hearts at the finish.

South could and should have made his contract. The correct play would be to draw two rounds of trumps and then go after the hearts.

If both opponents followed to three leads of hearts, he would spread his hand. If the player with the last trump ruffed the third heart South would have been set, but in that case he would have been set in any event.

However, in this case West held both the long trump and the long hearts. He would have had to follow to four heart leads and South would have been able to trump his deuce of hearts and make the grand slam.

HOURS TO KILL

Chapter XXX

Even with her whole being concentrated on the telephone she made herself comb the newspaper for any mention of Garcia. There was none. He had apparently been in trouble locally before, and certainly on his first appearance at the house he had been drinking heavily. His wavy stance, his shiny eyes and heavy breathing, his slurry words: "Missa Foale."

Mrs. Foale? Or Mr. Foale, the only designation he could find for Philip?

It was possible, too, that both of Philip's previous wives had died of natural causes, that he had no designs on Cornelia's life, that they would both drive up in a day or two, tanned and rested and cheerful.

Tomorrow, she realized, she would be looking at the shocked, gazing at the paper's date. Philip, waving from the driveway, had called, "See you on the twentieth!" and tomorrow was the twentieth.

The telephone rang, and Margaret reached it before it could ring again.

Cornelia and Philip had registered at the Alvarado less than an hour ago. The desk clerk had told Kincaid that he believed Mrs. Byrne was lying down in her room, but after alone to look in. "There couldn't have been," repeated Margaret, in a command of herself again five minutes later. "Hilary, your windows are too high for any brief off-telephone conversation with somebody else it was established that the Byrnes had gone out to dinner. After consideration, Kincaid had not left light was out."

And what was your light?

There was a bird in the pear tree, Hilary said, and it kept squawking. She had thought—here came the night note—that maybe some other bird was trying to take its nest. So she had turned off her light and gotten the flashlight—"What flashlight?" "I found it," said Hilary—and she had tried to hypnotize the bird or birds into silence by aiming the beam up into the tree. She didn't know how she had dropped the flashlight, but it went out when it hit the ground. She was starting back to turn on her light again when a sound made her look back at the window, and there he was. Not all of him, just his eyes under his big hat.

Margaret's stomach dropped briefly. She had to remind herself that Julio Garcia was dead, that this was a country of big hats, that workmen on their way to somewhere often walked through the field behind the house, and presumably, back again. One of them might easily have been curious about the flashlight beam, straddled the wire fence, come up to the house—

She opened the window, feeling the night air like ice on her hot body; unhooked the screen, leaned over to look out. Off to the left, the very edge of something pale and square. A concrete building block? She had seen some once in the angle of the house, but not this near the window.

"I told you," said Hilary peevishly as Margaret stepped back into the lighted safety of the room and locked the window. "Are you going to call the police?"

It was a question she had asked herself—but what would she say to the police? "A man looked in the window." No, she hadn't seen him herself, a little girl had. If they came at all, which was doubtful, they would take one look at Hilary and depart.

"No," said Margaret, and Hilary gave her a look of indignation.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—"I would like to concentrate on becoming a good new sort of actor," said the white-haired man with the enthusiasm of a teenager. "And to do good, warm TV shows not too often—perhaps twice a year."

The man planning a new career for himself was Maurice Chevalier, 73, already well launched on a new tangent of a theatrical career that started 62 years ago.

"In 'Fanny' for the first time I did a character far away from Maurice Chevalier," said the performer, referring to the motion picture hit in which he neither sang nor wore a straw hat. "I found it enjoyable to create a man with a personality not my own. I have always played myself, and I think to add another character to that Chevalier foundation would make an interesting personality—no?"

Chevalier was in New York on one of the flying trips he makes several times a year to star in a television show. This one is NBC's "The Broadway of Lerner and Loewe," taped now for broadcast on Feb. 11. Chevalier was a smash in "Gigi," the motion picture written by the composing team of Allen Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe, who also wrote "My Fair Lady," "Brigadoon" and "Camelot."

During his stay Chevalier lived in a suite atop a mid-town hotel. I saw him on an unseasonably warm winter's day and energetic, vigorous Chevalier was packing up and down on a penthouse terrace singing the lyrics of Lerner-Loewe songs and admiring the view.

"It is nice," he said, breathing deep. "I like this place because it is like being at the prow of ship coming into New York—high up and the city spread below."

When the show was finished, Chevalier flew back to London, where for four months he has been performing in "The Castaways," a Walt Disney movie adaptation of a Jules Verne story. "And then," said Chevalier, "back home to Paris for a rest, thank God."

For any one, even one much younger than 73 years, it has been a busy year. This new career as a non-singing character actor has kept him constantly working. First, there was "Fanny," followed by another film, "Jessica" (in which he plays a priest) and the Disney movie—plus a number of TV commitments.

Business Mirror

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Shoppers' dollars are falling like snowflakes into cash registers as the Christmas buying season swirls toward what may be an all-time record.

Merchants across the country generally report that crowds started jamming the stores on the day after Thanksgiving day and have kept coming.

A trend toward buying fallout shelter equipment as household gifts was noted by some merchants.

"It's wonderful!" chorled Joe Falk, owner of a big Kansas City toy store. "People are looser with their money than last year. They are buying the good stuff and don't care what they have to spend."

In some areas, however, buying was about on a par with last year or a little lower. Apprehension over the international situation and anxiety over further call-up of reserves made some people cautious about heavy buying.

The United States Chamber of Commerce predicted Americans would spend $23 billion this Christmas, up 4 per cent from record 1960. The National Retail Merchants Association forecast a 2 per cent gain.

An Associated Press survey of merchants in major cities indicated that in most areas people are buying more and better merchandise, have lost much of the caution that marked their shopping last year and are splurging somewhat on luxuries.

Merchants feel that general business improvement is reflected in the attitude of their customers.

Chapter XXX
Even with her whole being concentrated on the telephone she made herself comb the newspaper for any mention of Garcia. There was none. He had apparently been in trouble locally before, and certainly on his first appearance at the house he had been drinking heavily. His wavy stance, his shiny eyes and heavy breathing, his slurry words: "Missa Foale."

Mrs. Foale? Or Mr. Foale, the only designation he could find for Philip?
It was possible, too, that both of Philip's previous wives had died of natural causes, that he had no designs on Cornelia's life, that they would both drive up in a day or two, tanned and rested and cheerful.

Tomorrow, she realized, shocked, gazing at the paper's date, Philip, waving from the driveway, had called, "See you on the twentieth," and tomorrow was the twentieth.

The telephone rang, and directly in Margaret's ear, Margaret reached it before it rang again.
Cornelia and Philip had registered at the Alvarado less a man, "There couldn't have been a man," repeated Margaret, in that command of herself again five minutes later. "Hilary, your believed Mrs. Byrne was lying windows are too high for any brief off-telephone conversation with somebody else it was scarlet and belligerent. People stand on things gone out to dinner. After consideration, Kincaid had not left a message; instead, he had gotten a list of dining places from the desk man. Staggered wasn't large, and the list was short. He was about to start calling, but had wanted to let Margaret know.

with a turkey dinner for the office personnel and the correspondents and their husbands. There were 60 invited to the party. Mrs. Grace Mattheson planned the entertainment with group singing of Christmas carols, led by Mrs. Henry Brinkman of Hull. A contest was held on "How well do you know your county?"

News Notes
Pittsfield sales tax for the month of August has been received in the amount of $3,888.01. Albert W. Schimmel Jr., general chairman of the Pike County savings bond committee, was presented with a 10 year volunteer service award from the office of the secretary of the treasury in recognition of his leadership in the U.S. savings bonds program.

was trying to take its nest. So she had turned off her light and gotten the flashlight— "What flashlight?" "I found it," said Hilary— and she had tried to hypnotize the bird or birds into silence by aiming the beam up into the tree. She didn't know how she had dropped the flashlight, but it went out when it hit the ground. She was starting back to turn on her light again when a sound made her look back at the window, and there he was. Not all of him, just his eyes under his big hat.

Margaret's stomach dropped briefly. She had to remind herself that Julio Garcia was dead, that this was a country of big hats, that workmen on their way to somewhere often walked through the field behind the house and, presumably, back again. One of them might easily have been curious about the flashlight beam, straddled the wire fence, come up to the house—

She opened the window, feeling the night air like ice on her hot body; unhooked the screen, leaned over to look out. Off to the left, the very edge of something pale and square. A concrete building block? She had seen some once in the angle of the house, but not this near the window.

"I told you," said Hilary peevishly as Margaret stepped back into the lighted safety of the room and locked the window. "Are you going to call the police?"
It was a question she had asked herself—but what would she say to the police? "A man looked in the window." No, she hadn't seen him herself, a little girl had. If they came at all, which was doubtful, they would take one look at Hilary and depart.
"No," said Margaret, and Hilary gave her a look of indignation.

THIS IS A CLASSROOM?—Odd appearing, yes, but this is a new laboratory-classroom used in modern methods of teaching foreign languages. Three Grand Rapids, Mich., high schools boast these installations. Language lessons on tape are monitored to individual students or groups of students. Sponsors claim two advantages: each student is able to progress according to his ability and is prodded to think in the language.

Welcome Class Elects Officers At Meredosia

MEREDOSIA — The Welcome Class of the Methodist Sunday School of Meredosia held its December meeting at the home of Mrs. Mabel Likes on Tuesday the 12th. Mrs. Hilda Puls was the assistant hostess.

A baked chicken dinner with all the trimmings and many other good dishes were enjoyed at noon. The meal was served from a decorated table in keeping with the Christmas season.

After the dinner the business meeting was held. The class voted the usual amount to the church. Several cards were signed to send to older members, who could not attend.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. Lena Boyd, president; Mrs. Mabel Likes, vice-president; Mrs. Hilda Puls, secretary and treasurer; and Mrs. Charles Schmitt, teacher.

Mrs. Charles Schmitt read the Christmas Story from St. Luke. Each member present furnished a number on the program. Several Christmas carols were sung. The closing prayer was given by Mrs. Lena Boyd.

The March social will be held at the home of Mrs. Bertha Rice. Karl Christman was guest of honor at a birthday celebration, given by her mother, Mrs. Allen B. Christman, at their home Tuesday, Dec. 12, from 3:30 to 5 p.m., commemorating her on her 7th birthday anniversary, which was that day. Several games were played and prizes were awarded. The guests then watched the honoree open her packages. The decorated birthday cake with seven candles centered the table.

Refreshments of assorted fancy shaped small cookies, ice cream, cake and pop were served by the hostess assisted by the honoree's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Edna Christman.

Guests were Kristen Metz, Judy Mitchell, Janie Standley, Tina Faye Hinners, Allen Bond Christman, Philip Hinners and Mrs. Herbert Hinners.

The American Legion Post No. 516 of Meredosia with Maurice Kunzeman, Cmdr., announces that the annual potluck supper for the Legion, Auxiliary and their families will be held Monday, Dec. 18, 1961, at 6:30 p.m. at the Legion Home. Mrs. Edward Irving announces the meat and coffee will be furnished by the Auxiliary. A short business meeting will be held by each organization following the supper.

A Christmas party will follow the meetings. There will be treats for the small fry.

Arrangement committee for the potluck are Mrs. Edward Irving, Mrs. Raymond Scott, Mrs. Oscar Norrup and Mrs. John Norrup.

OOPS... ALMOST—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy barely escaped the embarrassment of appearing in a dress identical to that of one of her guests. Unwittingly, she changed outfits between functions. The First Lady, left, wore a two-piece red wool dress as she accepted a silver pitcher presented by a friend. Mrs. William S. Paley, right, wife of the CBS board chairman, showed up at a tea shortly afterward wearing an identical dress.

Report On Kennedy—

Discussing Problem Is One Thing—Solving Is Another

EDITOR'S NOTE—Discussing world problems is one thing, trying to solve them another. John F. Kennedy, after making the transition from candidate to President, was not the first to discover this truism—though his lesson may have been unusually dramatic.

By ARTHUR EDSON
AP Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—During his presidential campaign John F. Kennedy often pointed out that, while the Republicans were in control of the White House, the iron curtain had been rolled down in once friendly Cuba.

"If you can't stand up to Castro," Kennedy said in Johnstown, Pa., "how can you be expected to stand up to Khrushchev?"

This is repeated not as a reproof—if presidents were judged by their campaign talk they would all be failures—but as an illustration of how far Kennedy may have underestimated the difficulties in modern international relations.

Not that Kennedy, even when the campaign was hottest, ever took these problems lightly. But example after example can be cited to show that he believed that, with proper diligence, answers favorable to the United States could be found.

Let's look at just a couple more from 1960.

"I am not satisfied with the drift of events today," he said in Granite City, Ill. "I am not satisfied to be reading every day that Khrushchev and Castro and the Chinese are on the upward march. I want to read that the United States is once again asserting its leadership as a great and free country, which offers a ray of hope to all those who wish to follow our example."

Or in Fargo, N.D.: "Can you tell me anywhere in a crisis, from Cuba to the Congo to Laos, where the United States has been ahead of events?"

For a man who had hoped to control the tides of history, the Cuban fiasco must have been as bitter a blow as any president ever received in what, theoretically, was a time of peace.

It shocked and dismayed his friends. It loaded his enemies with ready-made ammunition, although a few rushed out to shoot during such a critical time for the nation. One prominent Republican, who never had liked the Kennedy picture of infallibility, commented recently that "Cuba was a godsend."

Those who believed that U.S. intervention in Cuba was immoral blamed Kennedy for being mixed up in it.

Those who wanted action blamed him for not following up with the strength that would have made the invasion successful.

Communists—and many who weren't Communists at all—claimed this as fresh evidence that Uncle Sam is an imperialist meddler, never to be trusted.

Out of this, one haunting question continues to arise: Hit with such a disaster so early in his term, has Kennedy been more timid, afraid of even mild risks, than he might otherwise have been?

A man close to Kennedy insists the answer is no, but that he has made sure it never happens again.

Those around Kennedy maintain this nation is doing much better internationally than is generally thought.

They make these points: If Laos and the Congo remain as dangerous as ever, at least the Communists haven't taken over.

If Castro is still boss of Cuba, a more active interest in South America has helped to stem the spread of Communism there.

If Berlin remains unsolved, intricate problems for solutions continue. Or, in the words of a White House assistant: "We're a long way from out of the woods, but at least we have some basis for negotiations."

If the international situation remains critical, the military has been strengthened—two-thirds of all money added to the budget has been in this area—and a start has been made on civil defense.

Yet even in its most favorable light, all this isn't seizing the initiative. And nearly all these explanations could have been made a year ago as well as now.

As Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, said in the Senate on Sept. 21: "What has happened is that permits Khrushchev to act as he does? Let me repeat: What Fargo.

has happened that lets him do it?"

"Understand me, please. Not what he is doing. We know that only too well. Our national honor bears the scars and stains of what he is doing now and has done in the past. And he has warned us, arrogantly, of what he intends to do in the future, which is even worse. These things we know."

"But today—now—why does he feel free to do as he does? Why?" Mrs. Smith's questions sound like a paraphrase of Kennedy's campaign talk. That they still are asked a year after the campaign shows how hard it is to find acceptable answers.

Perhaps none of us fully realizes how radically the presidency has changed.

William McKinley once commented to a visitor that, since he hadn't looked at the map, he had no idea where Manila was. Franklin D. Roosevelt, during a war truly worldwide, had few thoughts about most of Africa.

Even Dwight D. Eisenhower took office in the pre-space age. All our recent presidents have had to operate in a new, exciting and often bewildering world.

It has turned into a world of imaginations, of moon shots, of new nations popping into existence so rapidly professional geographers must be in difficulties.

Whereas foreign affairs once took little of a president's time, they now threaten to consume all of it.

Whenever administration officials are asked why Kennedy has not pushed harder for his domestic program, or why he has not explained his—and the nation's—problems to the people more fully, the answer always is: The President is too tied up with foreign affairs.

There's no way to determine whether Kennedy really is this occupied, or whether this reply is designed to cut off further questioning. After all, Eisenhower had heavy foreign burdens, too. But no one can doubt the enormity or the complexity of the problems created by an implacable foe and by allies of widely differing aims and hopes.

On his recent trip through the West, Kennedy tried to explain some of his difficulties in foreign affairs.

"We must face problems," he said in Seattle, "which do not lend themselves to easy, quick or permanent solutions."

"And we must face the fact that the United States is neither omnipotent nor omniscient, that we cannot always impose our will on the other 94 per cent of mankind, that we cannot right every wrong or reverse each adversity, and that therefore there cannot be an American solution for every world problem."

This is a far different line than he used while campaigning in Johnstown or Granite City or as he does? Let me repeat: What Fargo.

Journal Courier, Jacksonville, Ill., Dec. 17, 1961

But responsibility is often humbling. And to close this evaluation of the President let's turn to a top Republican, harshly critical in other areas, who said: "In times of crisis, you're first concerned about your family, your own existence. He is the President of us all, and his success is your success. You have got to wish him well."

THIS IS A CLASSROOM?—Odd appearing, yes, but this is a new laboratory-classroom used in modern methods of teaching foreign languages. Three Grand Rapids, Mich., high schools boast these installations. Language lessons on tape are monitored to individual students or groups of students. Sponsors claim two advantages: each student is able to progress according to his ability and is prodded to think in the language.

Welcome Class Elects Officers At Meredosia

MEREDOSIA — The Welcome Class of the Methodist Sunday School of Meredosia held its December meeting at the home of Mrs. Mabel Likes on Tuesday the 12th. Mrs. Hilda Puls was the assistant hostess.

A baked chicken dinner with all the trimmings and many other good dishes were enjoyed at noon. The meal was served from a decorated table in keeping with the Christmas season.

After the dinner the business meeting was held. The class voted the usual amount to the church. Several cards were signed to send to older members, who could not attend.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. Lena Boyd, president; Mrs. Mabel Likes, vice-president; Mrs. Hilda Puls, secretary and treasurer; and Mrs. Charles Schmitt, teacher.

Mrs. Charles Schmitt read the Christmas Story from St. Luke. Each member present furnished a number on the program. Several Christmas carols were sung. The closing prayer was given by Mrs. Lena Boyd.

The March social will be held at the home of Mrs. Bertha Rice. Karl Christman was guest of honor at a birthday celebration, given by her mother, Mrs. Allen B. Christman, at their home Tuesday, Dec. 12, from 3:30 to 5 p.m., commemorating her on her 7th birthday anniversary, which was that day.

Several games were played and prizes were awarded. The guests then watched the honoree open her packages. The decorated birthday cake with seven candles centered the table.

THIS WINTER—Strictly unofficially, the U.S. Weather Bureau is experimenting with 90-day forecasts. Usually, they're only made for the next 30 days. Sketch above shows how this winter may—repeat, may—shape up, if the elves who control the weather don't play any tricks. It will be a hard winter west of the Continental Divide down through West Texas. Above normal temperatures will prevail over most of the eastern half of the country. In between there will be nothing unusual. Precipitation will also be much heavier in the west, particularly along the coast. It will be heavy in the southern and central plains up through the lake region, below normal south of Pennsylvania and east of the Appalachians, also in northwest away from coast. Rest of country will be normal.

For Western Europe—

International Judicial Watchdog

By Joseph E. Dynan
STRASBOURG, France.—Western Europe has its own international judicial watchdog — the European Court of Human Rights.

Roughly comparable to the U.S. Supreme Court, the European tribunal was set up to make sure governments observe a citizen's basic human rights.

Still in its infancy, the European court has thus far actually ruled on only one case. But its existence has influenced governments to be more attentive to constitutional rights. Moreover, the whole complex court machinery is designed to eliminate complaints, and one is heard only as a last resort.

The one case ruled upon was brought by an Irish National, Gerard Richard Lawless, against his own government. He accused Dublin authorities of violating the European Convention of Human Rights by detaining him without trial. The court eventually ruled last July against Lawless and in favor of Dublin. But the citizen's complaint was aired in court, and the Irish government had to appear at the defendant's table.

The government successfully argued that Lawless' detention was legal because the country was under a state of emergency due to activities of the outlawed Irish Republican Army. Lawless was allegedly a member of the underground army.

Lawless in Europe rated the Lawless case of great importance in the development of international law. The complaint of an individual against his own government had, for the first time, been heard by an international tribunal. The government had willingly acknowledged the tribunal's competence and had appeared to answer for its own actions.

This unique court is based on a treaty—the Convention of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms—written in a burst of post-war enthusiasm in the summer of 1949, during the first session of the Council of Europe's consultative assembly. Its hope was to guard against any perversion of justice such as the Nazis made in Germany. The convention was finally signed in Rome, Nov. 4, 1950, but the court itself was not established until several years later, when the necessary number of ratifications had occurred.

The rights covered by the convention may be compared with the American Bill of Rights. They include free speech, freedom of religion, voting rights, habeas corpus, and a full and fair public trial by jury.

Any signatory state can cite another for alleged violations of this code and hale the offending regime into court. Under certain circumstances, any aggrieved citizen could cite his own government, and make it explain or mend its conduct.

The court, which sits in Strasbourg, consists of one judge from each of the council of Europe's 15 member-states. The judges are nominated by the committee of foreign ministers and elected for fixed terms by the consultative assembly. While in office, each judge received a salary from the Council of Europe.

When one government accuses another, the case may be sent to the foreign ministers who are expected to try to bring the two sides together. But if the plaintiff government persists it may take the case into court.

An individual, however, can approach the court only through what is called the Human Rights Commission, a panel of attorneys and legal experts named by the Council of Europe. This panel, attached to the court, acts as a sort of combination screening board, conciliation commission, and attorney general's office.

It examines the complaint and weeds out the obviously crank cases or those without foundation.

Committee To Review Policy
On Guardsmen

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Veterans Affairs Committee will conduct a sweeping review of the policy of calling up National Guardsmen and reserves for cold war duty, Committee Chairman Olin E. Teague, D-Tex., said Friday.

Teague said he had sent notice of the hearings early next year to President Kennedy, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and the Veterans Administration. "We want to know what their plans are from now on," Teague said in an interview. "Are they going to continue calling up reserves to meet crisis situations in the cold war?"

This question now is being restudied by the Pentagon, Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric told a news conference Thursday. He said "I may have been wrong" in believing that the military could successfully mobilize and demobilize reservists to help out during cold war crises.

However, Gilpatric emphasized later that this year's callup "was the only possible action at the time."

In the future, he said, the United States may have to have more regular forces and rely on the reserve and guard for longer-range mobilization. Plans already have been made to ask for two more regular Army divisions.

Teague said his committee may go to some of the military bases and talk to men who have been called up. He has not definitely decided on this point and will first consult other committee members, Teague added.

The recent callup touched off complaints that the men called were not being adequately taken care of and that preparations were not made in advance to give them proper equipment or enough useful work to do.

Report On Kennedy—

Discussing Problem Is One Thing—Solving Is Another

EDITOR'S NOTE—Discussing world problems is one thing, trying to solve them another. John F. Kennedy, after making the transition from candidate to President, was not the first to discover this truism—though his lesson may have been unusually dramatic.

By ARTHUR EDSON
AP Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—During his presidential campaign John F. Kennedy often pointed out that, while the Republicans were in control of the White House, the iron curtain had been rolled down in once friendly Cuba.

"If you can't stand up to Castro," Kennedy said in Johnston, Pa., "how can you be expected to stand up to Khrushchev?"

This is repeated not as a reproof—it is repeated as a reminder of how far Kennedy may have underestimated the difficulties in modern international relations.

Not that Kennedy, even when the campaign was hottest, ever took these problems lightly. But example after example can be cited to show that he believed that, with proper diligence, answers favorable to the United States could be found.

Let's look at just a couple more from 1960.

"I am not satisfied with the drift of events today," he said in Granite City, Ill. "I am not satisfied to be reading every day that Khrushchev and Castro and the Chinese are on the upward march. I want to read that the United States is once again asserting its leadership as a great and free country, which offers a ray of hope to all those who wish to follow our example."

Or in Fargo, N.D.: "Can you tell me anywhere in a crisis, from Cuba to the Congo to Laos, where the United States has been ahead of events?"

For a man who had hoped to control the tides of history, the Cuban fiasco must have been as bitter a blow as any president ever received in what, theoretically, was a time of peace.

It shocked and dismayed his friends.

It loaded his enemies with ready-made ammunition, although a few rushed out to shoot during such a critical time for the nation. One prominent Republican, who never had liked the Kennedy picture of infallibility, commented recently that "Cuba was a godsend."

Those who believed that U.S. intervention in Cuba was immoral blamed Kennedy for being mixed up in it.

Those who wanted action blamed him for not following up with the strength that would have made the invasion successful.

Communists—and many who weren't Communists at all—claimed this as fresh evidence that Uncle Sam is an imperialist meddler, never to be trusted.

Out of this, one haunting question continues to arise: How, with such a disaster so early in his term, has Kennedy been more than timid, afraid of even mild risks, than he might otherwise have been?

A man close to Kennedy insists the answer is no, but that he has made sure it never happens again.

Those around Kennedy maintain this nation is doing much better internationally than is generally thought.

They make these points:

If Laos and the Congo remain as dangerous as ever, at least the Communists haven't taken over.

If Castro is still boss of Cuba, a more active interest in South America has helped to stem the spread of Castroism there.

If Berlin remains unsolved, intricate problems for solutions continue. Or, in the words of a White House assistant: "We're a long way from out of the woods, but at least we have some basis for negotiations."

If the international situation remains critical, the military has been strengthened—two-thirds of all money added to the budget has been in this area—and a start has been made on civil defense.

Yet even in its most favorable light, all this isn't selling the initiative. And nearly all these explanations could have been made a year ago as well as now.

As Sen. Margaret Chase Smith R-Maine, said in the Senate on Sept. 21: "What has happened is that permits Khrushchev to act as he does? Let me repeat: What is this a far different tone than he used while campaigning in Johnston or Granite City or Fargo."

When administration officials are asked why Kennedy has not pushed harder for his domestic program, or why he has not explained his—and the nation's—problems to the people more fully, the answer always is: The President is too tied up with foreign affairs.

There's no way to determine whether Kennedy really is this occupied, or whether this reply is designed to cut off further questioning. After all, Eisenhower had heavy foreign burdens, too. But no one can doubt the enormity or the complexity of the problems created by an implacable foe and by Allies of widely differing aims and hopes.

On his recent trip through the West Kennedy tried to explain some of his difficulties in foreign affairs.

"We must face problems," he said in Seattle, "which do not lend themselves to easy, quick or permanent solutions."

"And we must face the fact that the United States is neither omnipotent nor omniscient, that we cannot always impose our will on the other 94 per cent of mankind, that we cannot right every wrong or reverse each adversity, and that therefore there cannot be an American solution for every world problem."

This is a far different tone than he used while campaigning in Johnston or Granite City or Fargo.

THIS WINTER—Strictly unofficially, the U.S. Weather Bureau is experimenting with 90-day forecasts. Usually, they're only made for the next 30 days. Sketch above shows how this winter may—repeat, may—shape up, if the elves who control the weather don't play any tricks. It will be a hard winter west of the Continental Divide down through West Texas. Above normal temperatures will prevail over most of the eastern half of the country. In between there will be nothing unusual. Precipitation will also be much heavier in the west, particularly along the coast. It will be heavy in the southern and central plains up through the lake region, below normal south of Pennsylvania and east of the Appalachians, also in northwest away from coast. Rest of country will be normal.

For Western Europe—

International Judicial Watchdog

By Joseph E. Dynan
STRASBOURG, France

Western Europe has its own international judicial watchdog — the European Court of Human Rights.

Roughly comparable to the U.S. Supreme Court, the European tribunal was set up to make sure governments observe a citizen's basic human rights.

Still in its infancy, the European court has thus far actually ruled on only one case. But its existence has influenced governments to be more attentive to constitutional rights. Moreover, the whole complex court machinery is designed to eliminate complaints, and one is heard only as a last resort.

The one case ruled upon was brought by an Irish National, Gerard Lawless, against his own government. He accused Dublin authorities of violating the European Convention of Human Rights by detaining him without trial. The court eventually ruled last July against Lawless and in favor of Dublin. But the citizen's complaint was aired in court, and the Irish government had to appear at the defendant's table.

The government successfully argued that Lawless' detention was legal because the country was under a state of emergency due to activities of the outlawed Irish Republican Army. Lawless was allegedly a member of the underground army.

Lawless in Europe rated the Lawless case of great importance in the development of international law. The complaint of an individual against his own government had, for the first time, been heard by an international tribunal. The government had willingly acknowledged the tribunal's competence and had appeared to answer for its own actions.

This unique court is based on a treaty—the Convention of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms—written in a burst of post-war enthusiasm in the summer of 1949, during the first session of the Council of Europe's consultative assembly. Its hope was to guard against any perversion of justice such as the Nazis made in Germany. The convention was finally signed in Rome, Nov. 4, 1950, but the court itself was not established until several years later when the necessary number of ratifications had occurred.

The rights covered by the convention may be compared with the American Bill of Rights. They include free speech, freedom of religion, voting rights, habeas corpus, and a full and fair public trial by jury.

Any signatory state can cite another for alleged violations of this code and hale the offending regime into court. Under certain circumstances any aggrieved citizen could cite his own government, and make it explain or mend its conduct.

The court, which sits in Strasbourg, consists of one judge from each of the council of Europe's 15 member-states. The judges are nominated by the committee of foreign ministers and elected for fixed terms by the consultative assembly. While in office, each judge received a salary from the Council of Europe.

When one government accuses another, the case may be sent to the foreign ministers who are expected to try to bring the two sides together. But if the plaintiff government persists it may take the case into court.

An individual, however, can approach the court only through what is called the Human Rights Commission, a panel of attorneys and legal experts named by the Council of Europe. This panel, attached to the court, acts as a sort of combination screening board, conciliation commission, and attorney-general's office.

It examines the complaint and weeds out the obviously crank cases or those without foundation.

MRS. EARL DAVIS HOSTESS TO UNIT OF HOME BUREAU

The Mound Home Bureau was entertained recently at the home of Mrs. Earl Davis in Jacksonville. The house was beautifully decorated for Christmas throughout. A delicious covered dish luncheon was served at 1 o'clock followed by a short business meeting.

Two new members were welcomed into the Unit, Mrs. J. T. Butler, a transfer member from another Unit and Mrs. James C. Lair, an associate member.

The major lesson, "Laundry Procedure for Today's Fabrics," was given by Mrs. Donald Richardson.

Mrs. Cloyd Wilson presented the minor lesson, Christmas Party. Mrs. Harold Hamel entertained the group with a number of games.

Two guests were present, Mrs. Clyde Smith and Mrs. Goebel.

The next meeting will be on Jan. 8 at the home of Mrs. A. B. Applebee.

Committee To Review Policy On Guardsmen

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Veterans Affairs Committee will conduct a sweeping review of the policy of calling up National Guardsmen and reserves for cold war duty, Committee Chairman Olin E. Teague, D-Tex., said Friday.

Teague said he had sent notice of the hearings early next year to President Kennedy, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and the Veterans Administration. "We want to know what their plans are from now on," Teague said in an interview. "Are they going to continue calling up reserves to meet crisis situations in the cold war?"

This question now is being studied by the Pentagon, Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric told a news conference Thursday. He said "I may have been wrong" in believing that the military could successfully mobilize and demobilize reservists to help out during cold war crises.

However, Gilpatric emphasized later that this year's callup "was the only possible action at the time."

In the future, he said, the United States may have to have more regular forces and rely on the reserve and guard for longer-range mobilization. Plans already have been made to ask for two more regular Army divisions.

Teague said his committee may go to some of the military bases and talk to men who have been called up. He has not definitely decided on this point and will first consult other committee members.

The recent callup touched off complaints that the men called were not being adequately taken care of and that preparations were not made in advance to give them proper equipment or enough useful work to do.

The Beloved Paintings Of Grandma Moses

Grandma Moses, then 85, with a winter scene.

Her painting of President Eisenhower's farm.

Simplicity was the force which made the paintings of the late Anna Mary Robertson Moses compelling. Their subject matter, her own memories of rural American life, expressed a home-sickness for a less complex life which struck a wide response. The art world called them American primitives and in any ter is neutralized. This means that while the warhead will not be destroyed in flight, it will be an expensive piece of non-explosive hardware on impact. That is the theory. Just how close the Nike-Zeus warhead has to come to its target in order to achieve its objective is top secret.

In interviews with Nike-Zeus technicians, however, the analogy is used that the whole business is akin to hitting a bullet with a paddle the size of a football field. The heart of the Nike-Zeus system is an integrated and completely automated four-radar network. The brains of the system is enclosed in a huge computer, while the striking arm is a solid-fueled missile.

The Nike-Zeus missile has an initial thrust of about 500,000 pounds—about twice that of the Atlas ICBM.

The key to the Nike-Zeus system is the target acquisition radar. The prototype at White Sands is the most powerful ever built in this country.

By Ben Price AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—For five years the U.S. Army has been putting together the Nike-Zeus, a missile system designed to destroy intercontinental ballistic missiles in flight.

The army says unequivocally the system will work. The Defense Department has refused—publicly, at least—to buy it on the grounds there are too many technical and operating problems still unsolved.

There are reports, however, that President Kennedy and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara have decided to ask Congress next year for money to begin tooling up for Nike-Zeus production. Reportedly they were influenced by the recent success of a series of test launchings.

There has been no official confirmation of a positive decision. Meanwhile, the United States has no defense against intercontinental ballistic missiles and cannot begin to have one in less than five years even if production begins tomorrow.

The debate on the merits of the Nike-Zeus picked up an additional note of urgency this fall when Soviet Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky told the 22nd Communist Party Congress in Moscow on Oct. 23: "The problem of destroying rockets in flight has been solved."

If Malinovsky meant merely that the Russians have learned to intercept one low-speed rocket with another, then there would be nothing worrisome in the statement. The United States has done this repeatedly.

If Malinovsky meant the Russians have developed a workable anti-missile missile and are now ready to begin production—and if he was telling the truth—the Russians now would have an enormous military advantage.

The Defense Department has been cautious in publicly assessing the significance of the Malinovsky statement. Defense Secretary McNamara since has said that "against our intercontinental missiles themselves, no effective countermeasures have yet been developed."

At the moment the Nike-Zeus system, which the Army says also has an anti-satellite capability, is the only anti-missile missile system extant in the non-Communist world in anything approaching the ready-to-use stage.

The Nike-Zeus is designed to operate independently of all other warning systems and is a point-defense weapon; that is, its function is to destroy enemy missiles as they approach the target in much the same fashion as anti-aircraft guns and fighter-interceptors destroy bombers.

The Nike-Zeus reportedly has a vertical range of 100 miles and a horizontal reach of 75 miles.

In all probability, the Nike-Zeus has much greater operating capabilities. In referring to its anti-satellite characteristics, the Army will say only that it can be used against "vehicles in low orbit."

Generally speaking, a low orbit is considered anything under 300 miles.

The Nike-Zeus has been in the development stage since November 1956 by the Army Ordnance Missile Command at Huntsville, Ala., and to date has cost $11 billion.

The major contractors are Bell Telephone Laboratories, Western Electric Company, Douglas Aircraft, Thiokol Chemical Corp., Remington-Rand, Univac, and Sperry Gyroscope.

A complete prototype of the Nike-Zeus system exists at the White Sands, N. M., missile testing range and the Army claims, has demonstrated it will work.

A second prototype is under construction at Kwajalein Island, 2,300 miles west of the United States, for use in flight tests against actual ICBM's next summer.

Although the Army has been asking for money since mid-1958 to begin production of long lead-time items for the incredibly complex system, anticipating its operational use, none has been forthcoming up to now.

The Defense Department has been reluctant to spend money on anything as uncertain as its top brass considers the Nike-Zeus.

Defense Secretary McNamara gave the reasons to the Senate Armed Services Committee last April 4:

"There are widespread doubts as to whether the Nike-Zeus system should ever be deployed.

"There still is considerable uncertainty as to its technical feasibility and, even if successfully developed, there are serious operating problems yet to be solved."

"The system itself is vulnerable to ballistic missile attack and its effectiveness could be degraded by the use of more sophisticated ICBM's screened by multiple decoys."

"Saturation of the target is an other possibility as ICBM's become easier and cheaper to produce in coming years. Finally, it is a very expensive system in relation to the degree of protection it can furnish."

Dr. Herbert York, scientific adviser to the defense secretary in the Eisenhower administration, has said "I think . . . that $15 billion worth of Zeus would protect that area occupied by only 40 per cent of the population."

York also said:

"In the case of Zeus it is almost essential that it be 100 per cent accurate and effective."

How much would it cost to build a meaningful Nike-Zeus system? About $8 billion, Trudeau said.

This does not mean every city, every missile launch site and every Strategic Air Command base would be defended, but only the ones deemed important to the defense and recovery of the United States.

There apparently has been a widespread misunderstanding as to how the Nike-Zeus works.

The Swindlers Swindled

A true story in Jacksonville, 80 years ago

This is an account of an interesting event that happened in Jacksonville 80 years ago, with the payoff coming on Dec. 19, which falls on a Tuesday this year but arrived on Monday back in 1881.

In October of that same year a young, alert and handsome young man who was the best drummer in the wholesale spice and coffee line around these parts confided to his chum as they were sitting in a saloon on the north side of the square that he was going to commit suicide.

This statement shocked his pal. "How could you contemplate such a procedure?" the friend demanded. "After all you are sitting on top of the world at this date, being the best spice and coffee drummer in these parts, and a bright young fellow."

And this was the approximate reply:

"Yes, I make $18 a week, but you know and I know and everybody else knows that I dress flashy and treat with a lively hand and haven't saved a dime. Worse of all, I've been trying to play poker at Del's place—you know the joint on the northeast corner of the square. I think he and his cronies are a pack of thieves, but I can't prove it."

"Anyway, I have lost $1,306.87 of my employer's money, a man who has treated me better than anybody else in this mundane world. To make things worse, I love truly his daughter Lucy and so I must do away with my cheap and worthless self."

He swore his chum to secrecy, but the next morning when the coffee and spice house opened at 6 o'clock the deceitful friend was on hand to tell the whole story to the owner.

No News To Him

This estimable gentleman told the chum that he knew all about it, had known for a month, and he advised the well-intentioned informer to keep his mouth "buttoned up like those silly shoes you're wearing."

The prized young drummer arrived at 6:30 a.m. to get his papers ready for a trip north and east and immediately asked for an audience with his employer. He told him the whole truth, skipping only the part about Lucy.

The estimable gentleman, who was a civic leader and a deacon in the church, remarked:

"Son, (please note the cognomen, as they said in those days) now son, we must not allow ourselves to become rattled and excited about this apparent loss. I feel that we must do four things:

1. We must keep this entire business a secret between us. I have already warned your friend and I request you immediately repeat the admonishment to him.

2. We must recoup the funds lost.

3. We must punish the ring that took you in.

4. We must do all this in such a way that you will never touch a playing card again.

"I do this with eyes half-blinded by the love of a father, because my daughter Lucy loves you truly," the deacon said.

"Now you must go, for you have only three minutes to catch the northbound 6:58. Have a pleasant trip and we may hope a profitable trip."

New Man In Town

A month later, to the very day, an especially well-built man wearing a plum colored overcoat got off the train. He had a waxed mustache and the crowd of loafers at the railroad station nearly fell over dead when he gave the omnibus driver a dollar tip to haul his three suitcases and two trunks to the hotel.

"I enjoy a constitutional in such nippy air," he exclaimed, as he used a solid-gold clipper to snip off the end of a Havana cigar. "I shall walk to the hotel."

News of such a character gets around fast, and by noon he had granted interviews to the press stating that he was associated with Gall Borden, the east coast cantenary mogul, and was in Jacksonville to establish an extensive dairy and a milk condensery plant.

He said he needed several sections of grazing land, preferably contiguous, and some prime business lots on which to build the factory.

Many folks found such talk very interesting.

This guy wore a different suit of clothes every day and spoke pleasantly to everybody, and in a week's time he was busy eating luncheon and dinner with the better families of the town—and especially those who had daughters who were at least of marriageable age.

Our Visitor Accepted

Del, the crooked gambler, soon introduced himself, observing that undoubtedly such a fine gent as the gent he was had the sporting blood that enjoyed a game of chance among gentlemen.

The gentleman replied that he loved to play poker, but had fore-sworn the game since he luckily won $5,000 in a single hand and this $5,000 had started his way to wealth. But he said he still liked to watch in on a game and would welcome the opportunity to do so.

Del invited him to come over, anytime.

A week later the man showed up. Obviously he had been drinking. He sat around in an orderly manner and ordered up a couple of rounds, but declined to take a hand.

Three nights later he was back, pretty well soaked up. He was persuaded to sit in, and won $120.

The Web Closes

Two nights later, on Dec. 19, he was back, drunker than the proverbial lord and carrying a roll of bills that would choke the proverbial cow. He declared he was in the game and out for blood.

After see-sawing around for an hour or so, with a few drinks and without much action, the well-dressed industrialist got a hand he liked: a pair of kings and a pair of queens. He was sitting ahead of the dealer and Del was on his off side.

Yes, we must say that this was the hand the stranger had been waiting for. But we must also say that he didn't know anything about the milk business, but was a premium poker player who had been hired by a Methodist deacon to do a specific job in Jacksonville.

He knew how this hand would go. He and the man on his left would raise and raise every body out of the game. He'd draw one card and fill, kings full. The man to his left would draw two or three cards, it didn't matter which, and would wind up with a small straight flush and the pot.

Del had to send out for money twice, as the drunken stranger kept throwing wads of green currency toward center and kept yelling for a fresh glass. Finally there was $8,000 plus in the center, and the call for cards.

He Asked For Three

Now the well-dressed drunk threw away the pair of queens and the off-card and asked for three fresh ones. The dealer started to ask if he knew what he was doing. Hereupon the drunk sobered up in a most startling fashion, pulled a revolver out of the side pocket of his plum-colored great coat, laid down his pair of kings, leveled the revolver at the dealer and said, "Deal, three."

He got another king and the six and seven of hearts. Poor Del, of course, had a bad period of sweat at this time, as all he could muster up, although he drew three cards, was a pair of fives.

The stranger, cold-sober now, kept the sun flashing hither and yon, scooped up the currency and backed out of the room.

A Perfect Wonder!

Then he did astounding things. He went to the police station, and pleaded guilty to self-imposed charges of gambling and carrying a concealed weapon. All this greatly puzzled the desk sergeant on duty and the two night patrolmen who were loafing around the place.

In burst Del and his cronies. They wanted to swear out a warrant that they had been defrauded at gamput.

Devout And Devoted

Hereupon the sober and well-dressed gambler told all assembled that he was really a Sunday school teacher; at heart, had been teaching a young adult class for 20 years, that in his early days he had succumbed to the gaming table and had learned the tricks of the trade, that now he devoted considerable of his time recovering money cheats took from erring youths, that he had come to Jacksonville and accomplished his purpose.

The sergeant took all this in, and since he didn't like Del and his crowd much anyway, he booked them all for gambling, and sent them on their way. (Exell tongues later said the police were sore at Del because he hadn't been making payoffs in a regular way.)

After things cooled off in the office the two patrolmen escorted the gambler over to the hotel and stood by until he got his takings in the safe.

How It Panned Out

How did things go from here on:

1. The employer declined to take anything except the $1,306.87 and the $1,000 advance money, with interest at 9%.

2. The interesting visitor went home, with the balance.

3. Gossiping reached a high point in Jacksonville. Everyone wondered at the story as narrated by the police.

4. Del and his friends didn't prosper, as the cops kept their joint closed entirely. Early in 1882 Del went to E. St. Louis—

although his straits at the time were not so bad as to indicate such a move. There he foolishly decided, one bleak February night, to go swimming in the Mississippi river with all his clothes on, and perished.

5. The apt spice and coffee drummer, with the financial backing of his father-in-law, left Jacksonville and went to Kansas City and found everything fine there, but went on to Denver where he opened the best spice and coffee house in the Rocky Mountain region and profited exceedingly. He never played cards again, unless you count the times when he and his ever-loving wife, Lucy, entertained at whist.

6. How come this story gets in the paper? Well, the chum who was ordered to keep his mouth buttoned up as well as his silly shoes liked to talk about the whole affair when he approached the age of elders and he told it to me 31 years ago.

7. From that day I always have regarded deacons and elders, and especially deacons, most highly.

—Cecil Tendick.

Nike-Zeus, How It Looks—

Intercontinental Missile As Ultimate In Weapons

By Ben Price
AP Newsfeatures Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—For five years the U.S. Army has been putting together the Nike-Zeus, a missile system designed to destroy intercontinental ballistic missiles in flight.

The army says unequivocally the system will work. The Defense Department has refused—publicly, at least—to buy it on the grounds there are too many technical and operating problems still unsolved.

There are reports, however, that President Kennedy and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara have decided to ask Congress next year for money to begin tooling up for Nike-Zeus production. Reportedly they were influenced by the recent success of a series of test launchings.

There has been no official confirmation of a positive decision. Meanwhile, the United States has no defense against intercontinental ballistic missiles and cannot begin to have one in less than five years even if production begins tomorrow.

The debate on the merits of the Nike-Zeus picked up an additional note of urgency this fall when Soviet Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky told the 22nd Communist Party Congress in Moscow on Oct. 23: "The problem of destroying rockets in flight has been solved."

If Malinovsky meant merely that the Russians have learned to intercept one low speed rocket with another, then there would be nothing worrisome in the statement. The United States has done this repeatedly.

If Malinovsky meant the Russians have developed a workable anti-missile missile and are now ready to begin production—and if he was telling the truth—the Russians now would have an enormous military advantage.

The Defense Department has been cautious in publicly assessing the significance of the Malinovsky statement. Defense Secretary McNamara since has said that "against our intercontinental missiles themselves, no effective countermeasures have yet been developed."

At the moment the Nike-Zeus system, which the Army says also has an anti-satellite capability, is the only anti-missile missile system extant in the non-Communist world in anything approaching the ready-to-use stage.

The Nike-Zeus is designed to operate independently of all other warning systems and is a point-defense weapon; that is, its function is to destroy enemy missiles as they approach the target in much the same fashion as anti-aircraft guns and fighter-interceptors destroy bombers.

The Nike-Zeus reportedly has a vertical range of 100 miles and a horizontal reach of 75 miles. In all probability, the Nike-Zeus has much greater operating capabilities. In referring to its anti-satellite characteristics, the Army will say only that it can be used against "vehicles in low orbit."

Generally speaking, a low orbit is considered anything under 300 miles.

The Nike-Zeus has been in the development stage since November 1956 by the Army Ordnance Missile Command at Huntsville, Ala., and to date has cost $11 billion.

The major contractors are Bell Telephone Laboratories, Western Electric Company, Douglas Aircraft, Thiokol Chemical Corp., Remington-Rand, Univac, and Sperry Gyroscope.

A complete prototype of the Nike-Zeus system exists at the White Sands, N. M., missile testing range and, the Army claims, has demonstrated it will work.

A second prototype is under construction at Kwajalein Island, 2,500 miles west of the United States, for use in flight tests against actual ICBM's next summer.

Although the Army has been asking for money since mid-1958 to begin production of long-lead-time items for the incredibly complex system, anticipating its operational use, none has been forthcoming up to now.

The Defense Department has been reluctant to spend money on anything as uncertain as its top brass considers the Nike-Zeus.

Defense Secretary McNamara gave the reasons to the Senate Armed Services Committee last April 4: "There are widespread doubts as to whether the Nike-Zeus system should ever be deployed."

per cent accurate and effective because it is soft. . . . Appropriate enemy tactics would be to first attack the Zeus and get rid of it so that all the rest of the enemy's missiles have a free ride. I am not particularly optimistic."

The scientist also said he was not particularly optimistic that a defense against ballistic missiles would ever be achieved. "For protecting the population," York said, "many people think that shelters are, on a dollar basis, more effective than Zeus. . . ."

The Army is not at all reluctant to argue these points. Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, chief of the Army's research and development, was asked in an interview if the Nike-Zeus could cope with a saturation attack.

"We admit," said Trudeau, "that some missiles would get through. There has never been a 100 per cent defense yet, but the same individuals who have argued against deployment of the Zeus on the grounds that it cannot achieve a 100 per cent kill, have always conceded that 30 per cent of the enemy's bombers would get through our best air defenses. They didn't recommend that we give up air defense. Why this inconsistency?"

Is it safe for the United States to assume that Malinovsky did not mean the Soviets had developed an anti-missile missile?

"While he didn't say they had a developed anti-ICBM system, he did say they could destroy rockets in flight. I don't see how we can assume less than a solution to the anti-ICBM problem."

Opponents of the Nike-Zeus have asserted the radar controls of the system can be jammed. Has the jamming problem been licked?

"Many people," Trudeau said, "have been confused by the 1958 tests in the Pacific. The jamming was limited principally to radio communications. Radar was affected to a much lesser extent. While no system is perfect, we think the jamming business has been overplayed."

In 1958 two Redstone rockets loaded with megaton warheads were exploded in the stratosphere over Johnston Island to test the effect of nuclear explosions on radio and radar and to measure the disturbance of the ionosphere. Some radio channels were blacked out over a large area, but not all. Both shots disturbed the ionosphere over an area 3,000 miles in diameter.

What about the claim that the Nike-Zeus could be confused and made hopelessly ineffective by decoys? "No one has yet proved that a decoy can be made with the same characteristics as a warhead. We do have a highly discriminating radar which can detect the distinct differences, such as weight-to-drag ratio."

Trudeau continued, they might as well put warheads in them. The general also said the more existence of the Nike-Zeus system of it so that all the rest of the in operational numbers would multiply the number of missiles. The enemy would have to build by a factor of 5 to 10, thus adding to his economic burdens.

How much would it cost to build a meaningful Nike-Zeus system? About $8 billion, Trudeau said. This does not mean every city, every missile launch site and every Strategic Air Command base would be defended, but only the ones deemed important to the existence and recovery of the United States.

There apparently has been a widespread misunderstanding as to how the Nike-Zeus works. The Nike-Zeus warhead does not have to make physical contact with its target. By exploding a nuclear device in the stratosphere somewhere in the vicinity of the incoming warhead, the latter is neutralized. This means that while the warhead will not be destroyed in flight, it will be an expensive piece of non-explosive hardware on impact. That is the theory. Just how close the Nike-Zeus warhead has to come to its target in order to achieve its objective is top secret.

In interviews with Nike-Zeus technicians, however, the analogy is used that the whole business is akin to hitting a bullet with a paddle the size of a football field.

The heart of the Nike-Zeus system is an integrated and completely automated, four-radar network. The brains of the system is enclosed in a huge computer, while the striking arm is a solid-fueled missile.

The Nike-Zeus missile has an initial thrust of about 500,000 pounds—about twice that of the Atlas ICBM.

The key to the Nike-Zeus system is the target acquisition radar. The prototype at White Sands is the most powerful ever built in this country.

The Swindlers Swindled

A true story in Jacksonville, 80 years ago

This is an account of an interesting event that happened in Jacksonville 80 years ago, with the payoff coming on Dec. 19, which falls on a Tuesday this year but arrived on Monday back in 1881.

In October of that same year a young, alert and handsome young man who was the best drummer in the wholesale spice and coffee line around these parts confided to his chum as they were sitting in a saloon on the north side of the square that he was going to commit suicide.

This statement shocked his pard. "How could you contemplate such a procedure?" the friend demanded. "After all you are sitting on top of the world at this date, being the best spice and coffee drummer in these parts, and a bright world is ahead of you."

And this was the approximate reply:

"Yes, I make $18 a week, but you know and I know and everybody else knows that I dress flashy and treat with a lively hand and haven't saved a dime. Worse of all, I've been trying to play poker at Del's place—you know the joint on the northeast corner of the square. I think he and his cronies are a pack of thieves, but I can't prove it."

"Anyway, I have lost $1,306.87 of my employer's money, a man who has treated me better than anybody else in this mundane world. To make things worse, I love truly his daughter Lucy and so I must do away with my cheap and worthless life."

He swore his chum to secrecy, but the next morning when the coffee and spice house opened at 6 o'clock the deceitful friend was on hand to tell the whole story to the owner.

No News To Him

This estimable gentleman told the chum that he knew all about it, had known for a month, and he advised the well-intentioned informer to keep his mouth "buttoned up like those silly shoes you're wearing."

The prized young drummer arrived at 6:30 a.m. to get his papers ready for a trip north and east and immediately asked for an audience with his employer. He told him the whole truth, skipping only the part about Lucy.

The estimable gentleman, who was a civic leader and a deacon in the church, remarked:

"Son, please note the cognomen, as they said in those days) now son, we must not allow ourselves to become rattled and excited about this apparent loss. I feel that we must do four things:

1. We must keep this entire business a secret between us. I have already warned your friend and I request you immediately repeat the admonishment to him.

2. We must recoup the funds lost.

3. We must punish the ring that took you in.

4. We must do all this in such a way that you will never touch a playing card again.

"I do this with eyes half-blinded by the love of a father, because my daughter Lucy loves you truly," the deacon said.

"Now you must go, for you have only three minutes to catch the northbound 6:58. Have a pleasant trip, and we may hope a profitable trip, son."

New Man In Town

A month later, to the very day, an especially well-built man wearing a plum-colored overcoat got off the train. He had a waxed mustache and the crowd of loafers at the railroad station nearly fell over when he gave the omnibus driver a dollar tip to haul his three satchels and two trunks to the hotel.

"I enjoy a constitutional in such nippy air," he exclaimed, as he used a solid-gold clipper to snip off the end of a Havana cigar. "I shall walk to the hotel."

News of such a character gets around fast, and by noon he had attracted interviews to the press stating that he was associated with Gail Borden, the east coast cannery mogul, and was in Jacksonville to establish an extensive dairy and a milk condensery plant.

He said he needed several sections of grazing land, preferably contiguous, and some prime business lots on which to build the factory.

Many folks found such talk very interesting.

This guy wore a different suit of clothes every day and spoke pleasantly to everybody, and in a week's time he was busy eating luncheon and dinner with the better families of the town—and especially those who had daughters who were at least of marriageable age.

Our Visitor Accosted

Del, the crooked gambler, soon introduced himself, observing that undoubtedly such a fine gent as the gent he was had the sporting blood that enjoyed a game of chance among gentlemen.

The gentleman replied that he loved to play poker, but had forewarned the game since he luckily won $5,000 in a single hand and this $5,000 had started his way to wealth. But he said he still liked to watch in on a game and would welcome the opportunity to do so.

Del invited him to come over anytime.

A week later the man showed up. Obviously he had been drinking. He sat around in an orderly manner and ordered up a couple of rounds, but declined to take a hand.

Three nights later he was back, pretty well soaked up. He was persuaded to sit in, and won $120.

The Web Closes

Two nights later, on Dec. 10, he was back, drunker than the proverbial lord and carrying a roll of bills that would choke the proverbial cow. He declared he was in the game and out for blood.

After see-sawing around for an hour or so, with a few drinks and without much action, the well-dressed industrialist got a hand he liked: a pair of kings and a pair of queens. He was sitting ahead of the dealer and Del was on his off side.

"Yes, we must say that this was the hand the stranger had been waiting for. But we must also say that he didn't know anything about the milk business, but was a premium poker player who had been hired by a Methodist deacon to do a specific job in Jacksonville."

He knew how this hand would go. He and the man on his left would raise and re-raise everybody out of the game. He'd draw the card and fill, kings full. The man to his left would draw two or three cards, it didn't matter which, and would wind up with a small straight flush and the pot.

Del had to send out for money twice, as the drunken stranger kept throwing wads of green currency toward center and kept yelling for a fresh glass. Finally there was $8,000 plus in the center, and the call for cards.

He Asked For Three

Now the well-dressed drunk threw away the pair of queens and the off-card and asked for three fresh ones. The dealer started to ask if he knew what he was doing. Hereupon the drunk sobered up in a most startling fashion, pulled a revolver out of the side pocket of his plum-colored great coat, laid down his pair of kings, leveled the revolver at the dealer and said, "Deal, three."

He got another king and the six and seven of hearts.

Poor Del, of course, had a bad period of sweat at this time, as all he could muster up, although he drew three cards, was a pair of fives.

The stranger, cold-sober now, kept the gun flashing hither and yon, scooped up the currency and backed out of the room.

A Perfect Wonder!

Then he did astounding thing. He went to the police station and pleaded guilty to self-imposed charges of gambling and carrying a concealed weapon. All this greatly puzzled the desk sergeant on duty and the two night patrolmen who were loafing around the place.

In burst Del and his cronies. They wanted to swear out a warrant that they had been defrauded at gunpoint.

Devout And Devoted

Hereupon the sober and well-dressed gambler told all assembled that he was really a Sunday school teacher at heart, had been teaching a young adult class for 20 years, that in his early days he had succumbed to the gaming table and had learned the tricks of the trade, that now he devoted considerable of his time recovering money cheats took from erring youths, that he had come to Jacksonville and accomplished his purpose.

The sergeant took all this in, and since he didn't like Del and his crowd much anyway, he booked them all for gambling, and sent them on their way. (Evil tongues later said the police were sore at Del because he hadn't been making payoffs in a regular way.)

After things cooled off in the office the two patrolmen escorted the gambler over to the hotel and stood by until he got his takings in the safe.

How It Panned Out

How did things go from here on:

1. The employer declined to take anything except the $1,306.87 and the $1,000 advance money, with interest at 9%.
2. The interesting visitor went home, with the balance.
3. Gossiping reached a high point in Jacksonville. Everyone wondered at the story as narrated by the police.

4. Del and his friends didn't prosper, as the cops kept their joint closed entirely. Early in 1882 Del went to E. St. Louis.

although his straits at the time were not so bad as to indicate such a move. There he foolishly decided, one bleak February night, to go swimming in the Mississippi river with all his clothes on, and perished.

5. The apt spice and coffee drummer, with the financial backing of his father-in-law, left Jacksonville and went to Kansas City and found everything fine there, but went on to Denver where he opened the best spice and coffee house in the Rocky Mountain region and prospered exceedingly. He never played cards again, unless you count the times when he and his ever-loving wife, Lucy, entertained at whist.

6. How come this story gets in the paper? Well, the chum who was ordered to keep his mouth buttoned up as well as his silly shoes liked to talk about the whole affair when he approached the age of elders and he told it to me 31 years ago.

7. From that day I always have regarded deacons and elders, and especially deacons, most highly.

—Cecil Tendick.

Christian Home Family Dresses Dolls

Members of the Illinois Christian Home family responded to the call of the Salvation Army to dress dolls for Christmas. A number of ladies at the Christian home decided they could still sew and were eager to prove it. A total of 24 dolls were dressed by the group and delivered to the Salvation Army. In addition, several of the residents who could not assist in dressing the dolls sent money to help make a brighter Christmas at the Salvation Army.

A total of 288 dolls were distributed to individuals and groups throughout Morgan County by the Salvation Army. The dolls will be returned fully dressed this week for distribution to families with young girls along with Christmas baskets.

A number of organizations assisted with dressing dolls for the Salvation Army. This year was the first year for the venture due to the curtailment of the supply of repaired toys. Capt. Albert Weir, commander of the Salvation Army post, said he was "very pleased and happy" at the response to the plea to help dress the dolls. The dolls were purchased without clothing by the Army.

Selection of the best dressed dolls will be next Friday at the Salvation Army headquarters. Prizes will be awarded to the person or group who made the best costume.

Vette - Leischner Vows Spoken At Chandlerville

Marriage vows were exchanged new Mrs. Leischner wore a blue on Sunday, December 10, by Miss sapphire velvet sheath dress with Patricia Ann Vette, daughter of black accessories and was wearing Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Vette of a white carnation corsage. After Chandlerville, Ill., and John H. a short wedding trip, the couple Leischner, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. will reside in an apartment at John Leischner of Arenzville, Ill. Arenzville. A graduate of Chandlerville High School, the bride is presently employed by the Franklin Life Insurance Co. in Springfield, Ill. The groom graduated from the Arenzville High School, spent a two year period in the U.S. Army and is now engaged in farming.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lovely ballerina length gown of imported lace over taffeta. The fitted bodice was fashioned with cap sleeves and a sash neckline with tiny self covered buttons down the back. The lace of the very bouffant skirt was patterned to give a three tiered effect. Her fingertip veil of French illusion fell from a scalloped tulle of lace encrusted with seed pearls. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom, and she carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations with royal blue satin streamers.

Miss Carolyn Vette, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She was attired in electric blue satin. The sleeveless gown was designed sheath-like, with an overskirt to suggest inverted panels in the skirt and a rolled fabric rose at the waist. Her velvet headpiece with veil, and blue satin pumps coordinated with the color of her gown. She carried a smaller colonial bouquet, similar to that of the bride.

Serving as best man was Ralph Wohler, Jacksonville, Ill., friend of the groom and the ushers were Charles and Richard Leischner, brothers of the groom, from Arenzville.

Mrs. Clara Scott presided at the organ playing the traditional Wedding March and also accompanied the soloist, Wayne Strubbe of Arenzville, who sang, "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Wedding Prayer."

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Vette wore a royal blue crepe dress, with copper accessories. The bridegroom's mother also wore blue but chose to wear black accessories. Both wore white carnation corsages.

Receive At Home

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the lovely country home of the bride for approximately 50 guests. A buffet luncheon was served from a beautifully decorated blue and white table which was centered with a white four tier wedding cake decorated with blue roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Crystal candelabra with lighted white tapered candles and a crystal punch bowl completed the table appointments. Mrs. Fred Kupfer, Washington, Ill., aunt of the bride presided over the punch bowl and Miss Carol Leischner, sister of the groom, cut and served the cake. Others assisting were Mrs. Fred Ruppel, Beardstown, Ill., aunt of the bride, Mrs. Charles Jordan and Mrs. Lowell Barrett, of Chandlerville. Mrs. Donald Wankel, Beardstown, and Mrs. Stanley Strong of Quincy, both aunts of the bride were in charge of the gifts. Miss Arlene Leischner, sister of the groom, registered the guests.

Editorial Comment

Courting Chaos

Americans would be quickly aroused if they felt that danger threatened their right of free choice at the polls.

Most, however, seem only dimly aware that another cornerstone of their freedom—the fair, full and swift administration of justice—is already seriously undermined.

Our democratic system centers on regard for the rights of the individual. If he cannot gain speedy redress for wrongs committed against him, his liberty obviously suffers.

Voluminous testimony today indicates that justice properly defined cannot be had by thousands upon thousands who clog our courts from the lowest city level to the federal system.

Two new surveys emphasize what amounts to an almost demoralizing chaos in the courts.

The magazine Fortune, taking note of the well-remarked delays of from one to five years in the handling of civil cases, argues that the pile-up of old claims is not even the worst of it.

It points out that judges, juries and lawyers have barely begun to familiarize themselves with a flood of totally new problems arising from scientific and technical advances, the spread of business abroad, the mounting complexity of government.

This means, says the magazine, that a "system of justice which is not fit to handle yesterday's demands until today will not be able to handle tomorrow's demands at all."

Parade, a weekly, studied U.S. traffic courts for half a year and discovered that on balance they are overcrowded, inefficient, unmindful of preserving basic constitutional rights, sometimes willing to put justice on a cash basis, tending to foster disrespect for the courts and for law and order.

Such terms as "meat grinders" and "cafeterias" sometimes are pinned to traffic courts in such big cities as Chicago. In the latter, on a typical day, 3,900 traffic cases may be called, not including 6,000 parking offenses wherein defendants pay fines by mail.

In countless instances, defendants are automatically presumed guilty, in clear defiance of the fundamental that a man is innocent until proved guilty.

Higher in the judicial system, the delays—plus the prospect of improper handling through ignorance of problems—lead many people either to suffer injustice without action, or to seek out-of-court settlements whose net effect may be unfair.

It is easy to sit by and call for a complete overhaul and enlargement of our creaking courts. Many experts believe, however, that nothing less will prevent the deep corrosion of our liberties.

Unanswered Questions

The people who devise entertainment for the American public—from children on up—seem to operate on the theory we are all as lazy mentally as President Kennedy indicates we are physically.

By the measures the entertainment impresarios use, they can muster some pretty good evidence.

In illustration, the TV listener ratings, for whatever they are worth, suggest that on Thanksgiving night the gangster serial, "The Untouchables," and "Sing Along with Mitch" outdrew by ratios of 3 and 4 to 1 an hour-long filmed interview with former President Eisenhower.

This kind of thing is not new, of course, but it is constantly cited by the broadcasting industry to justify flooding TV screens with westerns, gangster shows, quizzes and other frothy trivia.

In the same way, film and stage producers point to relative cash receipts in defense of their concentration on light entertainment as against solid dramatic fare.

Newton Minow, chairman of the FCC, thinks broadcasters sadly under-rate the public's taste and understanding. He argues that they have been particularly cavalier in "frittering away" opportunities in the children's field.

Catching youngsters at the formative stage, says Minow, TV could do much to widen their knowledge and give them high standards of taste.

Some voices in the industry are heard in support, but many who say they would like to see better programming agree with one man's comment that the thinking person's program "doesn't have a chance—there just aren't enough of us."

Presumably the reaction will inevitably be the same when similar criticisms are leveled at other entertainment media.

A good deal of evidence indicates that Europeans digest far more solid fare than we in their books, their movies, their theater, their television.

Some Americans who have lived long abroad are stunned when they return here and see the contrast.

The President says that in physical tests the children of Austria, Italy and Switzerland leave ours far behind. Other comparisons have given English youngsters a marked edge.

Despite Minow's stout faith in us, mental comparisons, it seems, might prove even more embarrassing.

One has to wonder exactly what it is that Americans ARE concentrating on these days. It is certainly not fitness of any sort.

Take It From Ann

Petty Picking By Daughter-In-Law Gets No Support From Ann

Dear Ann Landers: My mother-in-law never interferes nor makes demands, but she knows how to get what she wants in clever little ways.

She's been having dinner with us every Sunday for years. She arrives in a taxi (and can't afford it) but when it comes time to go home she says "I think I'll call a cab" instead of going ahead and doing it. Naturally, my husband says, "Oh no, Mother, we'll drive you."

When we get to the car she always asks where she should sit—instead of getting into the back seat where she belongs. Of course my husband says, "Sit in front with me, Mother." This means I have to sit in back with the kids. She's had some trouble with her hip but with a little effort she could get in the back seat and let husband and wife be together. You always say no one should come between a man and his wife. Right?—T. J.

Dear T. J.: If you think you're going to go to me to support your somewhat lack of consideration for your mother-in-law, by twisting my words, you're really the wrong one.

She sounds like a lovely person. The fact that she arrives in a taxi and asks where to sit when she is being driven home, proves it. The least you can do is be gracious about driving her home once a week and letting her sit in the back seat.

Dear Ann Landers: Please say something in defense of working mothers. The career girls in this office make cutting remarks about women who "run away from their family obligations in order to buy luxuries."

I married a man who had a weakness for liquor. I thought he'd get better but instead he got worse. I had three babies in four years. When the children started to school they had to wear their cousin's cast-off clothes. We were barely able to pay the rent and buy groceries. When the youngest boy was five I borrowed money from my brother and took a night-school business course. Today I have an excellent position and earn $110 a week.

We now have good furniture, a car, and the children no longer wear second hand clothing. I'd love to quit work and stay home but I can't. We need that $440 a month desperately. Some weeks my husband doesn't give me a dime.

So please say a word in behalf of working mothers, Ann. Some of us have no choice—MARTHA.

Dear Martha: You said it—and well, too. My thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I've heard that certain people can be allergic to other people. Is this my trouble?

My boy friend has a very scratchy beard. My skin is awfully sensitive. When he kisses me and rubs his face against mine, my cheeks get red and itchy.

We've been going together for six months and it seems to be getting worse. Maybe it's because he doesn't shave as often as he should. Would you say I am allergic to him or what?—MELBA.

Dear Melba: This does not sound like a true allergy in the strict medical sense (where personality conflicts create chemical changes).

Your skin irritation is probably the result of his scratchy beard. Ask your boy friend to return to his courtship-day shaving habits. This should help.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Melba: This does not sound like a true allergy in the strict medical sense (where personality conflicts create chemical changes).

Your skin irritation is probably the result of his scratchy beard. Ask your boy friend to return to his courtship-day shaving habits. This should help.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Ann Landers: I've heard that certain people can be allergic to other people. Is this my trouble?

My boy friend has a very scratchy beard. My skin is awfully sensitive. When he kisses me and rubs his face against mine, my cheeks get red and itchy.

We've been going together for six months and it seems to be getting worse. Maybe it's because he doesn't shave as often as he should. Would you say I am allergic to him or what?—MELBA.

Members of the Illinois Christian Home family responded to the call of the Salvation Army to dress dolls for Christmas. A number of ladies at the Christian home decided they could still sew and were eager to prove it. A total of 24 dolls were dressed by the group and delivered to the Salvation Army. In addition, several of the residents who could not assist in dressing the dolls sent money to help make a brighter Christmas at the Salvation Army.

Four of those who helped dress the dolls are shown above, seated, Mrs. Flora Sipe of Savannah, Missouri; Mrs. Grace Wiley of Paris, Illinois; Mrs. Emma Englehart of Kirksville, Missouri, and Mrs. Oleta Ratekin of Fulton, Missouri.

Albert Weir, commander of the Salvation Army post, said he was "very pleased and happy" at the response to the plea to help dress the dolls. The dolls were purchased without clothing by the Army.

Vette - Leischner Vows Spoken At Chandlerville

Marriage vows were exchanged on Sunday, December 10, by Miss Patricia Ann Vette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Vette of Chandlerville, Ill., and John H. Leischner, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Leischner of Arenzville, Ill. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter Linde in Salem Lutheran Church at Chandlerville. Bronze vases containing white carnations and fern decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lovely ballerina length gown of imported lace over taffeta. The fitted bodice was fashioned with cap sleeves and a Sabrina neckline with tiny self covered buttons down the back. The lace of the very bouffant skirt was patterned to give a three tiered effect. Her fingertip veil of French illusion fell from a scalloped tiera of lace encrusted with seed pearls. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom, and she carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations with royal blue satin streamers.

Miss Carolyn Vette, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She was attired in electric blue satin. The sleeveless gown was designed sheath-like, with an overskirt to suggest inverted panels in the skirt and a rolled fabric rose at the waist. Her velvet headpiece with veil, and blue satin pumps coordinated with the color of her gown. She carried a smaller colonial bouquet, similar to that of the bride.

Serving as best man was Ralph Wohler, Jacksonville, Ill., friend of the groom and the ushers were Charles and Richard Leischner, brothers of the groom, from Arenzville.

Mrs. Clara Scott presided at the organ playing the traditional Wedding March and also accompanied the soloist, Wayne Strubbe of Arenzville, who sang, "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the lovely country home of the bride for approximately 90 guests. A buffet luncheon was served from a beautifully decorated blue and white table which was centered with a white four tiered wedding cake decorated with blue roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Crystal candelabra with lighted white tapered candles and a crystal punch bowl completed the table appointments. Mrs. Fred Kuper, Washington, Ill., aunt of the bride presided over the punch bowl and Miss Carol Leischner, sister of the groom, cut and served the cake. Others assisting were Mrs. Fred Ruppel, Beardstown, Ill., aunt of the bride, Mrs. Charles Jordan and Mrs. Lowell Barrett, of Chandlerville. Mrs. Donald Wanckel, Beardstown, and Mrs. Stanley Strong of Quincy, both aunts of the bride were in charge of the gifts. Miss Arlene Leischner, sister of the groom, registered the guests.

For her going away outfit, the new Mrs. Leischner wore a blue sapphire velvet sheath dress with black accessories and was wearing Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Vette of a white carnation corsage. After a short wedding trip, the couple will reside in an apartment at Chandlerville High School, the bride is presently employed by the Franklin Life Insurance Co. in Springfield, Ill. The groom graduated from the Arenzville High School, spent a two year period in the U.S. Army and is now engaged in farming.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell McGlasson of White Hall and the bridegroom is the grandson of Mrs. Nona Fry of Roodhouse.

The bride's cousin, Miss Prudy McGlasson, and Terry Fry, brother of the bride, attended the couple.

The former Miss McGlasson wore a gray dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Miss Prudy McGlasson wore a gray wool suit with corresponding accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A reception was held by the bride's parents after the two o'clock ceremony with members of the wedding party and close friends of the couple attending.

Mrs. Fry attended the White Hall High School and the groom graduated from Roodhouse High School in 1961. He is employed by Jackson's plumbing and heating firm at Roodhouse.

Guests were Lyndell Hardwick and Harry Hardwick of White Hall; Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Kittmiller and daughters of Hettick; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hardwick, son John and granddaughter, Miss Helen Crain, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hardwick and daughter, Linda Kay, Calvin Hardwick, Miss Allie Hardwick, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dalton Jr. and children and Miss Patsy Holmes of Carrollton.

Born At Hospital

Two babies were born in Boyd Memorial hospital Wednesday and Thursday. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lyndell Guthrie of Carrollton Wednesday and a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kadell of Jerseyville Thursday.

For her going away outfit, the new Mrs. Leischner wore a blue sapphire velvet sheath dress with black accessories and was wearing Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Vette of a white carnation corsage. After a short wedding trip, the couple will reside in an apartment at Chandlerville High School, the bride is presently employed by the Franklin Life Insurance Co. in Springfield, Ill. Camp Point Engineer Says Dreamers Often Miss Primary Aims

CHICAGO—Research workers and professors in the field of agricultural engineering who dream up new ways to do old jobs must keep "mighty close to farmers, farming operations and most of all the farmer's problems," the manager of an Illinois electrical co-operative told the 1961 winter meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers in the Palmer House, Dec. 13-15.

Dean Searls, manager of the Adams Electrical Co-operative at Camp Point, Ill., in a paper on "Problems of the Rural Service Engineer," said the rural electrician service engineer must be ever-mindful of the need for research which will develop new ways of making farm production more efficient.

He pointed to the confusion in the farmer's mind on the best way to handle hay, and admitted that his co-operative has had little success in getting farmers in his area to use a gin for hay drying, but said that "the only consolation about this whole affair is that I know of none who have made more progress in my immediate area."

What Road To Take
"One thing I'm convinced of," said Searls, "we have the farmer so confused with hay making and keeping gadgets he doesn't know just which course to take so he just keeps making hay the same old way he has for the past 30 years with two exceptions—first, he uses a baler, and second, he uses an elevator to put it in the barn. He may follow the 'highs' and 'lows' on the weather map more closely now than he has television, but he succeeds in getting just as much hay wet and ruined as 30 years ago."

"How can a farmer decide when there's an argument for green chopped hay sealed in airtight storage structures? How does he decide which tool to use in cutting the hay crops—should he clip it, clip it, mow it or just brush it a little? Should he crimp it, roll it, mash it or leave it alone? Should it be windrowed before curing, after curing, or during curing? What about field losses in rolling, crimping, mashing or brushing? Is it any wonder we still make hay in the horse and buggy era?"

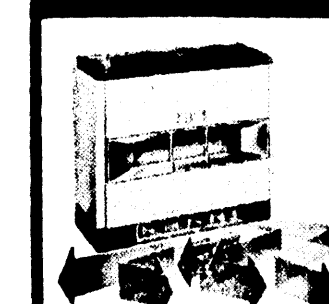

Searls also called for research on—
—a smaller motor to unload high moisture storage bins
—farm equipment which will operate off of storage batteries
—an electric cart to haul supplies to the farmstead
—a garden tractor and lawn mowers operating on storage batteries and "recharged while you sleep."

Convention Sidelights

By the Journal Courier Farm Editor

All Midwest, and particularly Illinois, farmers were pleased Thursday by the election of William J. Kuhfuss, young and dynamic "middle-of-the-road" president of the Illinois Agricultural Association, to the board of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

This is bound to give the Midwest a stronger voice in national farm policies, his friends assert.

Kuhfuss, 49, is the first Illinois man elected to the national board since the election in 1954, when Charles B. Shuman, then I.A.A. president and now head of the APBF, was named a director.

Kuhfuss, a former star athlete at Illinois Normal, had risen fast in Farm Bureau circles. He was elected vice president of the IAA five years ago after serving as president of the Tazewell County Farm Bureau. He advanced to president upon the untimely death of Otto Steffey in 1958 and has been elected annually since then.

Kuhfuss' rise to the national board especially pleases those who admire Shuman very much, but who regard him as leaning "away too much to the right." Shuman is in special high regard for his untiring devotion to what he regards as right, for his honesty and his dignity. It is extremely doubtful that any combination of forces could be mustered to force him out of his present post. But many, many of his friends take the attitude, and now have the hope, that Kuhfuss and his associates can meet with Shuman behind most tightly closed doors and work him out of a more of the road approach to farm problems.

For many, many practical farmers feel that Shuman has worked himself into a laudable, but impractical, position. They do not agree with him when he terms the 1961 emergency feed grains program "a billion dollar fiasco."

They wonder what would have happened if such a program had not been in effect during the past nine months.

But few of them can screw up the courage to tell Shuman they feel he is wrong. Bob Nickel, young Concord farmer, did it in his testimony before the powerful research committee. His remarks started some of the public relations professionals on the A.F.B.F. staff and they asked many questions on "Who is this guy? What does he want?" before they could subside with the assurance that he wasn't an anarchist of any kind.

But Nickel's remarks were received by gusto by many newspapermen. To them, this was "good copy" on a dull day and they quoted him in their dispatches, accurate dispatches so far as the ones this writer scanned.

Farm Bureau Assails Big Government Role, Shuman Reelected

By OVID A. MARTIN

CHICAGO (AP)—A militant foe of big government will continue to lead the influential American Farm Bureau Federation in efforts to get Uncle Sam out of farming.

He is Charles B. Shuman, a stock and grain farmer of Sullivan, Ill. The federation's convention which ended Thursday re-elected him president, a post he has held since 1951.

Shuman's re-election was accompanied by convention adoption of resolutions which put the farm organization on record opposing a supply management farm commodity control program, which Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman had asked it to support in a speech before delegates.

The federation leader, who says he is proud to be a conservative, had told the same delegates that he considered federal regulation of agriculture and farm subsidies to be a violation of "God's pattern" for mankind as well as detrimental to farmers' economic well-being.

Shuman has been a Sunday school teacher for more than 20 years.

Would Limit Role
Shuman and his organization said government aid to agriculture should be in the fields of research, information, regulatory actions and the "creation of a favorable economic climate" for the nation's private enterprise system.

He said government invariably fails when it attempts to guarantee prices or income for farmers. Conventions resolutions said federal programs of the latter nature have led the public to direct attacks against the farm people generally.

"The elimination of unsound federal farm programs would be the greatest single contribution which could be made to earn the good will of the public," the resolutions said.

The federation went along with President Kennedy on the idea that there is need to negotiate reduction of barriers to international trade, although it rejected his farm policies.

Trade, it declared, is a better foundation for U.S. foreign policy than aid.

The Farm Bureau would not set government out of the farm control picture immediately. It would continue controls on cotton, tobacco and rice for the time being.

To bring production of other crops into line with demands and eliminate surplus production, it would pay farmers to retire immediate cropland until such time as such land might be required. The Farm Bureau believes greatly improved farm incomes, as well as a reduction in farm program costs, would result.

Farmers would be free to use the remaining cropland as they saw fit. Kennedy administration programs, on the other hand, call for production limitations on a number of individual crops as a means of halting overproduction, boosting income, and reducing costs.

In most recent years China has exported around 55 million bushels of soybeans annually, but exports from the 1960 crop apparently were only about one-fourth to one-third of normal. China appears to have had poor crops again in 1961. Consequently exports of Chinese beans again are likely to be small.

The United States had no reserves of soybeans last year to make up for the reduced exports from China. In fact, we exported only about 130 million bushels, 11 million less than the year before. But the fact that foreign demand was strong forced United States processors to bid up the price in order to keep enough beans in the country to keep their mills running.

Domestic mills used 401 million bushels of soybeans in 1960-61. This was 8 million bushels more than one year before, but just the same as two years earlier. Also, 45 million bushels were used for seed and other farm purposes.

For this marketing year, which began October 1, domestic mills are expected to take around 425 million bushels. Exporters are figured to take 175 million or so. Subtract another 45 million for seed and other farm disappearance, and then we would still have about 75 million bushels of beans left over next October 1—that is, after allowing for increases of 6 per cent for domestic crushings and 35 per cent for export. If farmers do not put most of this 75 million bushels under price support, market prices are likely to sag below the support level.

Some of the 1961 crop has not been harvested and will be lost in the fields. Of course, there are some losses every year, but they seem to be considerably larger than normal this year. But even with those losses, the market supply seems to be more than enough to meet prospective needs until the 1962 crop becomes available.

We may note, however, that the expected carry-over next fall is only about one-tenth of the 1961 crop. That is not a big reserve. On the other hand, all big surpluses of crops have been built up by adding small amounts over a period of several years.

SOYBEAN PRICES TO SWING NEAR SUPPORT LEVEL

Prices of soybeans probably will hold close to the price-support level for the next six months. This is normal behavior for prices of a crop where the supply is substantially larger than the amount that will be used at the support price.

The situation was quite different a year ago. Then the supply did not exceed prospective use and exports. The price-support level was below market value. The crop failure in China then could be reflected in rising prices in the United States.

For the 1960-61 marketing year we had 582 million bushels of soybeans. The carry-over in 1960 was 23 million bushels, and the crop 556 million. This year we have 716 million bushels. (The carry-over was an insignificant 6 million bushels, while the 1961 crop was 710 million.) These figures show that our supply of beans for this marketing year is 23 per cent more than the amount we had last year.

Sold Near Support
The price-support level for this year is $2.30 a bushel, 45 cents higher than for the 1960 crop. But the price-support level last year was not much of a factor in the market. Farmers sold their 1960 crop of beans at prices averaging $2.21 a bushel, which is only 9 cents lower than the support price for the 1961 crop.

Complete Many SCS Practices In The County

Completion of soil and water saving practices in Morgan county was good last year, reports Joe Graham, SCS.

But he observes, "The number of proposed improvements should have been much higher, since we have been suffering an enormous soil and water loss as thousands of acres of permanent and improved pastures have been plowed and are now used to grow row-cropped crops."

A high completion of projects, despite general poor weather for construction indicates there is a growing interest in conservation and ever since U.S. farmers have been turning out food and fiber at such a pace that this nation never has known famine.

Born in a real war, the Department of Agriculture has figured in countless political battles and the end is not in sight. Paradoxically, it is the very plenty which it has helped create that makes the department—or its policies, at least—the subject of so much controversy.

The department is planning many events next year to point with pride at what the American farmer has accomplished during the past century.

At the same time, Secretary Orville L. Freeman will be battling with Congress in an effort to establish new farm programs.

Freeman's main plea is expected to be for more authority to carry out his supply management philosophy. The nub of this is to control production of products that exceed demand. The approach will center on the theme that ported in 1950.

To Mark 100th Year Of Farm Department, Launched By Lincoln

By RICHARD P. POWERS

WASHINGTON (AP)—On May 15, 1862, President Abraham Lincoln had a war on his hands. But he took time to sign the act creating the Department of Agriculture.

That war is in the process of being commemorated in many ways in the Civil War centennial observances. Beginning May 15, 1962, by proclamation of President Kennedy, the USDA will begin its 100th birthday party.

Part of the idea behind the celebration of the USDA was to insure plenty of food for the United States. The food was provided by the department and ever since U.S. farmers have been turning out food and fiber at such a pace that this nation never has known famine.

Born in a real war, the Department of Agriculture has figured in countless political battles and the end is not in sight. Paradoxically, it is the very plenty which it has helped create that makes the department—or its policies, at least—the subject of so much controversy.

Freeman's main plea is expected to be for more authority to carry out his supply management philosophy. The nub of this is to control production of products that exceed demand. The approach will center on the theme that ported in 1950.

Last year, according to the U.S.D.A., $15 million worth of U.S. baby foods were shipped overseas. That is double the amount exported in 1950.

Camp Point Engineer Says Dreamers Often Miss Primary Aims

CHICAGO—Research workers and professors in the field of agricultural engineering who dream up new ways to do old jobs must keep "mightily close to farmers, farming operations and most of all the farmer's problems," the manager of an Illinois electrical co-operative told the 1961 winter meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers in the Palmer House, Dec. 13-15.

Dean Searls, manager of the Adams Electrical Co-operative at Camp Point, Ill., in a paper on "Problems of the Rural Electric Engineer," said the rural electric service engineer must be ever-mindful of the need for research which will develop new ways of making farm production more efficient.

He pointed to the confusion in the farmer's mind on the best way to handle hay, and admitted that his co-operative has had little success in getting farmers in his area to use a fan for hay drying, but said that "the only compelling thing about this whole affair is that I know of none who have made more progress in my immediate area."

What Road To Take
"One thing I'm convinced of," said Searls, "we have the farmer so confused with hay making and keeping gadgets he doesn't know just which course to take so he just keeps making hay the same old way he has for the past 30 years with two exceptions—first, he uses a baler, and second, he uses an elevator to put it in the barn. He may follow the 'highs' and 'lows' on the weather map more closely now that he has television, but he succeeds in getting just as much hay wet and ruined as 30 years ago."

"How can a farmer decide when there's an argument for green chopped hay sealed in airtight storage structures? How does he decide which tool to use in cutting the hay crop—should he mow it, clip it, muckrate it or just brush it a little? Should he crimp it, roll it, mash it or leave it alone? Should it be windrowed before curing, after curing, or during curing? What about field losses in rolling, crimping, mashing or brushing? Is it any wonder we still make hay in the horse and buggy era?"

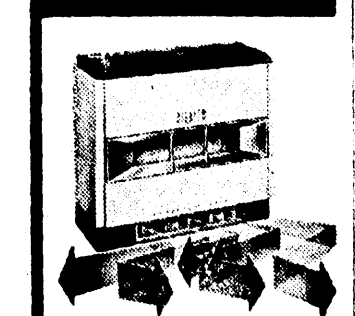

Searls also called for research on—
—a smaller motor to unload high moisture storage bins
—farm equipment which will operate off of storage batteries
—an electric cart to haul supplies to the farmstead
—a garden tractor and lawn mowers operating on storage batteries and "recharged while you sleep."

Convention Sidelights

By the Journal Courier Farm Editor

All Midwest, and particularly Illinois, farmers were pleased Thursday by the election of William J. Kuhfuss, young and dynamic "middle-of-the-road" president of the Illinois Agricultural Association, to the board of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

This is bound to give the Midwest a stronger voice in national farm policies, his friends assert.

Kuhfuss, 40, is the first Illinois man elected to the national board since the election in 1954, when Charles B. Shuman, then I.A.A. president and now head of the AFBF, was named a director.

Our methods of growing corn were taught to the colonists by the Indians," he said. "They planted corn in hills and they had learned to hoe out all weeds. The colonists had to learn that from them. By 1880, most of our present pattern of corn growing was established by experience. The 40 to 44 inch row was probably related in part to the width of a horse, but proved to be a satisfactory average distance for corn roots to occupy in utilizing the ground area economically."

Experiments in planting rows 60 inches and 80 inches apart, in order to sow forages or wheat between the rows, have resulted in three per cent and 18 per cent lower yields, respectively, than the 40-inch rows. Willard reported that Alpha stands are better in wide rows than 40-inch rows, he added, but are seldom really good, and the good stands cut the yield of corn still further.

Planting in narrower rows with plants spaced about as far apart as the rows has given up to five per cent increases over 40-inch rows, with little probability that any greater increase can be obtained, the Ohio agronomist revealed, and continued, "Corn will have to be more valuable than now to justify change in that direction."

For many, many practical farmers feel that Shuman has worked himself into a huddle, but impractical position. They do not agree with him when he terms the 1961 emergency feed grains program "a billion dollar fiasco."

They wonder what would have happened if such a program had not been in effect during the past nine months.

But few of them can screw up the courage to tell Shuman they feel he is wrong. Bob Nickel, young Concord farmer, did it in his testimony before the powerful resolutions committee. His remarks started some of the public relations professionals on the A.F.B.F. staff and they asked many questions on "Who is this guy? What does he want?" before they could subside with the assurance that he wasn't an anarchist of some kind.

But Nickel's remarks were received by many with newspapermen. To them, this was "good copy" on a dull day and they quoted him in their dispatches, accurate dispatches so far as the ones this writer scanned.

Subtract another 40 million for seed and other farm disappearance. Then we would still have about 75 million bushels of beans left over next October 1—that is, after allowing for increases of 6 per cent for domestic crushings and 35 per cent for export. If farmers do not put most of this 75 million bushels under price support, market prices are likely to sag below the support level.

Some of the 1961 crop has not been harvested and will be lost in the fields. Of course, there are some losses every year, but they seem to be considerably larger than normal this year. But even with these losses, the market supply seems to be more than enough to meet prospective needs until the 1962 crop becomes available.

We may note, however, that the expected carry-over next fall is only about one-tenth of the 1961 crop. That is not a big reserve. On the other hand, all big surpluses of crops have been built up by adding surpluses amounting over a period of several years.

Complete Many SCS Practices In The County

Completion of soil and water saving practices in Morgan county was good last year, reports Joe Graham, SCS.

But he observes, "The number of proposed improvements should have been much higher, since we are suffering an enormous soil and water loss as thousands of acres of permanent and improved pastures have been plowed and are now used to grow row-cropped crops."

A high completion of projects despite general poor weather for construction indicates there is a growing interest in conservation work, Graham feels.

Due to a number of reasons some of the practices set up and approved by the local district will not be finished this year, but the preliminary work has been done and everything is all set to go in 1962.

Completed projects included 35 terraces, 24 major structures, 3 diversions, 16 farm ponds, 10 tile outlets, 3 contoured acres, "These amounted to 150 acres, are about one percent of what we should have in the county," Graham said. 5 unvegetated waterways and 5 tile extensions.

Aiding Graham in the technical assistance in these projects were his aide, Bob Turner of Murrayville; Richard Ryan and George Westbrook. The latter two men are area SCS engineering aides with headquarters in Jacksonville and they surveyed and designed most of the larger structures.

ADVERTISE—IT PAYS

By RICHARD P. POWERS

WASHINGTON (P)—On May 15, 1962, President Abraham Lincoln had a war on his hands. But he took time to sign the act creating the Department of Agriculture.

That war is in the process of being commemorated in many ways in the Civil War centennial observances. Beginning May 15, 1962, by proclamation of President Kennedy, the USDA will begin its 100th birthday party.

Part of the idea behind the creation of the USDA was to insure plenty of food for the Union army. The farm was provided and ever since U.S. farmers have been turning out food and fiber at such a pace that this nation never has known famine.

Born in a real war, the Department of Agriculture has figured in countless political battles and the end is not in sight. Paradoxically, it is the very plenty which the department—or its policies, at least—the subject of so much controversy.

The department is planning many events next year to point with pride at what the American farmer has accomplished during the past century. At the same time, Secretary Orville L. Freeman will be battling with Congress in an effort to establish new farm programs. Freeman's main plea is expected to be for more authority to carry out his supply management philosophy. The nub of this is to control production of products that exceed demand. The opposition will center on the theme that the farmer in the long run will be better off with fewer controls. The Agriculture Department, in preparing for the centennial observance, says that agriculture is the nation's biggest industry.

The department adds: "Its assets exceed $206 billion. Its annual cash sales total about $31 billion. It employs more than 7 million people on its 3.7 million farms and ranches. Four out of every 10 jobs in private employment are in agriculture, or related to it."

"Farmers and their families have a buying power of $40 to $41 billion a year. Farmers use nearly half as much steel as the automobile and truck industry. More petroleum products than any other industry, and are major purchasers of rubber, chemicals, electricity and countless other products."

Last year, according to the U.S.D.A., $15 million worth of U.S. baby foods were shipped overseas. This is double the amount exported in 1960.

The Civil War --- 100 Years Ago

News, Views Century Ago

From The Jacksonville Sentinel: CHILDREN'S CONCERT. The concert on last Friday night, for the benefit of wounded soldiers, was a successful affair. The sale of the tickets, we learn, amounted to over two hundred dollars.

HOGS. We learn that during the past week Mr. J. T. Newman bought some eight hundred hogs from our farmers. They were intended for packing and were a very superior lot. The price paid was $2.15 and $2.25.

FIRE WARDENS. The trustees of the town of Jacksonville have appointed fire wardens in each ward. They will serve without compensation, but will be exempt from road tax or road labor during their term of office.

The news of the probable war with England has already effected the price of all kinds of cotton goods. Should this advance prove permanent, those who have quantities of cotton fabric on hand will realize a heavy profit.

We learn that the city authorities will make an appeal to the different churches in reference to the present condition of the poor of the city.

Mr. A. W. Harney, of the Diamond Grove dairy, proposes to furnish our citizens with milk. See advertisement.

We learn that the roof of a dwelling in the south part of town was partially burned on Wednesday afternoon.

From The Jacksonville Journal: THE CONCERT. We are but expressing the opinion of all who attended, when we say that the concert for the sick and wounded soldiers, by the Sunday School children, exceeded their highest anticipations. The entertainment was admirably planned, and the execution was generally good, though some, from inexperience, probably did not perform their part as creditably as they had hoped to do.

The object of the concert was very successful—having made clear of all expense $203.00. The total receipts were $217.00, the expense being altogether $14.00. Too much praise cannot be given to those enterprising patriotic persons who planned and carried out the exhibition. Our praise ought to be also bestowed upon the children who are thus doing all in their power to assist the cause of the country.

MARRIED. At Concord Congregational Church on Sabbath, Dec. 15th, by Prof. Nutting, Jr., Col. Henry J. Atkins to Miss Laura A. French, both of Morgan County.

Something New — McElroy & Owen have just received a large lot of Holbrook's celebrated No. 100. The States are certainly the very best of the kind we have ever examined. They are made of the very best materials and in the best style, being wadded with plush on the corners so as to be perfectly noiseless in the school room. Go and see them.

The Chicago Tribune correspondent writes:

Truly enough, at this hour thousands of refugees are fleeing from Missouri that they may find bread, and afterward a home in our happy Free State. Scarcely clad, half famished, and pinched with cold, they enter our border towns and beg, for they have no money, that they may live. Nor are these the ignorant poor—it is the better class in the Slave States who are faithful to the Union. Whole families and whole neighborhoods have come, and the roads leading to St. Louis and the city itself are filled with them. Far to the rear come the various divisions of Price's army, and when they overtake the helpless exiles they rob them of everything. From the men they take even their pocket-knives.

us a camp site on the opposite, or west side of the river, near Otterville. I rode over it this evening, and reported it satisfactory to General Palmer. There is plenty of water and plenty of stone for fire places, but we shall have to haul wood if we stay there long.

December 11th. Got Company B over on the new camp ground and put my regiment camp laid out.

December 12th. At the new camp I worked a fatigue of 200 men with 40 axes cutting timber; 60 spades, 10 axes and 25 picks boring stone, digging sinks and cleaning ground, and 20 wagons hauling firewood.

Dec. 15th. Winter quarters! Whew! We marched before daylight and reached Sedalia.

Being ordered to move just as soon as quarters are built in S.O.P. standard operating procedure) in my army. But the 14th was ordered back in camp within four days. Most outfits weren't so fortunate. In the miserable winter of 1863-4 the Morgan County regiment (10th Illinois) built five winter camps in Tennessee and slept outside nearly every night.

Dec. 19th — General Palmer ordered me at dusk to inspect arms, and I directed each company to form in its own street. Company A was armed with English rifles captured at Fairbury, on account of the gray rebel uniforms our men are now wearing. The caps (percussion) too, are English, and have no rim like our "hats." Parmenter's pieces was loaded and though I shook the ramrod in the barrel I did not find out the gun was loaded and when I pulled the trigger it went off.

I found the bayonette shank in my hand and the butt of the rifle driven into the ground. My stout buckskin gloves were torn to pieces, and my hands were so numb that I called an officer to handle the pieces while I walked along and looked on.

The 14th Illinois Infantry gripped considerably because it seemed to them that every outfit was getting new blue uniform while they were still stuck with the gray. They started out with at "Camp Duncan, Jacksonville. But the gray uniforms came in handy or Co. A.

The company was made up of "Cass county men" most of them from Beardstown. One day they were on a scout and near Fairplay, Mo., they found a bunch of rebel soldiers lounging around in camp. The rebels saw them coming, but resumed they were Confederate soldiers. The Cass county boys quietly got between the rebels and their brand-new Enfield rifles.

They took the guns, "paroled" their prisoners and walked back to camp.

Pvt. Lester J. Parmenter of Beardstown must have kept his rifle loaded all the time. Anyway, he lasted for the duration of the war.

Dec. 20th. Last night before tattoo I found out we were likely to have a quiet night, and as I have worn my clothes and belt so much lately, I stripped to the skin and turned in. About midnight there was a row at the camp guard and snatching a naked sabre I ran, as naked as the sabre, carried to the post, more than 200 yards against a cold northwest wind and sharp sleet, settled the racket and came back to my blankets in a glow, and slept well till reveille.

I found General Palmer waiting at the mess chest (he can't get my cook, Dollinson Junior) and told him my adventures during the night, but complained that my jaws felt stiff and queer. Picking a pickle off the table he asked me to taste it. It locked my jaws and the general told me to go to some house until I got well of the mumps.

Col. Cam left camp and took up quarters at a country inn at Middle Grove.

Dec. 21st — I became so nauseated last night in the smoke and stench in the bar room that when I started upstairs, I fell insensible on the stairs, and lay there I do not know how long. I remember some fellow running onto me, falling and bruising himself, and calling me "O.D.G.D. drunken hell hound," but I did not answer him.

When I got to my bed in the attic I found a man in it. He wanted to know if I had ever had the itch. I replied by asking him if he had ever had the mumps. "My God," he exclaimed, "I wish I had said nothing," and departed.

Dec. 22nd. — My men do not wish me to go to the hospital at Tipton, but to remain near them as they are now at winter quarters near Otterville. Fletcher Condit, my drummer boy in Co. K, says he has found me a good family to stay with. Before leaving Sedalia I met Messrs. James West, Galloway and Uncle Geo. Eby, who had brought over a ton of presents in the way of eatables and clothing from Winchester, Ill., to Company K. They have sons in that company. Sent an order releasing Lieutenant Hartley.

Louis Fletcher Condit of Winchester was a cheerful boy and a great favorite with everybody. The entire regiment mourned when he died of smallpox at Otterville Jan. 21, 1862.

Dec. 25th (Christmas Day) Visited the camp. General Palmer set out his new mess chest, and Company K set it out with some of the good things they had gotten from home. Some of the soldiers had killed a deer and we had a set-out for a king. The regiment band came to my boarding house this evening, and we had an enjoyable time.

Dec. 29th — Colonel Bland of the 6th Missouri was absent today and I was a brigadier commander for once, being the ranking officer present. Held general inspection at 10 a.m. New clothes were issued while I was out of camp and we are rid of Confederate gray and are all "Boys in Blue" now.

Dec. 30-31. — Nothing noteworthy.

UNION REFUGEES IN ST. LOUIS

The illustration shown on our Page 1—which represents Union fugitives in St. Louis—shows how cruelly the rebellion is pressing upon the loyal people of Missouri. The New York Herald correspondent writes from St. Louis:

For some days past the unfortunate sufferers of the southwest portion of the State, who have been driven out on account of their Union sentiments, have lined our thoroughfares, and presented many of the most painful scenes of poverty and affliction ever witnessed in this city. Only a small portion are in proportion to the thousands who left Springfield and vicinity in company with General Siegel's division. Their appearance—half naked, benumbed with cold, and hardly able to stand—has excited the liveliest sympathy, and it is evident that something must be done for these destitute people, or they will die outright of starvation.

The Chicago Tribune correspondent writes:

Truly enough, at this hour thousands of refugees are fleeing from Missouri that they may find bread, and afterward a home in our happy Free State. Scarcely clad, half famished, and pinched with cold, they enter our border towns and beg, for they have no money, that they may live. Our 14th Boys In Missouri

The 14th Illinois Volunteer regiment, which had trained at the Morgan County fairgrounds in April, May and June of 1861, was getting ready to go into winter camp in Cooper county, Mo., just 100 years ago.

William Cam, Exeter school teacher, 24 years old, had been appointed lieutenant colonel of the regiment by Gov. Yates, upon the recommendation of General John M. Palmer.

In his diary Cam expressed regret that he had been jumped over the head of Major Jonathan Morris of Waverly, his senior in both years of service. He expressed his regrets to the Waverly merchant and Mexican war veteran and was much relieved when Morris replied "in substance, that the good of the service was above personal consideration."

Such kind words delighted the young colonel.

Let us read some more from his diary:

December 2nd. Got out of my tent before reveille this morning. From my tent could look over my own and other regiments in the lower lands, where most of the men were without tents, and lay in bunches under eucalyptus and heavy fall of pure white snow. The last ringing notes hardly died on the frosty air before hundreds of men lay carefully thrown back their covering, sitting up and getting their shoes from under their knapsacks, which had served as pillows, began to put them on. But I noticed that about half of the soldiers got out their pipes and lit them before ever getting their shoes.

The smoldering camp fires were soon rekindled, jokes began to fly, and I thought what a lot of pity the folks at home were wasting on the poor soldiers. It is amusing to see the smoke-shifts in such a camp, where tents can be had, two faced together, a pit dug in the middle to keep a fire in and a trench covered with flat stones and earth carried the smoke outside to a rough chimney of stones, or old barrels. There is such a pit in my own tent and it is such a cheer and comfort these nights.

Lieutenant Nolte, my quartermaster, got in after I closed my journal last night and reported that he had his requisitions for new clothing, tents and cooking utensils filled. Many of us are still using the old quilts given us at Camp Duncan by the citizens of Morgan county. A paymaster called to say that all who were not paid for October would be paid day after tomorrow.

Lieut. John F. Nolte was regimental quartermaster, and despite this post proved popular with the men and a first class soldier. He was from Beardstown and was the major when the regiment finally disbanded.

December 3rd. At an oyster supper I gave to my officers in Tipton tonight I met a niece of Missouri's rebel governor, Claib Jackson, whom I had met here in a similar occasion, previous to our march to Springfield. Miss Cuttle is good looking, very sharp witted, and I think strong "Seecesh." I placed Lieutenant Hartley under arrest this morning for being absent without leave, giving him the liberty of the square in Tipton.

Lieut. John W. Hartley of Co. H must have regarded this order as "cruel and unusual." After all, all he had done was to get his pay ahead of the men, just as the other officers did, and then go to Tipton, where he sold several beakers of high-voltage elixir past his tonsils and found amiable companionship. When he awoke the next morning he felt not the best and his funds had strayed away and were entirely absent. Now this often happens to soldiers, in low or high rank. Upon his return to camp around noon the new colonel took a most dim view of the matter and ordered his arrest. Giving him the liberty of the town square in Tipton was cruel; what could a fondness gentleman do in town, anyhow?

Hartley soon tired of the army, resigned and went back home in Christian county.

December 4th. Morning drill. Went hunting with General Palmer, but got no game.

December 5th. Non-commissioned staff not paid yet. Called on Colonel Turner and went to Tipton before noon. Have permission to visit home, but it would be a bad example for me to set and I shall not go.

Do-It-Yourself Hi-Fi Project

By Joseph A. Smith

Perhaps our reader in the electronics field wonders just how to go about "dreaming up" his amplifier brain-child of his own design. True, the average individual would rather either buy one ready made or, at the most, assemble a commercial kit which has most of the problems worked out for the less electronically minded "Do-It-Yourselfer."

Yet there are always a few who are not satisfied with the usual run-of-the-mill gear for one or many reasons. Perhaps the average unit is too big for your apartment; perhaps you simply want better quality sound than comes from the average lower or medium priced commercially assembled or kit equipment.

Yes, if you're that individual who, possessing some background in electronics, round up the tube manuals, the A.R.R.L. handbook, and every bit of Hi-Fi amplifier information you can find then sit down to ponder your "Dream Child." As with commercial design, it definitely isn't a hurried process; nothing intended to be better than the usual ever is you know.

First off, you decide exactly what you hope to achieve; what do you want. For illustrative purposes here we shall use the KROCC (Bill Blum, 552 Hardin) simple, but truly outstanding, low-powered 4-watt Hi-Fi amplifier which recently appeared in print in "Radio Electronics," magazine.

First off, the apartment is not large enough for the usual variety mammoth set-up; therefore, superior performance in a compact unit must be stressed.

Also, a two-room apartment won't require a window-farring 50 watt to provide more than ample audio output power for normal room listening level. (After all, few neighbors enjoy having their windows rattled by your audio gear!) Loudness is far from a criteria to real fidelity.

Again, how many times do you get to run more than a low or medium level of loudness to your home radio?

Now, did you realize that, at normal room volume, your radio is seldom putting out more than a fraction of one watt even some louder passages? Perhaps it is hard to believe, but none-the-less it is a fact.

A couple of watts of audio output in an efficient speaker-enclosure combination can far the windows in a two room apartment to an extent not comfortable for either you or the neighbors!

Patience Of Job

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Job could face God in anger, demanding his right, and end in submission. On December 2, our Great Horned Owl demonstrated these same qualities to a few of us bird watchers in Diamond Grove Cemetery.

We were checking to find out whether the pair of Great Horned Owls seen for several weeks were staying on in this place as they had done all last winter.

The Great Horned Owl was well concealed in the top of its favorite Hemlock. Soon we heard the high rapid "killy-killy-killy" of the Sparrow Hawk. It flew to a dead limb in a tree next to the Hemlock harboring the Great Horned Owl. There sat erect this small hawk, hardly larger than a Robin, hurling killing invectives at the owl more than twice its size.

The great owl, called the "Tiger of the Air," budged not an inch. There it sat, with its conspicuous ear tufts raised and its ferocious facial expression enhanced with its large yellow eyes; there it remained, unresponsive and yet passive.

The Sparrow Hawk was seemingly infuriated at the Great Horned Owl's disdain, and silent grandeur and dignity. It flew in circles around the Hemlock, sometimes approaching nearer to the owl but never entering the owl's dark green refuge. Again it perched on the dead limb and spat out its "killy-killy-killy" at its scornful but passive enemy.

Great Owl Wins

As we moved nearer the tree, the Sparrow Hawk retreated with a final "killy-killy-killy." The great owl had won a victory by its passive resistance.

When the owl saw us, it lifted itself out of its hiding place and, uncomplaining and silent as a shadow, glided on its great wings to a distant pine tree. Almost immediately a flock of Crows circled around the tree, hooting raucous snarls at the passive owl. A couple of lighter Crows attacked it and brought it out into the open.

Again the Great Horned Owl silently took off and flew back to its first refuge. The Crows followed close behind, shouting invectives at the silent escapee; sometimes a more daring Crow struck the great owl on its back.

Without a defiant word the patient owl perched high in the Hemlock, ear tufts erect and large yellow eyes gazing not at the Crows but into the blue space. In disgust the Crows flapped away, trailing taunts behind them and conceding victory to the owl.

Contest For Powered Model Plane Builders

Peach Tree Friends

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

"Ha! I chased those men there today, and would you believe it, they fell over a chair, trying to get me out."

"Just dishes for sale in there?" asked the tree.

"There was a counter holding the prettiest little grey brown pottery owls you ever did see. They men are really good potters, but they MUST leave my castle alone."

"No," Queen Jet circled a moment, "I had to chase those men this morning; they wanted to see how my clay would fire, very likely it was better than some they had found. They are not going to scrape my nest down!"

For a moment all was quiet, then two feelers and the brown ant's head appeared.

"Did you have to hide?" the tree wondered aloud.

"How do I know what she will do, she catches spiders for her children's food and carries them off to her house," then without warning the mud dauber dropped down on the twig.

"Still talking?" she looked at the brown ant, now too frightened to move. "I don't fancy you," she observed. "Spiders are my children's proper food. Where do you live?"

She spoke quite pleasantly but the ant was still too frightened to speak.

"In the ground," the tree thought it best to say, "Have the men left your house in place?"

"They made off promptly when I flew at them," Queen Jet swooped to show just how. "They can scrape down old castle for a test, but my new nest?"

"What is a test?" the ant managed to ask.

"Why they put a nest in their kiln to see how it will fire. If it comes out smooth and hard after baking at two thousand two hundred degrees they know the clay is good for dishes."

"And what happens to some one's castle?"

"They sell the little baked castles," "Souvenirs? Do you suppose?" the peach tree murmured.

"Yes, or maybe little paper weights. I have heard."

"Were you ever in their display room?" the ant was quite brave.

This can be a lot of fun and might well eliminate the young men from the young boys in so far as real riders are concerned!

Learn To Hunt At Two Months

By R. Lothar Badger

THE COYOTE

A full-grown coyote is about two feet tall and about four feet long (one-third of this being tail). An adult coyote weighs twenty to thirty pounds. The ears of the coyote stand up straight. The tail is bushy and is tipped with black. The fur of the coyote is thick, long, and grayish or tan in color. The underparts of the coyote are almost white.

The coyote is usually found in the open plains or desert regions. At times, the coyote will enter forests. It is found in most of North America.

Young coyotes are born in April. The female makes a burrow in a cave or hollow tree. The burrow sometimes is dug in the ground.

The male does not stay in the burrow when the young are born, but he does help provide food. He lays the food at the entrance of the den.

Usually six babies are born to a litter, although as many as 18 young may comprise a litter. At about six weeks of age, the young pups begin to play outside the den.

At two months of age, the female begins showing them how to hunt. The male is now permitted the use of the den again. He also helps train the young pups in catching mice, ground squirrels, rabbits, and so on.

Never Harm People

Coyotes never harm people. They do not kill so many domestic animals as they are held responsible for killing.

The coyotes are really much more beneficial to man than they are harmful. Coyotes destroy great numbers of rodents. Coyotes are one of the few animals that can run fast enough to catch a jack rabbit.

Coyotes also eat birds and reptiles. Coyotes have been known to fish for fish in rivers and lakes. Different fruits and vegetables are also often eaten by coyotes.

Early Romans used sides of thin horns to shield oil lamps and made the first lanterns in this fashion.

Rockets And Space—

Stairstep To The Moon

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

The main purpose of the Ranger I to comedy land a probe on the Moon just slowly enough to keep it from being smashed. Since a lot of new equipment must be used to get this rocket to the Moon, then turn it around for landing.

he NASA decided to send the first Rangers into orbit around the earth to test this equipment. Rangers I and II were to go into low orbit around the earth. Then, on signal from earth, they were to change into a deep space orbit. On Moon-bound flights such an orbit would carry them to the Moon. However, Rangers I and II were launched when the Moon would not get in the way.

In addition to testing the Ranger space probe, Ranger I carried several devices to test conditions in outer space. These included equipment to study radiation from the sun and space and to count meteors.

A very special study was to be that of the thin hydrogen cloud surrounding earth. Some scientists think that this cloud may trail out behind earth like the tail of a comet. To find out about this Ranger I carried a device to measure friction in space.

Giant Cone

Ranger I was an 11-foot-long, 675-pound open work cone with a 5-foot-wide, 6-sided base. On each side of this base were two wing-like banks of solar cells.

Most of the instruments carried by Ranger I were exposed to space. The radiation telescope, which looked like a small astronomical telescope complete with equatorial mounting, was perhaps the most noticeable of these.

A 5-foot-wide dish antenna, for sending earth messages from the probe's three radios, was on the bottom of Ranger I. This directed transmitting saved a great deal of power that other moon probes wasted by spreading their messages all over space.

More about Ranger I next week.

Robinson Wins NL Slugging Crown

Robinson, voted the circuit's most valuable player last month, had 333 total bases in 545 times at bat for a .311 slugging mark. Cepeda wound up with a .299 average on 336 total bases in 585 at bats.

It is the second straight year Robinson has led in slugging. He finished with a .595 percentage in 1960.

Alabama Judge Says—

Divorce Is Beginning Of New Life, Not An End

By JACK STILLMAN
HAMILTON, Ala. (AP) — Alabama Judge Robert E. Moore says a divorce should be considered the beginning of a new life, not an end.

This, he says, is what he had in mind when he started thousands of couples down separate roads after severing their matrimonial ties.

Moore's name has been linked more than any other with quick divorces in Alabama.

He says he doesn't have any idea how many divorces he has granted in his seven years as a circuit court judge. But he's cer-since it was adopted last summer. "They are going to Mexico more and more instead of coming to Alabama," he said.

But last year divorces were a landlark business in Alabama, with 5,382 granted in Moore's circuit alone.

"But I am not the only judge granting divorces," said Moore, who is 48.

He has been married nearly 31 years, and he and Mrs. Moore have two sons. They live quietly in nearby Winfield, where Moore attends the Methodist church. He formerly taught Sunday school to adults and young people. He was graduated from the University of Alabama in 1936.

A circuit court judge for more than seven years, he says, "My nerves are destroyed a little bit because of harassments."

Moore says he has been wrongfully criticized by some for the large number of divorces granted. He says criticism has come via telephone calls, letters and newspaper clippings.

"I even get clippings about divorces I didn't grant," he said.

"Each divorce is different," he said. Even when there are children, or a broken home—if you care to call it that—it's better for the children, than to have them subjected to fighting and squabbling all the time.

In his court, the mother invariably gets custody of the children. Moore says he has given the father custody in but one case, and that because of unusual circumstances.

Auto Industry Has Its Eye On World Market

By BEN PHILEGAR
AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP) — American automobile manufacturers are convinced the big markets of the future lie outside the United States and they are steadily adapting their operations to gain a bigger share in the world growth.

Marketing experts predict that by 1965 car buyers in other countries will be purchasing an average of six million new cars annually. Sales in the United States this year probably will come to about six million.

Already the rest of the world comes extremely close to matching the United States in auto production and in the recession year of 1958 U.S. output for the first time dipped below 50 per cent of the world total.

Exports from American assembly plants, which had been dropping slightly last year, mainly because of the new compact cars. But through the first 10 months of this year the total of 105,499 was down six per cent and none of the Detroit companies believes the trend can be reversed permanently.

spending $220 million on expansion abroad. General Motors is in the midst of a two-year $500-million foreign program. These two giants, which rank first and second among the world's auto companies, are not alone.

Most recent of various moves was one announced 10 days ago by American Motors — an agreement with Renault of France to build Ramblers in Belgium. For more than a year AMC had been angling for an entry into the booming European Common Market where cars can enjoy the greatly reduced customs rates between countries.

American Motors noted the Common Market countries of the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Belgium, France, Italy and West Germany control one-fourth of the trade of the free world.

In the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, American Motors sold only 7,500 cars outside the United States and Canada. Its forecast for the 1962 fiscal year calls for 22,000.

Although only fourth in size of the five American auto manufacturers, American Motors already has production facilities in Mexico, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Malta and Canada and will begin building cars in Argentina in January.

General Motors and Ford also have been given the green light of Argentine authorities for immediate expansion.

Crimsons Break Up Jerseyville Press For 66-49 Verdict

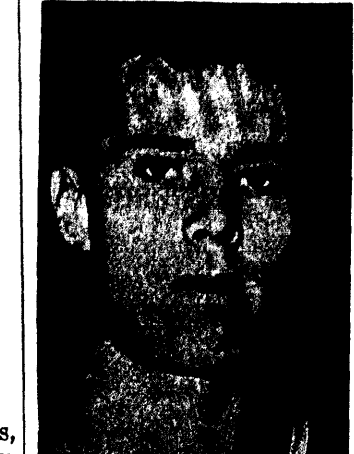

Add Second Victory As Oxley Tallies 18

By BUFORD GREEN

Jacksonville's Crimson broke up an all court Jerseyville press and shot 50% from the field to down the Jerseyville Panthers, 66-49. The Crimsons blew a 16 point lead in the fourth quarter but got it back in the last three minutes to pick up their second win of the season against one defeat.

Tom Oxley racked up 18 points, hitting on eight of eleven shots, to lead the Crimsons before he fouled out late in the third quarter.

Bob Smith paced the Panthers of Coach Havens with 15 points and Wallace Anderson added nine. The Panthers now have a 2-2 mark.

Tom Oxley

The Jacks led by four most of the first quarter but Panther guard Bob Smith scored four points late in the period and the initial frame ended in a 12-12 deadlock.

Oxley led a second quarter surge with six points, with Ron Yates and Steve Bone contributing four apiece to push the Crimsons in a 31-20 halftime lead. The Crimsons capitalized on several crisp shots as a result of getting through the man-to-man all court press employed by the Panthers.

Jacksonville shot a blazing 59% from the field the first half while Coach George Havens' Panthers averaged 31% from the field.

Yates and Oxley sank one apiece to start the second half, but Panther Bob Smith got four to keep pace with Coach John Chapman's Crimsons.

Bill Sims, Oxley and Yates sank three fielders from behind the free throw line and pushed the Jacks into a 48-34 lead late in the third frame. Oxley fouled out late in the period with the Crimsons leading, 50-35.

Bill Sims got the first basket in the final quarter, but Smith and Ken Scoggin combined for eight quick Panther points and pulled Jerseyville within nine points with three minutes to go, 56-47.

At this point, Jerseyville committed several errors and the Crimsons scored several layups and began to pull out of range, scoring ten points to the Panthers' two in the last two minutes. Ron Yates and freshman center Bone got 14 and 12 points and pulled down the major share of the Crimsons rebounds, while Bill Sims scored 12.

Wes Coulter started his first game but injured his knee in the opening minutes of the first period and was unable to play.

The team taking top honors was Barnes Vendors, 2988. These five members received, along with the trophy and prize money, individual arm patches, Walgreen's Agency, 2945, followed for second place, Third place to Hertzberg New Method, 2937; 4th place, Main Furniture, 2937; 5th place, Scott's Coin Laundries, 2936; 6th place, Thein's Beauty Shop, 2927; 7th place, Barney's, 2920; 8th place, Busch Bawarian, 2918; 9th place, Bates Market, 2903.

It is expected the new minority group will receive approval by Commissioner Ford Frick and American League president Joe Cronin since it has been okayed by majority owner Allyn.

Comiskey, in a long and detailed account of his role in White Sox operations, said, "I am out of baseball completely — but if opportunity should offer a suitable big league job in the future, I would take it under consideration."

Comiskey, since Veck took over the club in 1959 and shunted Chuck to the sidelines, has been affiliated with an oil investment company and a theatrical production in Chicago.

Veck no longer is connected with baseball and is residing at a homestead near Eaton, Md.

The collapse of the Comiskey regime, started by Old Roman Comiskey in 1901, began with the death of Chuck's mother, Mrs. Grace R. Comiskey, widow of J. Louis Comiskey, in 1956.

Mrs. Comiskey willed 500 more shares of stock to her daughter, Dorothy, than she did to Chuck. A series of court battles involving Dorothy and Chuck followed, and on March 10, 1959, Dorothy sold her 54 per cent of club stock to Veck's combine. After that Chuck was in Veck's shadow.

Allyn, who last June 10 bought out his two majority control partners, ailing Bill Veck and Hank Greenberg, for an estimated $2.5 million, described his new partners as "a nice bunch of people."

If any move was in the wind to consolidate forces, however, it was not evident at the news conference which Comiskey anounced sale of his stock.

Explained Reynolds: "We realize our new group can't buy majority control, although we have talked to Allyn. We just have a group in which everybody wanted to own part of a ball club."

Others in the purchasing group include: William C. Bartholomay, 33, insurance executive; Ralph A. L. Bogan, Jr., 39, Delbert W. Coleman, 36, president of a vending machine company; Robert W. Galvin, 39, president of a radio manufacturing firm; Lloyd Herold, 31, attorney; John J. Louis, 36, chairman of a radio station; James B. McCabe, Jr., 41, president of a coal and oil company; Bryan S. Reid Jr., 36, investment banker; Daniel S. Searle, 34, vice president of a pharmaceutical firm; and Keith S. Wellin, 35, investment banker.

Reynolds and Bartholomay are tabbed to get two seats on the Sox' five-man board of directors which will be reorganized Monday morning. Allyn's group controls the other three seats.

Alabama Judge Says—

Divorce Is Beginning Of New Life, Not An End

By JACK STILLMAN
HAMILTON, Ala. (AP)—Alabama Judge Robert E. Moore said a divorce should be considered the beginning of a new life to separate them.

But last year, divorces were a landslide business in Alabama, with 5,382 granted in Moore's circuit alone.

"But I am not the only judge granting divorces," said Moore, who is 48.

He has been married nearly 31 years, and he and Mrs. Moore have two sons. They live quietly in nearby Winfield, where Moore attends the Methodist church. He formerly taught Sunday school to adults and young people. He was graduated from the University of Alabama in 1938.

A circuit court judge for more than seven years, he says, "My nerves are destroyed a little bit because of harassments."

Moore says he has been wrongfully criticized by some for the large number of divorces granted. He says criticism has come via telephone calls, letters and newspaper clippings.

"I even get clippings about divorces I didn't grant," he said. "Each divorce is different," he said. Even when there are children, or a broken home—if you care to call it that—it's better for the children, than to have them subjected to fighting and squabbling all the time."

In his court, the mother invariably gets custody of the children. Moore says he has given the father custody in but one case, and that because of unusual circumstances.

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (AP)—Israel has offered Tanganyika 100 college scholarships as an Independence Day gift for the new African nation, officials reported.

In typically feminine gesture, young "chick" pats her hair before donning rabbit suit for the Disneyland parade.

"Where did I put that pin?" the harried wardrobe mistress seems to say while bunny adjusts her belt.

Fully costumed, bunny is intriguing to a little girl visitor, who probably wishes that she could find such a big friend under her Christmas tree.

Auto Industry Has Its Eye On World Market

By BEN PHILEGAR
AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP)—American automobile manufacturers are convinced the big markets of the future lie outside the United States and they are steadily adapting their operations to gain a bigger share in the world growth.

Marketing experts predict that by 1965 car buyers in other countries will be purchasing an average of six million new cars annually. Sales in the United States this year probably will come to about six million.

Already the rest of the world comes extremely close to matching the United States in auto production and in the recession year of 1958 U.S. output for the first time dipped below 50 per cent of the world total.

Exports from American assembly plants, which had been dropping slightly last year, mainly upward since 1955, turned more than a year AMC had been angling for an entry into the booming European Common Market.

But through the first 10 months of this year the total of 105,499 was down six per cent and none of the Detroit companies believes the trend can be reversed permanently.

This year Ford Motor Co. is spending $220 million on expansion abroad. General Motors is in the midst of a two-year $300-million foreign program. These two giants, which rank first and second among the world's auto companies, are not alone.

Most recent of various moves was one announced 10 days ago by American Motors — an agreement with Renault of France to build Ramblers in Belgium. For more than a year AMC had been angling for an entry into the booming European Common Market.

American Motors noted the Common Market countries of the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Belgium, France, Italy and West Germany control one-fourth of the trade of the free world.

In the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, American Motors sold only 7,500 cars outside the United States and Canada. Its forecast for the 1962 fiscal year calls for 22,000.

Although only fourth in size of the five American auto manufacturers, American Motors already has production facilities in Mexico, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Malta and Canada and will begin building cars in Argentina in January.

General Motors and Ford also have been given the green light of Argentine authorities for immediate expansion.

Fashion Revives Big Rings of First Elizabethan Era

With The Girl Scouts

Christmas activities are in full swing in every Girl Scout troop this week as each group plans something special for that very special time.

Meetings for adults in Scout training have been cut to a minimum because of full personal schedules. Only one committee met last week, Public Relations, and important steps in the planning of the annual event were taken at the meeting. Mrs. Hartman conducted the first session of basic training for new leaders on Tuesday evening. These night meetings were held in answer to a number of requests from new leaders who could not attend regular training times held during the day.

Those who attended the sessions were invited on Tuesday evening to complete the training. Mrs. Roger Anderson, Miss Carol Miering, Miss Sylvia Reed, Miss Joanne Whiting and Mrs. Dorothy Buchanan were participants.

Two committees are scheduled to meet this week and these two meetings are the only ones to the week. Training committee members will meet Monday afternoon, Dec. 18, at 1:30 o'clock at the Scout Office and the membership-nominating committee will meet Monday evening at 7 o'clock at the office. Members of these committees are asked to make every effort to attend since important business will be conducted.
